The Emperor Goes Flying
Japan's Plan Postponed
Active Young Rothschild
Messrs. Romulo and Morgan

By Arthur Brisbane

Ethiopia's Emperor Haile Selassie paid his first visit to the front in his American plane, one of a small "fleet." The royal chief pilot who flew the plane is a Frenchman, M. Corriger. The Emperor has one German pilot named Weber, who, in the big war, was one of three pilots that shot down the famous French ace, Guynemer.

The Emperor on this occasion took no part in the fighting, inspecting lines from the air.

Addis Ababa reports successful resistance by the Ethiopians, including 150 Italians killed, when Ethiopians used flaming gasoline. Several dozen Italian trucks are reported captured, and Ethiopia, elated, refuses to discuss "peace with concessions."

Peiping reports the Japanese plan to swallow a large part of North China, with 95,000,000 inhabitants, abandoned for the time. The 95,000,000 did not want to be swallowed and the mouthful is too big to be absorbed by force, now. There is no proof that the Mikado's government had taken part in the plan; the "absorption" plan being a good idea of one energetic Japanese.

A little boy named Primrose, grandson of Lord Rosebery, great-grandson of Lord Rothschild, one of the pages at a recent royal wedding, is a handsome but mischievous little boy. "In spite of their protests, he tickled the bridesmaids," according to official reports. This would interest his remote ancestor, the original Rothschild of Frankfort, and his noble British grandfather, the Earl of Rosebery. The latter, when young, declared that before his death he would become prime minister, acquire a fortune and win the Derby. He did all three, largely with the help of a Rothschild fortune that he married.

Carlos T. Romulo, editor and publisher of the Philippines Herald, of Manila, is now in America, cheerful about the new presses that he has been buying for his successful paper. Speaking English perfectly, he tells you:

"I got my first lessons in English from a sergeant in the American army, who kept his gun at the door while he taught us boys, and took his gun and went back to the barracks after school."

Mr. Romulo says every Filipino appreciates what the United States has done for his country, especially in establishing schools. But Americans should know, he says, that schools, roads and other improvements in the Philippines were paid for by Philippine, not by American, taxpayers. Even the United States governor-general of the Philippines gets his salary from Philippine taxes.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, returning from Europe, says recent British elections, approving a national policy, and bigger navy, upholding the League of Nations, was "just what everybody expected."

He has no high opinion of the baby "bull market" that has begun to grow its little horns in Wall Street; in fact, he doesn't think bull markets bring prosperity, "they didn't a few years ago, at least they didn't for me," said he, "and they didn't for a lot of people."

Mr. Morgan, who knows what is going on in the world, doesn't expect war in Europe. He says, "Italy has all she can attend to now for a time, and the other nations do not want it." He reports business prospering in England "because the government lets it alone and does not double up the taxes on it."

New Deal, please take notice.

Downtrodden American capitalists, told by professional "thinkers" that they exist, like the goose, only to be plucked, will read with pleasure these lines, carried in every edition of Peter Molyneaux's paper, The Texas Weekly:

The productive capital invested in Texas is among the most valuable assets of the people, more important to them than to the mere owners of it, for the chief benefits of productive capital are social in character.

Fertilization is important to crops; irrigation changes deserts to productive farms; and "capital," which is frozen labor, is useful and should not be discouraged. Mr. Molyneaux knows it, and so does every well-informed citizen.

Vienna predicts that within a year Young Otto of Hapsburg will sit on the Austrian throne of his ancestors. King George has been called back to Greece. Germans, who thought they could manage a republic of their own, find themselves ruled by an energetic Austrian, Hitler. "Government by the people" is not always as easy as it sounds.

Biennial Sessions Urged by Solons

Biennial sessions of the Legislature will be recommended by the special commission created by the last Legislature to make a study of procedure, it was learned today by the Boston Evening American.

The recommendation is in line with one made by Governor Curley in his inaugural address, during which he declared biennial sessions would mean a saving of $400,000 a year to the Commonwealth.

Springfield Board For Payson Smith

Springfield, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Springfield School Board today made public a resolution adopted unanimously, addressed to Governor Curley, recommending reappointment of Payson Smith as state commissioner of education.

The resolve cites that Mr. Smith has "served with favor and distinction, earning an enviable place for himself and the Commonwealth in the national field of education."

GIRL GIVES 'NUMBER POOL' KILLING CLUE

GIRL GIVES POLICE CLUE IN KILLING

Police began questioning his sweetheart today as gangland's latest ride victim, Fred Thomas, was identified as "Tough Tony," number pool and horse play booker.

"Tough Tony," it was learned by the Boston Evening American, was slain in a quiet Mattapan street because he had long defied the number pool overlords.

The murder occurred, police learned from questioning Miss Ruth Brewster of Massachusetts avenue, Dedham, within an hour after Thomas had delivered her to her home.

When he left her at 9:30 last night, Miss Brewster declared, Thomas told her he had an appointment to meet two men in Mattapan between 9:30 and 9:45.

Deputy Police Superintendent James R. Claflin, who questioned the girl and other witnesses in the case, places the time of the slaying at 10:15 p. m.

The spot where "Tough Tony's" bullet-pierced body was found in

ITALIANS WIN NORTH FRONT BATTLE

Asmara, Eritrea, Nov. 21 (AP)—Italy's northern army smashed the Ethiopian forces commanded by Ras Seyoum today in a sharp battle, the Italian field command reported.

For two weeks the Italians had been trying for a decisive battle with Seyoum, who, during the Italian advance across Tigre province, stayed just out of reach.

Today's battle was fought at an altitude of 7000 feet, almost in the shadow of the famous natural mountain fortress of Amba Salama, south of Makale.

The Ethiopian losses in the battle were not reported. Ras Seyoum's men carried their dead as they fled.

Big Tractor Kills Friend Of Curley

Frank J. Long, 32, intimate friend of Governor Curley and widely known West Roxbury business man, was crushed to death today when a tractor, being lifted by a steam shovel, fell on him.

The accident occurred on the grounds of his concern, the West Roxbury Trap Rock Company, Grove street, West Roxbury.

The steam shovel had lifted the top section of the tractor high in the air when it slipped out of the shovel tines.

Long lived with his wife and one child at Fernwood road, West Roxbury.

Only last night he had attended the Governor's birthday party. He had been a frequent companion of the chief executive on trips.

Mrs. Katherine A. Long of Corey street, West Roxbury, his mother, and a sister, Eleanor Long, also survive.

His wife is the former Ruth Watson, daughter of George Watson, an official in the city building department.

Long was a graduate of St. John's Preparatory School and the Bentley School of Accounting.

His grandfather was Thomas J. Welsh, founder of the Trap Rock Company.

MARY CURLEY GEM THEFT DISCLOSED

Copyright, 1935, by the Boston Evening American

The theft from Mrs. Mary Curley Donnelly of a $5000 lavaliere, priceless in sentimental value to her and her father, Governor Curley, was made known exclusively to the Boston Evening American today.

It was recovered Tuesday and returned to the governor yesterday—his finest birthday present.

The lavaliere is fashioned of jewels the Governor had presented at various times during their happy life together to the late wife he adored.

The diamond from Mrs. Curley's engagement ring is one of the stones set in the piece.

Highlights of the story include:

A robbery of the Curley Jamaicaway home, discovered by Mary on the eve of her wedding in June.

A secret search conducted by the governor and his daughter.

A midnight conference with Police Commissioner McSweeney and first report of the crime.

Smart detective work leading to recovery of the stolen jewelry in New York—just in time for a surprise present to the governor on his 61st birthday.

What other valuable jewelry disappeared with the lavaliere could not be learned. It was reported, however, that jewelry and wedding gifts totaling about $50,000 in value were missing.

Tiffany's made the lavaliere according to Governor Curley's instructions some time following the death of Mrs. Curley. One of the stones is a 3½-carat

GIRL'S STORY OF 'TOUGH TONY,—GENTLEMAN'

RENDEZVOUS WITH GUNS

SHE SAW HIM GO TO KEEP HIS 'DATE' WITH DEATH

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Black, bobbed-haired Ruth L. Brewster of Dedham, sweetheart of Fred Thomas and the last person—except his killers—to see him alive before gangland took him to their latest "ride," today told her story to the Boston Evening American.

Thomas, whom she had known as "Tony" for three years, kept two appointments last night, she said, although she was unable to identify the men he met.

Questioned by police about his death seven hours after she had bid him good-night outside her Dedham cottage, Miss Brewster revealed that only last Friday night she tried to "break off" with him.

SUSPECTED 'RACKET'

"In the three years I went with him—I saw him two or three times a week—I never discovered just what his occupation was," she said. "I suspected that he must be in some kind of a 'racket' but he was so wonderful to me, such a grand fellow, I figured it was none of my business.

"However, my sister was after me to give him up. He wasn't my kind and my family didn't want me to see him. Friday night I told him not to meet me at my place of business to take me home the next night. I work late on Saturday nights.

"However, when I got home around one a. m., he was outside my house waiting for me. He thought a great deal about me. He talked of marriage. But that was never in my mind. In fact, I don't want to marry anyone. I have a 70-year-old mother to take care of and support.

"Yesterday afternoon he telephoned me at my work. I told him I would be through around six or so. He said he had an appointment with a man in Boston at 6:30 and asked me if I would wait. He said he thought he could come and get me to take me home around 7:30. I said I would wait.

SEEMED CAREFREE

"However, he didn't show up until a little after 8. I chided him about it, kiddingly, as it was the first time since I knew him that he kept me waiting. My boss and I and Tony got into Tony's car and our first stop was in Charlestown, where I had to leave some merchandise. Tony seemed very pleasant and carefree.

"He was the calmest man in the world. I never saw him mad at any time.

"If he had any premonition early last night of any trouble ahead, he certainly didn't show it to me. We then drove my boss to the North Station, where we left him to take his train home. Then Tony drove me home. He said he had another appointment at 9:30 in Mattapan square.

"Jokingly, I asked him with whom, although it had never been habit to question him about anything. He remarked casually: 'Oh, a man about business.' All his appointments were business, he said.

WAS PERFECT GENTLEMAN

"We arrived at my home around 9:15 and we said good-night.

"At about 4 a. m. a police officer and a man whom I know by the name of John, a friend of Tony, awakened me at my house and told me to go to the police station. That was the first I learned of his death.

"I never met many of his friends. He never was interested in that and I never wanted to meet any of them. Consequently I can't name anybody who might have wanted to do him harm.

"I don't care what the police say about him and how he is linked up with racketeers and gangland, he was a perfect gentleman to me and treated me kindly and wonderfully. Why, Tony never drank, or smoked or even swore, at least not in front of me.

SPURNED NIGHT LIFE

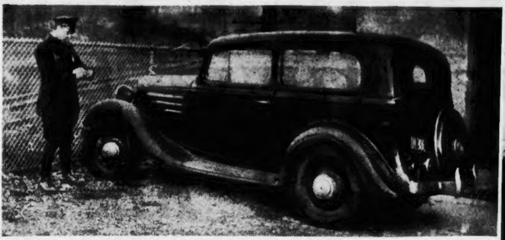
"Tony never mentioned that he feared anyone or ever gave me any indication that he had enemies. True, I never knew what his business was, but I wasn't one to pry him with questions.

"He never took me to any so-called 'hot' spots or night clubs, because he never danced, anyway.

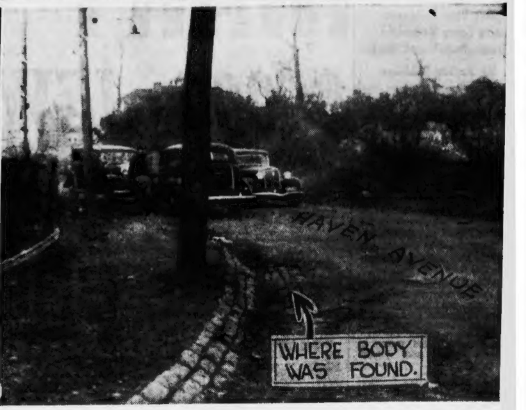
"Once I asked him to take me to a night spot but he told me to keep away as it wasn't the place for me. He always wanted to keep me away from crowds.

"I have tried to think of any names of men he might have mentioned but in vain. Sounds funny that a girl going around two or three times a week for three years with a fellow shouldn't know more about him, but it is the truth.

"We ate together, drov and went to the movies—that was all."



In this auto police say Thomas took torture ride to his death. Death car was found abandoned on Haven street a few hundred yards from body. Officer Walter Dawson is shown examining the machine carefully.



Near this pole, on lonely Haven street, Mattapan, was found the battered bullet-riddled bod of Frederick Thomas, South End "spot victim." Twisted arm gave mute evidence of tortur before death. Three bullet wounds were found in back.

GIRL GIVES CLUE IN KILLING

Haven avenue is only a short distance from the square.

In their conception of the crime, investigators believe that "Tough Tony" was met by two members of the North End gang he had been defying and was taken into the quiet thoroughfare and argued with to remain in his own number-booking territory downtown.

Still defiant, he was taken from the car, police believe, and four shots fired at him from behind by one of the pair.

THREE BULLETS IN BODY

Three bullets were found in his body. Another was taken today from a tree in Haven avenue.

A short distance up Haven avenue, where it apparently was discarded in the flight, was found a .38-caliber special type Colt automatic pistol, firing six shots, but with two cartridges still remaining.

This, according to police, is a .38-caliber mechanism in a regular 32-caliber-type frame, and gangland is understood to have come into possession of many of the guns lately.

The slaying, police fear, may be the opening act in a new gang war among number pool operators and horse play bookers in Boston.

For several months, starting with the opening of the horse racing season, there has been a breach among the bookie brethren and all that was needed to fan the spark into flame was something in the nature of the "Tough Tony" killing, police said.

Long ago, "Tough Tony" had been warned to remain in his own booking territory in part of the downtown district, but he is declared to have scorned the warnings.

The ride victim's territory was in the vicinity of Tremont and Warrenton streets and he was forbidden to encroach farther into the hotel and theatrical sections, it was learned today.

Questioned throughout the night and again today were Edward P. Kelly of Pearl street, Charlestown, salesman for an Egleston square automobile dealer, and Mrs. Hazel Gray, 35, lodging house keeper in West Brookline street, South End.

OWNER LOCATED

According to police, it was a car found at the slaying that was owned by his employer and used by Kelly for business purposes of the concern.

When the car was traced to Kelly, police located him early today at the lodging house. Both he and Mrs. Gray said they had attended a theatre from 8 p. m. until 11 p. m., and then returned to the house.

Kelly, according to police, at first insisted that the car had been stolen from in front of the West Brookline street house.

Claflin announced that after long hours of questioning, Kelley admitted lending the car to Thomas.

According to the police version of the killing, Thomas, a petty racketeer with a police record for minor crime, aroused the wrath of the North End gang by chiseling in on their territory.

This theory was substantiated partly by the father of the victim, Charles Thomas, who identified the body of the victim more than an hour after the crime.

FATHER COLLAPSES

Thomas, who collapsed when he viewed the body at the Southern Mortuary, later told police:

"It may have been the North Enders."

When asked to elaborate on this remark, Thomas replied:

"You know what I mean," and fell silent.

A definite reconstruction of the crime came from police after the all-night investigation, during which associates of Thomas were routed from their South End hangouts and questioned.

Directing the investigation was Police Superintendent Martin H. King, with Deputy Superintendents Claflin and William Livingston, Inspector Harry Pierce and Sergeant Joseph Fallon of the homicide squad and Captain William Lewis of the Mattapan station.

At first, it was believed that Thomas was murdered in the car, and his body dumped from the moving auto, but the finding of the borrowed machine almost 100 yards back of his body discounted this theory.

It was further borne out by the fact that no bloodstains were found in the machine in a preliminary examination. A further probe of the car will be made today, however.

In the pockets of Thomas' coat were found the keys to the "ride" auto.

Medical Examiner Timothy Leary, who examined the body at the mortuary, declared that the shots had been fired at close range, substantiating the police "spot" theory.

That he was slain in typical gangland fashion was the belief.

Thomas' body was found by John Kelleher of Van Winkle street, Ashmont, and Miss Margaret Shannon of Faber street, who were returing from a movie.

At first they thought it was a bundle of rags. Kelleher telephoned police from a Blue Hill avenue home and cruising cars and an ambulance rushed to the scene.

FATHER COLLAPSES

A pawn ticket, bearing the name of Nathan Bisiran, Garland street, ultimately brought about identification. Police called at the Garland street house, a lodging house conducted by Thomas' father.

He knew of no one by the name of Birarian, but volunteered to visit the morgue in an attempt to establish the victim's identity.

Thomas' mother was attending a party when her husband made the identification, and did not learn of the slaying until she returned home sometime later.

One of the baffling angles for police was the failure of any persons to come forward who might have seen the crime committed. A few neighbors reported that they heard three shots, but thinking they were the backfire of an automobile paid little attention.

PAID $25 FINE

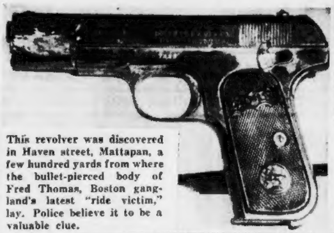
Records at police headquarters showed that Thomas had been arrested seven times, but was released on six of these occasions.

His only conviction was for the promotion of a lottery in 1933 for which he paid a $25 fine.

He was born in Eastport, Me.

Besides his parents, two brothers, Roy and Frank, and two married sisters survive him.

The body of the victim was kept at the morgue pending an autopsy to be performed by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary.



This revolver was discovered in Haven street, Mattapan, a few hundred yards from where the bullet-pierced body of Fred Thomas, Boston gangland's latest "ride victim," lay. Police believe it to be a valuable clue.

Gangland revenge was meted out to Fred Thomas, known to the underworld as "Tough Tony," because he defied number pool "big shots," the Boston Evening American learned today.

Woman Mayoralty Nominee Ruled Out

Westfield, Nov. 21 (AP)—Mrs. Alice D. Burke, school committee member and Westfield's first woman mayoralty nominee, was ruled ineligible to seek election by City Solicitor Harry B. Putnam today.

Mrs. Burke protested and will be given a hearing before the local ballot commission Saturday.

EXECUTIVE DOMINATION

"It was a leading object with the framers of the Constitution to keep as separate as possible the action of the legislative and executive branches of the government. To secure this object, nothing is more essential than to preserve the former from all temptations of private interest, and therefore so to direct the patronage of the latter as not to permit such temptations to be offered. Experience abundantly demonstrates that every precaution in this respect is a valuable safeguard of liberty, and . . . my reflections . . . incline me to think should be made still stronger . . ."

Baby's Tiny Hands Vainly Reach For Mother's Heartstrings

Mother, Come Back!

SCORES BEG FOR INFANT

A baby's hands are restless hands, always moving, stretching tiny fingers to touch something. A mother's hand. A mother's cheek. A mother's heart.

Babies don't know that mothers, forced by circumstances, sometimes do strange things—leave them in doorways, unwanted, forgotten.

Ond so Little Dennis, abandoned in a St. Botolph street doorway by a woman who signed herself "Mary Costa," is today gurgling an unanswered need for his mother as he rocks in a City Hospital crib.

A Heart Tormented

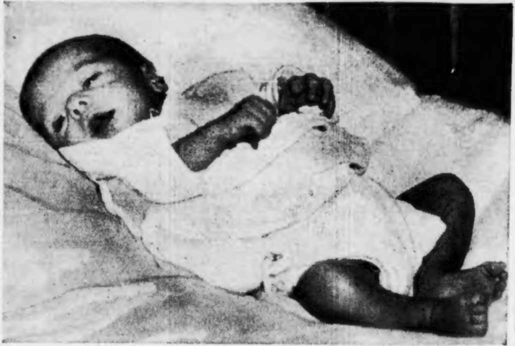
He is a perfect baby, in the pink of condition. His chubby cheeks bloom with health and when he smiles a dimple creases the pudginess.

Scores of people here and in a number of cities and towns throughout New England sent appeals to City Hospital doctors seeking to adopt Little Dennis. They promised him security and tender love—a weak substitute, at best, for mother love.

Somewhere, some place "Mary Costa's" heart is breaking, no doubt.

"Mary Costa" is, probably, not the young woman's right name.

But her return to the side of the infant she abandoned because "I just had to," she wrote on a crude slip of paper—is patiently awaited by City Hospital doctors.



(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Little Dennis, abandoned by his mother, "Mary Costa," in a St. Botolph street hallway, waits her return at City Hospital, where doctors call him the "perfect baby."

'Mary Costa,' Answer If You Want Dennis

Boston, Mass., Nov. 21, 1935.

Dear 'Mary Costa':

I wish I knew where you are, so I could send this letter directly to you, but I feel sure that you will read it here and understand its intention.

I have been thinking about you and your baby—"Little Dennis," you called him—and I don't believe you wanted to desert him or that you mean to stay away from him. He is such a beautiful baby and it is so evident that he has had careful and loving attention. You must have been feeling very unhappy and desperate when you left him—and now you want terribly to have him back, don't you?

That is why I am writing this. You SHOULD have him back—and I want to help you get him.

Perhaps you are afraid to go to the City Hospital and tell them that you are 'Mary Costa', that you abandoned the baby, and that now you want him back. But you don't need to do that, and you don't need to be afraid.

If you would come here and tell me about it, I am sure we could find a way for you to have Little Dennis.

What was it that made you leave him in a strange hallway last Tuesday night? Perhaps it was lack of money; perhaps it was a more complex problem. But whatever your problem is, we shall try to solve it for you so that both you and the baby may be happy.

Don't you think everyone believes that you should have Dennis and Dennis should have you?

Come as soon as you can, and I promise that we'll find a way to help you.

Sincerely,
ANN MARSTERS,
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN.

Scaffold Tilt Hurls Man 40 Feet

A tilting scaffold hurled an electrician 40 feet from the side of a South End building to the New Haven Railroad tracks, behind West Newton street, in the South End today.

Alonzo O'Brien, 30, of Tremont street, Roxbury, suffered a fractured skull and other injuries that caused his name to be placed on the danger list at the City Hospital.

Another workman, William Brennan, 39, of Eustis street, Roxbury, was on the scaffold with him when it tipped. Brennan tried to save O'Brien and nearly fell, too.

They were installing a conductor on the outside of the Curtis Furniture Exchange at 224 West Newton street.

Hundreds See Man Dragged by Auto

Under the eyes of several hundred horrified pedestrians and motorists, James K. Perry, 22, of Hemenway street, Back Bay, was dragged by an automobile today at Tremont and Boylston streets when his sleeve caught on a rear fender.

Shouts warned the driver, William H. Hester of Harold street, Roxbury, and he stopped, but not before Perry had sustained a compound fracture of the left arm and numerous lacerations. He was taken to City Hospital.

TAXES Force Actor's FLIGHT

POWELL WILL GO BRITISH

Hollywood, Nov. 21 (US)—William Powell, one of Hollywood's best known film players, is working for twenty-five cents on the dollar. State and federal taxes take the remainder of his salary.

And because he believes that he is rightfully entitled to retain at least one-half of what he earns, the actor is planning to live and work in England for six months out of each year.

Powell declared that "federal taxes were bad enough—but the new income tax in California has broken the proverbial camel's back." He added that it is not equitable that actors should be so heavily taxed, adding:

"Our periods of screen popularity and earning power—is short-lived. The actor is unique in that his appearance on the screen is what he sells. He cannot conserve that appearance very long against the ravages of time.

Income Dwindles

"Whereas a business man, manufacturer or banker, can change his economic structure to keep pace with the years, a star, no matter how popular, must accept a dwindling income when he changes from leading roles to character parts.

"Tax-levying bodies do not allow any depreciation in tax bills for diminishing popularity. When an actor must give up 75 per cent of his peak income for taxes—he has nothing left with which to prepare for old age and its accompanying infrequent and poor-paying roles."

Hurt, But Show Must Go On

True to stage traditions is Miss Marguerite Clarke of Lawrence. Cambridge police were expecting a drastic shakeup today following the announcement that ten inspectors and ten patrolmen had been assigned to street duty in an effort to halt the current crime wave in the city.

10 YEARS Longer TO LIVE

SCIENTISTS' DISCOVERY

Charlottesville, Va. Nov. 21 (AP)—University of Virginia scientists are working on a fluid which they hope may add ten years to the normal life span and double the working capacity of many individuals.

In an interview, Dr. S. W. Britton, professor of physiology, said the fluid, an extract of the adrenal cortex, probably is composed of two hormones—one of which is essential to life and the other necessary for sex functions.

The adrenal glands are located on the kidneys and have a sheath known as the cortex.

Although this sheath represents only about one three-thousandth of the body weight, loss of it results in death unless the extract from animals is supplied.

At present work on the uses of adrenal cortex extract is still in the experimental stages.

The fluid is expensive since the glands from 3000 cattle yield only about one gram of impure extract.

When it is injected into dogs, Dr. Britton said, their capacity to do physical work was increased many times. The animals were able to run on a treadmill for 16 to 18 hours and finished with no apparent fatigue.

When injected into rats, Dr. Britton said, it resulted in their reaching maturity in about one-fourth the normal time. And showed a marked effect on the extension of life.

The Virginia scientists have just been granted $15,000 by Rockefeller Foundation to pursue their studies.

ITALIANS BEHEADED AFTER CAPTURE IN ETHIOPIA

EMPEROR HAILE ESCAPES FROM ENEMY FLIERS

Addis Ababa, Nov. 21 (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, who returned unexpectedly to his capital today, is believed to have gone to Jijiga to issue definite battle orders to Ras Nasibu, governor of Harrar province, who commanis tribal forces on the southern front.

Haile Selasse reappeared in the capital a short time after two Italian planes flew over the territory he just quitted.

The Emperor disclosed that he had made two flying visits to the actual fighting front.

The government announced two Italian tanks were captured and their twelve occupants beheaded immediately by the Ethiopians.

An official communique said the two Fascist airplanes flew over the strategic cities of Harar and Diredawa about 9:30 a. m. (about 1:55 a. m., Eastern Standard Time), just after the emperor departed from that sector for Addis Ababa.

An official communique said:

"The fact that the planes did not drop bombs indicates they were reconnoitering or pursuing the Ethiopian plane."

The announcement also said:

"Information from the commander of troops in the region of Makale states the recent intensive bombardment of their positions by ten Italian planes caused 30 deaths and slightly wounded 50, instead of the 2000 killed as mentioned in the press communique from Asmara."

His movements guarded under closest secrecy, the Emperor completed his first visit to the war zone, landing here at 8:20 a. m. (12:35 a. m., Eastern Standard time).

"I have kept my word by going to the front among my soldiers," he told the Associated Press correspondent.

One of the two pilots accompanying the Emperor said they flew over an encampment a few miles from Daggah Bur, contested point 1:0 miles southeast of Jijiga, where "the noise and rifle fire of the front lines, only a short distance away, was heard continuously."

Haile Selassie visited Diredawa, 230 miles to the east on the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway, behind the southern front, where a force is guarding Ethiopia's only railroad. He declared himself "extremely satisfied."

Wearing a white sun-helmet, earmuffs and a khaki tunic, the Emperor stepped briskly from his plane and was greeted by the Empress, the crown prince, Princess Tsahal, cabinet officials and Ethiopia's only aviatrix, Mulumabet.

During his two-day tour the Emperor made a 100-mile round trip by automobile between Jijiga and Harar, just south of Diredawa, in addition to his aerial inspection.

His plane brought back samples of Italian arms seized at Ell Gorugura, midway between Jijiga and Daggah Bur.

Authorities said the captured Italian machine gun, rifles and ammunition would be inspected to determine whether inhuman weapons were being used.

Most of the arms brought back by the Emperor were taken from the dismantled Italian tanks. These tanks, it was announced, were captured while chasing Ethiopians.

Eluding the tanks, the Ethiopian warriors waited until their occupants got out, then set upon and decapitated them.

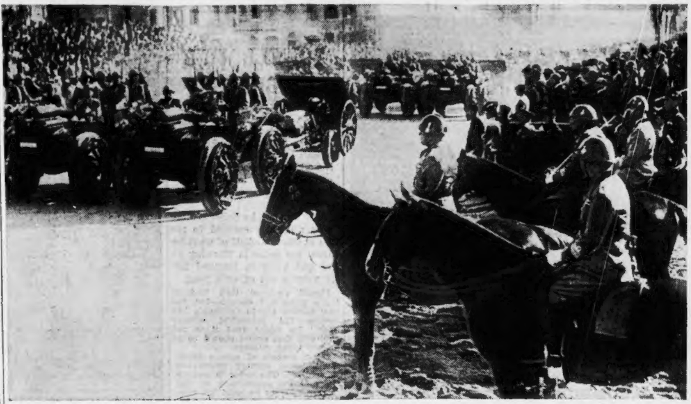
Il Duce Honored on Natal Day of King



On the 66th anniversary of the birth of the King Vittorio Emmanuele of Italy, 35,000 soldiers marched in Rome, down the Imperial Way, the great road which has been cut between the ruins and the forums and the Caesars. Il Duce, helmeted and mounted, is shown accepting salute of the motorized contingents, during great display. Ironically enough, this birthday coincided with the Armistice Day of England, France and the United States. Italy's armistice with Austria and Hungary is celebrated a few days earlier.

LEAGUE TO TAKE UP OIL BAN

Geneva, Nov. 21 (INS)—The League of Nations "general staff," the committee of eighteen, will meet Wednesday, November 27, to discuss the possibility of extending sanctions against Italy to include coal, iron, oil, steel, and pig iron, it was learned today.

The attitude of non-member nations, especially the United States, will be given much consideration.

Spain Holds Up Iron Shipments to Italy

Malaga, Spain, Nov. 21 (AP)—Three Italian freighters were prevented today from taking their cargoes of iron to Italy because of Spain's application of sanctions against that nation.

The vessels—the Fanny, Brenet and Three Marias—sailed with their general cargoes, but left the iron on the piers.

Italian Fliers Detect Large Army of Enemy

Rome, Nov. 21 (AP)—Concentration of Ethiopian forces south of Buia, 20 miles south of Makale, has been confirmed by Italian scout planes, the official war bulletin said today.

"Yesterday," said the communique, "national and Eritrean detachments of the first army corps executed a reconnaissance in force upon the village of Addi Quea, southeast of Selicot, without meeting resistance.

"On other sectors there are always in progress operations to achieve control of territory in front of our line.

"An aerial reconnaissance confirms the presence of an enemy force south of Buia."

Rome Lights Out Tonight In Anti-Boycott Fight

Copyright, 1935, Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 21—The Fascist government pressed forward today with its defense measures to resist economic isolation by the League.

The electric light administration for Rome announced some principal avenues would be darkened tonight in self-imposed restrictions to combat the League boycott and embargo on shipment of certain key products to Ialy.

A strenuous search for gold from all sources appeared imminent after the recent declaration of a government gold monopoly.

Italian Air Battle Hero Dies of Wounds

Asmara, Eritrea, Nov. 21 (AP)—Sergeant Dalmazio Birago, the only Italian casualty in the aerial bombardment of Buia, died of his wounds today.

Birago was the machine gunner in a plane piloted by Captain Ostini. He was wounded in the leg, but kept shooting until too weak to pull the trigger. He had been recommended for the medal for valor.

RIOTING CLOSES CAIRO SHOPS

Cairo, Nov. 21 (AP)—Cairo seethed with minor disturbances today as bands of students and ruffians roamed the side and back streets, forcing merchants to close their shops, and coming into conflict with native police, in observance of an anti-British "Day of Mourning."

Early in the day, virtually all shops opened, but as disturbances spread, merchants hurriedly lowered heavy shutters in the face of the Nationalists, protesting British influence in Egypt and the policies of Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha.

Windows were smashed in numerous shops, and one policeman was beaten while obstructing rioters intent on wrecking a street car.

Native police fired over the heads of demonstrators to check a barrage of stones.

CHINESE STILL FEAR PUPPET STATE COUP

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

London, Nov. 21—The halt in the plans for the establishment of an autonomous North China was said by an authoritative source today to have been due to pressure brought by Great Britain.

Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

Peiping, Nov. 21—Despite the collapse of the Japanese movement for creation of an autonomous federation in North China, Chinese fears persisted today that the schemes of Major Kenji Doihara, Japanese special military commissioner on the continent, have not yet been decisively defeated.

Grounds for the Chinese apprehensions became evident when Colonel Takahashi, commander of the Japanese garrison here, told International News Service the autonomy movement is still strong despite yesterday's debacle, in which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek called Doihara's bluff and squashed the autonomy drive for the time being.

Takahashi, who yesterday attempted to deny the Doihara ultimatum to China regarding establishment of the proposed autonomous state in the five northern Chinese provinces, said today that in any event "pro-Japanese North China requires a different organization from anti-Japanese China."

This was interpreted as indicating the Japanese, whose troops are still massed along the Great Wall, will not see their aims in North China defeated without at least putting up vigorous objections.

Japanese Hospital Stoned by Chinese

Singapore, Nov. 21 (AP)—The Japanese hospital here was placed under guard today after an anti-Japanese demonstration by a crowd of Chinese laborers.

Windows of the hospital were broken before police cleared the scene.

Mussolini Shuns Paris Peace Move

Paris, Nov. 21 (AP)—Premier Mussolini of Italy today was described by French officials as indifferent to any Franco-British peace suggestions until Marshal Pietro Badoglio, new commander-in-chief of Italian forces in Africa, "had a chance to win a few battles."

This skepticism was reflected in other authoritative quarters as Franco-British negotiations began in Quai D'Orsay.

Maurice Peterson, Ethiopian expert of the British Foreign Office, and Maurice St. Quentin, Africa expert for the French government, arranged a conference toward peace proposals.

But these conversations, informed circles agreed, were "just to keep the door open and show the world France and Britain are fulfilling their obligations" to the League of Nations to seek peace.

French Troops Rushed To Ethiopian Border

Djibouti, French Somaliland, Nov. 21 (AP)—A battalion of French Senegalese proceeded into the interior from Djibouti today to prepare for an overflow of refugees from Italo-Ethiopian war areas and to be ready for any frontier emergency.

NAZIS CALL TWO CLASSES TO COLORS

Berlin, Nov. 21 (INS)—A surprise proclamation was signed by the Berlin police president today, notifying the classes of 1915 and 1916—more of Germany's "war babies"—to hold themselves subject to call for army and navy service.

This move theoretically swells the numerical strength of the German army to the neighborhood of 1,000,000 men.

The proclamation, plastered on Berlin street cars and elsewhere, declared prospective recruits must be registered by February 10, 1936.

It failed to explain, however, whether the two classes will be summoned to the colors or merely kept ready for service at a moment's notice.

Official sources for the moment were mystified by the proclamation, and were trying to clarify its exact meaning.

Statistics show that male births in 1915 in Germany numbered approximately 623,000, while those in 1916 numbered only 340,000. The decline was the result of effects of the World War.

Army authorities estimated that approximately 50 per cent of the round statistical numbers can be regarded as prospective recruits.

Back Bay Girl Waits Call to Stardom

"Oh, when will the final word from Hollywood come?"

This was the only thought today of Miss Virginia Walker, 23, who was picked as second choice by Cecil B. Demille for the coveted role of "Delilah." Final decisions has not yet been made.

Virginia has already come out "tops" over 3000 other girls who submitted their photographs to screenland's "Maestro of Extravaganza."

So now it's just a question of waiting—waiting.

Virginia posed with a book for the camera, but her thoughts are far away as she sees her name flashing in a thousand lights.

And that's why when the telephone or doorbell rings today at her home in Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, her heart misses a few beats.

UTILITIES LAW, AAA AND GUFFEY BILLS ATTACKED

By International News Service

On three fronts, new attacks were launched today against President Roosevelt's utility holding company law as a federal court granted an appeal from a decision of a Maryland judge holding the statute unconstitutional.

COUNCIL CUTS MILLEN CASE FUND $2000

A $2000 reduction in the $22,000 Millen-Faber reward was announced by the Governor's Council today as a public hearing started on the distribution recommendations of Commissioner of Public Safety Paul G. Kirk.

Lieutenant Governor Hurly, presiding, said that the council had agreed that the original reward of $2000 was absorbed by the two subsequent appropriations of $10,000.

Commissioner Kirk aroused the ire of Councillor Daniel H. Coakley when he said that only persons who testified at the Millen Faber trial could be considered for a share in the reward.

5 NEW CLAIMANTS

Asked concerning the $2500 allotment to Saul Messinger, "mailman" for the Millen-Faber gang who turned state's evidence, Kirk replied:

"My first impulse was, no, no, not a sixpence."

Councillor Coakley then asked if Kirk did not think that Messinger had been rewarded in escaping prosecution.

Commissioner Kirk replied that the whole question was up to the council.

Five new claimants were revealed today as the hearing opened.

These new claimants are Arthur L. Rankin, of Brighton; Charles W. Davidson, of West Newton; Edward McDonald, of Station 9; Benjamin Hall, of Brooklyn, and Peter C. Carr, of Waltham.

Previously, the commissioner had rejected ten claims.

The claim of Davidson, proprietor of a West Newton battery repair station, was disclosed a week ago when he contended, through his attorney, that he was the first to report on the battery of the car used by the Millens.

OFFICERS MAY SHARE

Hall is one of the detectives assigned to the Millen-Faber case in February, 1934.

The alternate plan of Commissioner Kirk hinges on whether four policemen may share in the reward.

Under plan 1, in which they share, the following distribution would be approved.

Lieutenants Charles Eldridge and Charles Eason and Detectives Edmund O'Brien and John Fitzsimmons, $1500 each; Alfred W. and Frank J. Le Vierge, $5000 each; Saul Messinger, $2500; Henry DeLoria, $2000, and Philip M. King, Charles Parsons and John Moloney, $500 each.

BOYS MENTIONED

Under Plan 2, permitting only civilians to share, the following distribution would take place:

The Le Vierbe brothers, $6875 each; Messinger, $3437.50; DeLoria, $2750, and King, Parsons and Moloney, $687.50 each.

The Le Vierge brothers are credited with identification of the battery and DeLoria with finding the abandoned Millen-Faber auto.

Messinger was the Millen friend who testified for the state.

Lieutenant Eldridge discovered a letter sent to Messinger, while Lieutenant Eason and Detectives O'Brien and Fitzsimmons first obtained information from Messinger.

King, Parsons and Moloney are Norwood Boy Scouts who discovered the cut-up number plates.

Real Title of Countess Offered Boston 'Lady'

Complete with "all social and court privileges dating back to the 12th century," a German title of Countess has been offered a Boston woman, it was learned today by the Boston Evening American.

The offer to trade his title was made by a Brooklyn, N. Y., man, describing himself as Count A. L. Graf von Reigersberg, descendant of an old Bavarian family.

TITLE HEREDITARY

In a letter received by the Boston woman, the Bavarian says:

"I have decided to eventually transfer my title to some responsible lady or gentleman, of good character, who would appreciate the social advantages, here and abroad, connected with such a title.

"The title of Count and Countess, including all social and 'Court' privileges, dating back to the 12th century, will give you entries to the most exclusive circles and will entitle you to use the above Coat of Arms. It is also hereditary for all your descendants.

ASKS FINANCIAL STATUS

"If earnestly interested in the matter, I would suggest that you be so kind as to write me, submitting full details regarding your own family and financial position.

"P. S. In view of the fact that you, being of French origin (judging by your name) may be prejudiced against my title, same being of German origin, I shall be glad to introduce you to a French count (a very close friend of mine) who also decided to transfer his French title by way of legal adoption."

RACE FOR CROSSING

Train Wins, But Autoist Lucky

Springfield, Nov. 21 (AP)—Anton Boutote may or may not carry a potent rabbit foot.

Trainmen who pried him out of the wreckage of his car early today after it had been demolished by a freight train neglected to ask him.

But as they watched him walk to a waiting automobile ambulance they agreed that if he didn't carry one he didn't need it.

Boutote, approaching a Boston & Maine grade crossing in the north end of the city, said he heard the engine bell ring its warning, but miscalculated and thought he could get across.

The freight engine, which was busy making up a train, tied with him for the crossing.

Boutote's sedan was pushed 70 feet and in making the distance rolled over three times. When it rested it could no longer be called an automobile.

H. M. Crane and G. L. Allis, conductor and engineer of the freight, extricated Boutote from the mess and he was sent to Mercy Hospital under mild protest.

CITY SPENDING CURB SOUGHT

Recommendations of the Boston Finance Commission regarding the regulation of the city's finances are being studied today by the special state commission on municipal finance.

In a 17-page report the commission favored rigid state control over Boston expenditures.

It would abolish a provision for an annual tax limit in favor of an appropriation limit fixed annually by the Legislature and by imposing added limitation on long term borrowing.

A feature of the report is the suggestion that Boston voters elect a city comptroller independent of the mayor and that the appointive office of city auditor be abolished.

The recommendation for election of a city comptroller, the commission declared, would provide an independent check on the mayor and administrative officers of the city.

Salvation Army At $100,000 Mark

Well ahead of their last year's schedule, the Salvation Army has passed the $100,000 mark in their Greater Boston Maintenance Appeal for $175,000, according to W. A. Nicol, campaign manager.

FACTS

Washington, Nov. 21—Testifying before the Senate agriculture committee March 17, 1933 on how large a Washington administrative staff would be necessary under AAA, Dr. Rexford Guy Tugwell said:

"I should say we would probably have 50 people here in Washington."

By May of this year, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration had 5504 employes in Washington, more than 100 times the advance estimate of Dr. Tugwell.

Mary Curley Gems Stolen

canary-colored diamond, one of the last jewel gifts from the Governor to his wife.

LAST WORN CHRISTMAS EVE

The Governor presented the lavaliere to Mary; she wore it only on a few occasions.

It was last worn by the Governor's daughter on Christmas Eve. She put it away at home and did not intend wearing it again until her wedding.

Before her wedding day in June she tried to find the piece and discovered it missing.

She told nobody; she thought it was possible it had been mislaid by a member of the household; she did not want to grieve the Governor at such a time.

She started immediately on her 'round-the-world honeymoon after the wedding and the thought of the missing lavaliere containing her mother's jewels went with her.

TELLS ON RETURN

She said nothing to her father until two days after her return to Boston.

Then she told him the lavaliere was gone.

They closed the Jamaicaway house, did not even tell other members of the family, and behind locked doors the governor and his daughter searched the big home from cellar to top floor without result.

POLICE CALLED IN

Convinced finally that the jewelry was stolen, the governor called in Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney.

That was just one week ago.

At 2:30 in the morning, Commissioner McSweeney called one other member of the police department into consultation.

That man went to work and secret inquiries were begun in Boston and New York underworld channels.

BOUGHT FOR $640

Smart detective work located a small New York jeweler who recalled having bought such a piece for $640 early in the year.

Through him the lavaliere was traced from one person to another.

On Tuesday the jeweler was told:

"That lavaliere is the property of Governor Curley of Massachusetts. Tomorrow is his birthday. Get it back today."

SECRETLY RETURNED

It was delivered into the hands of authorities in New York that afternoon, flown to Boston.

It was secretly returned to the Governor's daughter. The Governor was not told of its recovery.

It was the smallest of 43 family gifts the governor unwrapped at his fireside last night.

A card said, "From Mary."

LET KIDNEYS FLUSH OUT 3 LBS. A DAY

Clean Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes

Nature put over 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters in your kidneys to strain the waste matter out of the blood. Kidneys should pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

When the passing of water is scanty, with smarting and burning, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body may take up some of these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and help the kidneys to flush out 3 pounds a day. Insist on Doan's Pills.

Killed by Hit-Run

Saco, Me., Nov. 21 (AP)—A man whom local police knew only as Charles McDermett of Pennsylvania, was found dead on the edge of a road here today. Police said he was probably a hit-and-run victim.

How about a little nightcap, friend, it's MY OWN PRIVATE BLEND!

JULIUS KESSLER ... 80 years old ... the man who has made and sold more famous whiskies than any living man.

"At the end of a long day, there's nothing like a friendly chat and a glass of something smooth and mellow.

"Yes sir, when I offer a friend a drink it's just got to be good whiskey ... and I believe you feel the same way. That's one reason I'm putting out my own Private Blend for you.

"But I'm asking you to buy this whiskey. So I've got to think about taste and price too. I've thought a lot ... spent 60 years making whiskies, and studying how to make them.

"Here's a whiskey I'm mighty proud to offer anybody to drink and the price is one that I don't have to make any excuses for asking you to pay. Fair enough? Don't answer until you've tasted it yourself."

Mercy Death Doctor to Tell Own Story

Sister Doubts Killing

PROSECUTOR ASKS FACTS

Dr. Myron A. Warriner of Bridgeport, Ct., will be asked to tell his story of a "mercy killing" in Brookfield to State Detective Edward J. McCarthy.

Confused by conflicting stories attributed to relatives of Adolphus LeTourneau, to whom Dr. Warriner said he administered an overdose of narcotic after LeTourneau was horribly wounded in a hunting accident in 1886, District Attorney Owen A. Hoban ordered an investigation of every angle of the case.

Detective McCarthy first will go to North Brookfield to talk with LeTourneau's relatives and other old residents who may have a recollection of the shooting and treatment of the victim.

No Prosecution

He will then go to Bridgeport to interview the 80-year-old physician and he may ask Dr. Warriner to return with him to Worcester to repeat the story to the district attorney.

Whatever the story, as it shapes up under the McCarthy investigation, prosecution is unlikely, Hoban said.

Dr. Warriner himself expressed surprise at the interest created by his statement.

He declared he had merely told of the instance as an example of justification for euthanasia and had no thought of precipitating a controversy.

Rallying to his aid today was his wife, Mrs. Flora Pepper Warriner, who declared she was fully aware of the incident when it occurred and believed her husband was "just right," adding that she was proud of him for what he had done.

Dr. Alfred Worcester, 80, of Bacon street, Waltham, retired professor of hygiene at Harvard, gave a new twist to comment on the situation today.

Wants Secrecy

"I think it is outrageous for such a subject to be discussed in public," he said. "It is a matter that should be left between the doctor, the family and their God."

Hoban said:

"This thing happened 48 years ago. Suppose I went ahead and started grand jury action. How far would we get? We could produce no body. If this doctor was brought into court and pleaded not guilty, there could be no prosecution without the body."

Dr. Charles Mongan, president of the Massachusetts Medical Society refused to comment. Dr. William H. Robey, former president, declared destruction of human life was contrary to the letter and spirit of medical practice.

Condemnation of mercy killings was also voiced by Dr. Winfred Overholser, head of the State department of mental diseases, and Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, head of the Boston health department.

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Miss Georgiana LeTourneau, of Worcester, says she remembers nothing about a fatal drug dose being administered to her brother, Adolph LeTourneau, 48 years ago, to end his suffering from incurable wounds. But two daughters avow approving the action of Dr. Warriner, of Bridgeport, who says he gave dose. Sister denies there was a family conference on the subject.

Doctor Denies He Gave Mercy Death Dose to Six

Reading, Pa., Nov. 21 (AP)—Dr. Monroe F. Clouser denied today he ever "did anything to hasten death to any sick person," or "gave an overdose of any drug" during his quarter-century practice.

The physician, of nearby Friedensburg, in a statement declared he had not said deaths of six incurable patients had been hastened by his treatment.

Dr. Clouser said that in alleviating suffering of incurable patients, "it has been my policy as well as most other physicians to consult the immediate members of the family whether or not they wish me to administer an opiate."

"An opiate is administered to a person suffering from an incurable disease, the drug may cause his death sooner than if he had been permitted to go without the opiate," his statement said.

"Then again, he might die even sooner if he were permitted to lie in agony.

"It is just as much of a gamble when you administer a drug as in an operation when a surgeon operates on a person to save his life. You don't know definitely whether he will respond from the effects of the operation or whether it will cause his death.

"As for my administering any overdoses with the express purpose of bringing about a mercy death—that is absolutely untrue and I am not guilty of that."

BRUNO "TRIAL CIRCUS" DENIED

Washington, Nov. 21 (INS)—Denying that Bruno Richard Hauptman was convicted by "circus methods," Attorney-General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey today asked the Supreme Court to uphold his death sentence.

Hauptmann, he asserted, was fairly convicted of the kidnaping-murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The state's answer to Hauptmann's petition to the high court for review of his trial and conviction in the Flemington courthouse was filed by Assistant Attorney-General Joseph L. Lanigan of New Jersey.

The high court is expected to rule December 9 whether or not it will review the case. If it declines to intervene, a date will be set for Hauptmann's electrocution. If it accepts the case, oral argument will be ordered.

SIGN MEN LAUD HEARST BATTLE

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (US)—Commending William Randolph Hearst for his "fearless attitude shown in stamping out the menace of Communism," the Electrical and Neon Sign Association of California at a meeting last night pledged its fullest efforts toward combatting radicalism.

The resolution praising Mr. Hearst's battle against radicals said:

"Communistic propaganda has made inroads into American business and domestic life and is a menace to the economic structure on which businesses are built.

"It is our belief that efforts to lead the American public toward thinking should not go unrecognized.

"It is resolved that we pass our thanks to William Randolph Hearst and his newspapers for the fearless attitude shown in stamping out this menace."

2 ARRESTED IN POISON SODA MYSTERY

San Francisco, Nov. 21 (AP)—Two men were under arrest in San Francisco's poisoned baking soda case today as authorities widened their investigation to determine the source of the poison.

Three deaths and 13 cases of severe illness have been linked definitely to the soda sold in bulk at "bargain" prices in a department store, Dr. J. C. Geiger, city health officer said.

Twenty other recent deaths, preceded by symptoms that might have been caused by the poisoned soda, were ordered investigated.

Joseph Rosenthal, executive of the department store which sold 800 pounds of the soda, and Nick Manno, proprietor of the wholesale salvaging and distribution company which supplied it, surrendered on warrants charging violation of a city ordinance prohibiting distribution of contaminated foods. They were released on $250 bail each.

Rosenthal said he was so confident of the purity of the soda he mixed "several scoops" in a glass of water and drank it in the presence of customers who complained. He said he became ill and a doctor told him a milk of magnesia tablet he had taken "probably saved his life."

He said he immediately ordered the rest of the soda removed from sale.

Dr. C. D. Leake, department of health chemist, said that with the evidence at hand "I can't say there is anything pointing to criminal intent."

Coroner T. B. W. Leland discounted rumors that possibly the poison had been mixed into the soda by a "maniac."

"Dick" Grant Off For N. Y. Vacation

Richard D. Grant, secretary to Governor Curley, leaves today for New York City on a short vacation. He expects to return to Boston on Thanksgiving. On December 1, he will assume his new duties as member of the public utilities commission. Incidentally, this is the first vacation Grant has taken since his appointment as secretary at the beginning of the year.

Many Reunions Will Mark Harvard-Yale Weekend

By BETTY ALDEN

THE HARVARD-YALE game on Saturday is attracting any number of socialites to town for the week-end . . . The Harold Wessons are coming from their home in Longmeadow . . . The young Charlie Willards will come over from New York to stay with the Richard Olneys, parents of Mrs. Willard, and Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Chadwick are leaving New York for the week-end to join their debutante daughter, Dorothy Robinson, who is already here taking in the whirl of debutante parties this week-end . . .

MRS. LAURENCE LOMBARD

* * *

Though the Albert Bigelows (Sylvia Weld) keep a Brookline address in the Social Register, they are actually living in New York, where Bert, a landscape artist, wields his brush in a studio which he shares with his brother, Hugh Bigelow, and Johnnie Phillips, also of Boston . . . Bert was abroad all summer perfecting his landscape technique, while Sylvia gave expression to the dramatic in her by playing with the summer theatrical group in West Falmouth . . .

* * *

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Charles Cabot had a nice quiet little tea party at which the guests were all former schoolmates at the fashionable private school she attended as a girl . . .

* * *

The Freeman Hinckleys have returned from a short trip to Chicago and are settled at 243 Dudley road, Brookline, the large estate they have taken for this season . . . Last year the Hinckleys occupied the Ben Russell home on Goddard avenue . . .

Two Attractions

MANY PHILANTHROPIC society ladies paused in the center of the Copley-Plaza lobby yesterday afternoon to consider which way to turn, and which charitable venture to attend first . . . On one side was the colorful bazaar of the Florence Crittenton League offering all kinds of delights to the eye, and on the other was the more serious meeting of the Woman's Crusades volunteers . . .

The Woman's Crusades of the Community Federation is to serve the same purpose this year as the Emergency Campaign of the past two seasons . . . Official hostesses extending greetings and a few words of instruction and encouragement to the volunteers were Mrs. Laurence Lombard of Dedham, general chairman of the women's division, who, for one so young and tiny, was amazingly unruffled as she addressed the large gathering. Mrs. Lombard was a Curtis of New York, before her marriage several years ago . . . Yesterday she wore a bright Kelly green dress with a small black velvet beret . . .

Other hostesses were Mrs. Randolph K. Byers of Milton, the vice-chairman, and Mrs. Thomas J. Walker . . . Mrs. Lorenz Muther and Mrs. Frederick Mansfield were also listed as hostesses.

A youthful group from the Junior League, headed by Louise Harding, were on hand to obtain a few suggestions from the publicity department about their jobs of placing posters and billboards about the city on Monday morning, and two of them, Peggy Capper and Louise Herman, poured tea and coffee for the reception.

Many faithful workers of former campaigns were present to help start this year's organization off right . . . Mrs. William Brace Pratt, very modish in a black Persian swagger coat and tiny hat with a band of Persian around the crown, was commended for the splendid job she has done on her branch of the work . . . Mrs. Richard Middlecote Saltonstall was an honorary hostess, for she is head of the advisory board of the Crusade and a member this year of the National Women's committee, Mobilization for Human Needs, of which the Crusade in Boston is a local link . . .

Mrs. Albert Bradley Carter, Peggy Otis, Mrs. James Nelson, Mrs. Howland Shaw Warren, Mrs. Gelston King, Mrs. Edward Byron and Mark, who slipped in quietly to hear the speeches, Miss Margaret Curtis and her sister, Miss Harriet Curtis, Miss Pauline Erlich, Mrs. John G. Palfrey in crimson tunic and black skirt, Mrs. Gardiner Fiske, Miss Louise Condit, Mrs. Philip Lane, and Mrs. Robert C. Terry were others there pledging themselves to the support of this stupendous organization . . .

First of Musicales Attracts Throng

AMONG THE HUNDREDS and hundreds of music lovers who jammed the Statler Ballroom yesterday morning for the first of the Morning Musicales, there were a number of exceptionally well dressed younger socialites . . . One of the first to attract our attention was Virginia McNeil, wearing a soft gray wool dress, striped with diagonal white lines, and a gray hat of the same material . . . Caroline Hunnewell, just back from Europe, was most attractive in a deep brown wool dress with a short mink cape and Tyrolean hat of brown with a touch of emerald green in the cord trimming . . .

Mrs. George L. Batchelder, Jr., was an attractive figure in all black and Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French combined a deep chocolate brown dress with a short fitted jacket of brown broadtail, buttoned down the front and tied snugly under her chin with a brown scarf . . . Mrs. William Cox, serving for the first time as a member of the committee, wore a fetching dress of wine wool with sapphire velvet collar and cuffs . . .

The Musicales yesterday was a reunion of Mrs. Eliot Spalding and Mrs. Matthew J. Whittall with all their Boston friends, for Mrs. Spalding came on from New York for the day and Mrs. Whittall came from her new home in Washington . . . Both are former committee members of the Musicales . . .

Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer wore a stylish green suit, and Mrs. Robert C. Daley was very attractive in a checked suit with a beet red velveteen swagger coat . . . Practically everyone in the social register was there, so it is useless to try to go on copying all the names in our notes . . .

Buffet Supper In Jamaica Plain

Chrysanthemums and fall foliage were the attractive decorations at the buffet supper and bridge Ruth Anne Donoghue, daughter of Mrs. Patrick Donoghue of Jamaica Plain, held at her home Monday evening. The party benefited the philanthropies of the Proparvulis Club to which Miss Donoghue has recently been elected.

Selling chances were a bevy of "young-setters" . . . Anne and Mary Holland, Eleanor O'Neill and Agnes McGivian.

Attending the benefit were Catherine Hourihan, Anne Ryan, Mary, Catherine and Louise Toomey of Cambridge, Mrs. Donoghue, Mrs. Daniel Holland and Mrs. John H. O'Neill.

Reception For Miss Motley

FOR THE SECOND time in the past few years the town house of Mrs. Henry H. Fay on Beacon street, was the scene of a reception and tea which marked the official debut of one of her granddaughters.

Three seasons ago Miss Elizabeth Mixter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Yaron, of Chestnut Hill, was the guest of honor and this afternoon, Miss Mixter's cousin, Miss Phyllis Motley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Motley of "The Cedars" in Milton, made her social curtsy, while Miss Mixter acted as head pourer.

The three generations, grandmother, daughter and granddaughter, made an unusual and pleasing picture as they welcomed their guests. Miss Motley had chosen a simple gown of white chiffon, which was very becoming to her and was a perfect foil to the deep blue and silver of her mother's dress and the fringed black crepe de chine worn by Mrs. Fay.

Assisting Miss Mixter at the tea tables were Vrylena Olney, Frances Lowell, Rosamond Pier, Leslie Eustis, Joan Jacoby, Elizabeth Titcomb, Hope Blanchard, Helen Foster, Susanne Crocker, Elizabeth Jaques, Barbara Brewer, Nancy Homans, Frances Osgood, Priscilla Thorndike, Edith Lewis, Mark Byron, Joan Chapin, Nancy Wellington, Dorothy MacAusland, Nancy Ames, Dorothy Dow and Lewis Watson.

Two out-of-town debutantes, Miss Pauline L. du Pont, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. du Pont of Wilmington, and Miss Rosalind A. Everdell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Everdell of Manhasset, Long Island, both of whom are in Boston as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, also acted as pourers. Last evening Mrs. Crowninshield gave a ball at the Ritz-Carlton for Miss du Pont.

This evening Mr. and Mrs. Motley will give a dinner party at their home.

Notables at Bazaar

"TAMASHANTER," an orphaned Scottie puppy all wrapped up in a Scotch plaid blanket was the most popular attraction at the opening of the 24th annual bazaar in the aid of the Florence Crittenton League of Compassion, at the Copley-Plaza, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Roberta Greene was Tamashanter's temporary guardian and made sure that he was well tucked into his blanket.

Mrs. Wilbur S. Grant, in black with a gray tailored hat, and Mrs. Paul Revere, who also wore black, greeted the arriving guests and officiated at the "Information" booth. Later in the evening Mrs. Revere changed into a sheer lacy gown of black with little black bows in her blonde hair.

Many debs, post-debs and younger matrons acted as models in the fashion parade. Among the debs of the season, Anne Clark was very blonde and feminine in soft sapphire chiffon. A street dress of brown and green wool was displayed by Miss Louise Stevens, while Nancy Byron followed with a white plaited crepe evening dress. Miss Ann Howard wore a semi-formal daytime dress of black and Miss Isabel Gardiner modeled an evening gown of pink chiffon made with accordion pleats.

FIRE BOX COMPLAINT ANSWERED BY 'FIXIT'

By MR. FIXIT

This department has been installed as a public service for Boston Evening American readers. It will endeavor to solve problems and fix troubles dealing with city, state or public utility service. Requests must be specific and brief. No anonymous requests nor matters of a purely private nature can be considered.

Following investigation of the request for a fire alarm box to be placed at the corner of Howard and Bulfinch streets, Boston, the fire commissioner reports:

"It appears from my survey that this district is very well covered by fire alarm boxes, as follows: No. 1334 in Bowdoin square; No. 1335, Somerset and Allston streets; No. 1367, Bowdoin and Derne streets. These boxes are 325, 400 and 450 feet distant, respectively."

Mrs. J. B. C., Revere street, Boston, writes:

"I am writing to see if you can help me straighten out this problem concerning Revere street. I had ordered a furniture set to be delivered to me from a department store. There was a delay. I questioned the department store about it. I was informed that it was impossible for the furniture truck to get within one hundred feet of my home an account of the autos parked around the door on both sides of the street. Can you remedy the situation?"

"Mr. Fixit" is willing to try to adjust any reasonable request, and will take the above under consideration.

M. L., Codman Park, Roxbury, writes:

"Can you get the night and day officers on the beat to come up my street once in a while? There is a gang of young fellows up here ringing my doorbell all the time, and damaging property.

"Mr. Fixit" will investigate.

BASKET FUND'S PLAY TICKETS GO ON SALE

Tickets for the special performance of the prize-winning stage comedy, "Three Men on a Horse" at the Plymouth Theater on Sunday night, December 1, for the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund go on sale today.

Frank Foster will sell tickets at Macy's Drug Store, 232 Tremont street, with other tickets and reservations available at the Plymouth Theater box-office and The Mayfair.

"Three Men on a Horse," a race track comedy, is proving one of the season's biggest hits with the lead roles. Members of the cast, Producer Alex Yokel and the Messrs. Shubert are making it possible for the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser to swell the Basket Fund.

The Christmas Basket Fund Editor has already received hundreds of applications and it appears that the 23rd annual Basket Fund will have to be heavier than ever before in its history to meet the needs of the unfortunate this coming Christmas.

The Christmas Basket Fund Editor wishes to instruct applicants to secure an indorsement from their pastor, doctor, children's school teacher or other reputable person which will eliminate confusion and misunderstanding in their distribution. Applicants should also set down their names and addresses plainly and include the number of persons in their families. This is highly important.

Donations and requests for names of families to be cared for should be addressed to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Ellsworth Again Off to Antarctic

New York, Nov. 21 (AP) The New York Times and the North American Newspaper Alliance reported today that Lincoln Ellsworth had hopped off in his second attempt in 24 hours to fly across the Antarctic continent.

Ellsworth and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, had been forced to give up the first flight and return to the base ship, the Wyatt Earp, because of an oil leak in their motor, after three hours and eleven minutes in the air.

Kidnap Hoaxer Jailed for 30 Days

Hollywood, Nov. 21 (INS)—Confessing it was nothing but a hoax when he reported he was kidnaped and beaten by two men who sought to abduct the five-year-old daughter of Victor Jory, film star, today resulted in Thomas Watkins, former boxer, starting a 30-day jail term.

Watkins, who formerly was managed by Jory, said he concocted the kidnaping story in an effort to gain employment from Jory.

4TH BRIDE HITS ELOPEMENT

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—William Durvea's fourth marital venture — a midnight elopement last December with Evelyn Crowell, Vanities beauty and widow of Larry Fay, slain night club owner—is scheduled for a hearing in the supreme court, the Daily News said today.

The News said his wife would plead that the wealthy [illegible] merchant and clubman was not free to marry her when they slipped off to Harrison, N. Y. on December 30. She will cite as a legal barrier his divorce from his third wife, Helen Henderson, in 1932.

Durvea's first wife was Emily Burton. The second was Norma Taylor, Ziegfeld chorus girl. They were married May 12, 1931, and separated 10 days later.

Crash! In Curley Suite at Capitol

A big pane of glass and a galvanized iron pail which had been placed on it, hurtled from a skylight to the carpeted floor directly in front of Governor Curley's private office today with a terrific din.

Due to the absence of the Governor from the State House, the outer office was virtually free from visitors and nobody was injured. Usually this spot, at the foot of an inner stairway leading to the fourth floor of the State House, is crowded with persons waiting to see the Governor.

Carpenters were at work repairing the roof directly over the skylight. A leak was discovered during the last rainstorm.

Italy Accepts Naval Parley Bid

London, Nov. 21 (INS)—Italy today formally accepted Britain's bid to attend a five-power parley in London next month in which France, the United States, Britain and Japan also will take part.

Feast Flies In

By Associated Press

A window glass crashed and a delicacy for dinner was delivered in an unusual manner today to a frightened widow and her five children in Concord.

Awakened by shattering glass in one of the children's rooms, Mrs. Martin Scaltrito investigated to find a partridge dead on the floor. She decided to serve the bird for dinner.

WPA SPAN JOB UNDER FIRE

A protest by WPA workers today resulted in the charge that the city of Boston is expending $300 for painting an East Boston bridge when the work could have been done for approximately $50.

Three WPA workers who had been employed by the public works department protested to Commissioner Christopher J. Carven that they had been suspended and a private concern given the job of painting the Gove street bridge in East Boston.

Commissioner Carven stated that a South Boston concern had been commissioned to paint the bridge at a cost of $300.

He also admitted that under the WPA the only cost to the city would have been approximately $50 to cover cost of paint.

Jellicoe Buried Alongside Nelson

London, Nov. 21 (INS). The center of a great controversy during his life, Lord Jellicoe will lie in death near Lord Nelson, hero of Trafalgar, with whom many naval experts think Jellicoe should rank in history.

Jellicoe, who bottled up the German grand fleet after the battle of Jutland, will be buried under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Missing Flier Found

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 21 (INS)—Frank Kurtz, noted junior aviator was found safe and uninjured today at the ranch of Bill McGee, 22 miles northwest of here, after he had been the object of an intensive search. His plane was undamaged.

PWA TO SHUN NAZI STEEL

New York, Nov. 21 (US)—In response to a nation-wide storm of protest, plans were abandoned today for the use here of German steel and French cement on local PWA projects financed with federal funds meant for unemployment relief.

American made steel will be substituted for the German product ordered for the Queens approach to the Triborough Bridge, Commissioner Paul Loeser, director of the Triborough Bridge Authority, announced.

American cement will be used instead of the French cement intended for two new high schools in Staten Island, Walter C. Martin, superintendent of school buildings, declared.

This double-barreled victory for American industry marked a complete capitulation to the avalanche of criticism provoked by the disclosure last week that German steel had been ordered for the bridge approach.

Although the public protests caused Washington officials to order the exclusive use of American products on future public works projects, the local authorities went a step farther and took action on pending contracts.

Loeser announced a contract has been approved under which the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation of Pittsburgh will furnish the steel.

The Pittsburgh firm received an order for from 350 to 500 tons of piling at a delivered price of $50 a ton. If the full 500 tons are required this will represent a total cost of $25,000 as compared with the $21,000 which was to have been paid for the German steel.

Martin made it known that at his request the contractors for the Tottenville and New Dorp high schools have arranged to purchase American cement and to cancel the contracts for French material.

The Federal Construction Corp., contractor for the New Dorp school informed Martin it has complied with his request. Psaty & Fuhrman, Inc., contractors for the Tottenville school, gave its verbal promise to make similar arrangements.

Barbara Holmes is waiting for a visit from you in the Free Rental Bureau, on the fourth floor of the R. H. White Co., at the corner of Washington and Bedford Sts.

A WINDFALL— FOR EUROPE

EXPOSE in the Hearst papers of the purchase of German steel with money appropriated to relieve the needs of our unemployed is bringing to light other very CURIOUS proceedings in regard to the spending of PWA money.

Like a rip in a girl's stocking, the steel exposure has developed into a "run."

Three hundred and fifty thousand tons of anthracite coal from the FORCED LABOR MINES of Russia have lately entered this country to compete, at ruinous prices, with American coal.

This coal, according to John L. Lewis, president of the American Mine Workers Union, came here as "ballast" on Soviet-chartered ships.

French cement has been used in building schools in New York city.

Mr. Walter C. Martin, superintendent of school buildings, made this remarkable statement in the matter of the imported French non-staining cement:

"HOWEVER, AMERICAN NON-STAINING CEMENT IS JUST AS GOOD."

Then WHY was the French cement imported?

Just how far are we SUPPORTING THE REST OF THE WORLD with money laid on the American people in the shape of enormous taxes to help our own to get on their feet?

An inquiry should be set afoot when Congress meets. These PWA millions seem to have become a windfall—FOR EUROPE.

Meanwhile, it is good to record the fact that Secretary Ickes has stopped "laughing out loud."

EDWARD SUPPLE, REPORTER, DIES

"Newspaper Row" was shocked today by the sudden death of J. Edward Supple, veteran reporter for the Boston Globe and member of a well known newspaper family.

Mr. Supple died at his home in Baker road, Everett, of a heart attack. He had been in poor health a long time but had been seriously ill only since Friday.

He is survived by his wife Mrs. Annie Supple, four sons, two daughters, his father Thomas Supple, a sister Mrs. Collett Morrison, and three brothers Frank J., Albert T. and Henry A. Supple.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 10 a. m. in Our Lady of Grace Church, Everett, with a solemn high mass of requiem. Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery, Hingham.

Mr. Supple was a graduate of [illegible] class of 1907, and was widely known for track and [illegible]. He was a [illegible] vice president of the North [illegible] Press Club.

Discomfort and Aches Go Almost Instantly This Way

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness instantly.

THE pictured directions above show perhaps the quickest, simplest and most modern method yet discovered to combat cold and sore throat.

Your own doctor will approve this way. Millions of people have discarded "cold killers" and patent nostrums for this modern way. It relieves the average cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Note that all you do is this.

Two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a full glass of water.

Three Bayer Aspirin tablets, crushed and dissolved in ⅓ glass of water as a gargle. Gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back to permit this medicated gargle to reach the irritated membranes of the throat.

The Bayer Aspirin you take internally acts to fight a cold almost instantly. AND — eases the aches and pains that accompany most colds.

The gargle acts instantly like a local anesthetic to soothe pains in the throat and to ease throat irritation.

Try this way. You will be amazed at how quickly you can ease a cold. Be sure, though, to get Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets. They dissolve almost instantly in the stomach. Hence start working almost instantly. And also, dissolve thoroughly enough in water for use as a gargle.

Why BAYER Aspirin Works So Fast
Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water
By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.
In 2 Seconds By Stop Watch
A Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.
What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach. Genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

In commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of George McManus' "Bringing up Father" the Hearst newspapers are offering a $1000 prize for the best cartoon conception of "The Tax Collector." Here McManus is shown seated before his drawing board sketching his famous Jiggs and many characters.

$1000. What does the tax collector look like?

For the best cartoon conception of the latest national pest, the Hearst newspapers are going to pay $1,000.

They want a character instantly recognizable; a figure that will portray the oppression of excessive taxes as accurately as Rollin Kirby's black-clad character expressed the narrowness of prohibition; as Homer Davenport's over-fed corporation baron expressed the greed of the grasping trusts.

Every cartoonist, professional and amateur, is invited to submit his drawings before December 15 to the King Features Syndicate, 235 East 45th street, New York city, N. Y. Announcement of the prize competition was made in connection with the silver jubilee of George McManus' popular comic strip, "Bringing Up Father."

CURLEY GUEST TONIGHT AT AUTO SHOW

Governor Curley and his military staff will be the guests of honor tonight at the Auto Show in Mechanics Building, officially marks Governor's Night.

Originally scheduled to attend the show last night, the governor was forced to change his plans because of a dinner party at his Jamaicaway home in honor of his birthday.

Record crowds continued to jam the vast building, and dealers reported sales far in advance of last year.

The free automobile given away last night was won by Mrs. Annie Murridge, of Fairfield street, Watertown. The machine was a Chevrolet five-passenger sedan.

Mrs. Murridge was not at the show when the winning ticket was drawn, but Albert C. Rau, show manager, said that the machine will be delivered to her home.

New features of the 1936 model cars on display at the show continued to demand close attention of the visiting public.

More than 1000 New England dealers attended the annual banquet of the Automobile Boosters Club of New England at the Hotel Bradford. The party was said to be the gayest in years, and is the outstanding social event of the annual show.

General chairman of the banquet committee was Walter Sullivan. Officers of the Boosters Club are F. D. Geiger, president; William Kent, vice-president; C. R. Critchfield, secretary, and Silvio Amoroso, treasurer.

Buick Head Sees Business on Rise

Optimism, confidence and the promise of a boom year hang over the business horizon, according to Harlow H. Curtice, president of the Buick Motor Company.

The only clouds he can see for the next year are the ones with the silver lining, and he believes that the basic industries are reaching the production level of the Coolidge era. He said:

"American business has every reason to be optimistic concerning the outlook for the coming year, having reached such satisfactory levels during 1935.

"More people are engaged in private enterprise, payrolls are bigger and pay rates are higher than they were a year ago, individual incomes are larger and there seems to be more confidence and optimism at this time than at any other period since recovery set in."

"Ibbetson" Tops Film Parade

Others in the expensive cast are John Halliday, Ida Lupino, Douglas Dumbrille, Donald Meek (the old-time Boston favorite of the Castle Square Theater days), Virginia Weidler, Gilbert Emery, and Doris Lloyd.

No less than four writers, John Meehan, Constance Collier, Vincent Lawrence and Edwin Justus Mayer, have been employed in the preparation of the shooting-script for "Peter Ibbetson." Henry Hathaway directed.

OVERTIME FOR POLICE

Cambridge Acts to Halt Crime

Every Cambridge policeman must do two hours extra duty day or night in the stamping out of holdups and burglaries, it was ordered today as a result of Mayor Richard M. Russell's charges of inefficiency.

Although an expected shakeup of the department did not occur today, Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy called in all the superior officers—three captains, three lieutenants and 14 sergeants and gave them a "fight talk."

Most of the blame for poor policing of the city Chief Leahy imposed upon the sergeants who he said do not keep the men on the streets.

If the sergeants do not check more carefully on patrolmen and keep them on their beats the chief will "make changes," he declared.

According to the chief, he recently drove the length of Massachusetts avenue, from the Boston to the Arlington line, just before midnight, and did not sight a single policeman.

In addition to the general extra detail work of two hours each for the members of the department each day, there will be several day men assigned to night duty, the men to take turns on the night details.

On Saturday and Sunday nights there will be a double shift on street duty between 11 p. m. and 3 a. m.

Men on the first half will work until 3 a. m. instead of 1 a. m. and men on the second half will report at 11 p. m. instead of 1 a. m.

1200 Republicans Seized in Greece

London, Nov. 21 (INS)—More than 1200 Republicans have been arrested in Greece during the past few days, including lawyers, physicians and business men, the London Daily Herald reported today.

The Herald said the only charge against them, reputedly emanating from Marshal George Kondylis, guiding spirit of the recent Greek Monarchist coup, was that their activities were "dangerous" to the state.

RADICAL UNION LOSES CHARTER

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (US)—Determined to stamp out Communism in the ranks of organized labor, American Federation of Labor officials have revoked the charter of the Fish Cannery Workers Union at Los Angeles harbor.

A. M. Gruber, secretary-treasurer of the Central Labor Council at the harbor, said President William Green had taken the action after being informed the union refused to oust its business manager, Jack Moore, and his secretary, Sarah Gould, after they admitted Communist affiliations.

Issuance of a new charter, with membership in the union restricted to non-radicals is contemplated, Gruber said.

Eva Le Gallienne's 'Camille' Triumphs

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Quaint as its vital moments may seem to this season of play-going, "Camille," the perennial love-tragedy by Alexander Dumas, Jr., affords Eva Le Gallienne's pallid beauty and talent for acting a showy vehicle as the third and final piece of her current repertory.

George Holland

The lady of the Camelias and the cough, Marguerite Gautier, has not been more decisively delineated as a living entity than under the abracadabra of Miss Le Gallienne's able characterization. All the resources of the Le Gallienne company are employed in "Camille," and, extending the immediate purpose of these lines, one wonders why Miss Le Gallienne does not initiate her engagement in a city as important as Boston with "Camille" rather than "Rosemersholm."

* * *

The years have dealt more kindly with the plot of "Camille" than with many another "revival." Served up several times on the silver-sheets of the motion picture palaces with one star or another in the fat leading role, the play nevertheless holds interest because of the power of its basic situation. It is the sacrifice of a butterfly-lady for the future of the young man she loves.

Except for a couple of inept supers in disconcerting full dress clothes which do not fit, the production is grand. I shall not relate the details of "Camille." At the Colonial Theater last night, where Miss Le Gallienne gave "Camille" its latest premiere, the acting was applauded and the story was strong enough to hold a sizeable audience until the final death-bed scene.

* * *

"Swing Your Lady" will not come to the Shubert Theater Monday night as was announced. The play about wrestling among the hill-billies, I am told, is in shape to move at once from Philadelphia to New York . . .

"Three Men on a Horse" will exceed the business accomplished at the Plymouth in its first two weeks during this, its third week. Alex Yokel, the play's producer, will be greeted with the good news when he arrives in town today.

Of course, his managerial staff is depending on capacity for tonight, Friday and Saturday nights. Which is not much to expect. Harvard-Yale game weekend is almost as big as New Year's Eve and Washington's Birthday evening combined.

* * *

Henrik Ibsen will have the posthumous honor of closing this week at the Colonial Theater, through Eva Le Gallienne's production of "Rosemersholm" and of opening next week at the same theater with the Alla Nazimova starring-vehicle "Ghosts."

Returning to the matter of minor records in the theater, started in this space some days ago with the unchallenged declaration that Shakespeare was being played for the first time in one Boston block on the talking screen and on the speaking stage, this reporter offers a Saturday evening of a Le Gallienne "Rosermsholm" and a following Monday evening of a Nazimova "Ghosts" as something new in Ibsen-ism. Is that something?

* * *

George White is grimly silent. His new "Scandals" will leave Boston with a record of two weeks very well spent. The show is pleasing large audiences, and the customers will be packed ten deep in the standing-room preserves on Saturday night. But Mr. White is too busy working at rehearsals and script-revisions to do much talking.

The oustanding hit producer among the revue-impresarios, Mr. White is certain that he will keep his record clean.

Kreisler Is Musicale Soloist

By RUTH MARSTERS

Opening its eighth season with Fritz Kreisler as soloist, the first concert of the Boston Morning Musicales, under the auspices of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy, took place yesterday morning in the Ballroom of the Statler Hotel.

The audience was of capacity size, and this in conjunction with Kreisler's incomparable [illegible] made of the affair an unqualified success.

From a critical [illegible] the art of Kreisler has been so thoroughly analyzed that there remains nothing new to be said. However this may be, the simplicity, warmth and sweetness of his playing are such that to hear him is always a fresh experience.

The program of yesterday's concert consisted of widely [illegible] performance a haunting and unforgettable charm.

Handel's Sonata in D major which opened the program was followed by Mendelssohn's Concerto in E minor. The [illegible] group consisted of "Cavatina" and "Shepherd Madrigal" by Kreisler, Rimsky-Korsakov's "Hymn to the Sun" from "Coq D'Or," de Falla's 'Jota" and Kreisler's arrangement of de Falla's Spanish Danse.

It is Kreisler's preoccupation with the musical idea rather than violin virtuosity, his inimitable manner of phrasing and delicate shading of tonal color that make such works glow with new beauty in his hands.

Carl Lamson again proved an able and sensitive accompanist.

Lawes' 'Over the Wall' to Be Filmed Soon

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Nov. 21—So many inquiries have come to this desk asking when "Over the Wall," Warden Lewis Lawes' widely read book, would be filmed that I telephoned Hal Wallis for a little information.

Louella O. Parsons

Hal says that within five weeks, at the latest, the prison story will be in production with James Cagney playing the hero.

Cagney is certainly popular—and what's more he continues to be a favorite with both men and women. He is the type, apparently, the public likes—rough and ready, and a down-to-earth attitude.

Lloyd Bacon, who had a nice trip to New York and who has secured a divorce since he made a picture, does the directorial job for Warner Brothers.

Censorship, notwithstanding, the stage will produce "The Postman Always Rings Twice." The movies are not so optimistic and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has entirely discarded the idea of bringing James M. Cain's book to the screen. The stage production will have a complete Hollywood cast.

Jack La Rue, now in the Eddie Cantor picture, travels to New York as soon as he finishes and there is talk that Frank Fay will have one of the important roles. An effort was made to sign Bruce Cabot, but his movie engagements will not permit him to accept the offer.

MGM is probably wise to forget "The Postman Always Rings Twice" because it couldn't be filmed without an avalanche of criticism.

I Want You Only

By Elenore Meherin

SYNOPSIS

For four years Nell Doran and Richard Calhoun have been in love. Four years they have waited for the "break" which would bring about the fulfillment of their dreams of happiness—marriage. But, three years out of college, Ricky has no job. Meantime, Ned Hamilton, junior partner of the firm which employs Nell, has entered the lists for her hand. Independence, a luxurious home, a husband to cherish her, all were hers if she would but say yes. It would be an escape from the terrible uncertainty of life and from the drab home dominated by her stepfather. But Nell holds to her faith in Ricky. One night, Ricky, discouraged, resolves that he cannot justifiably hold Nell any longer. He tells her that he will never see her again. Weeks pass and Nell hears no word from him. Her sister Emily, the family drudge, decides to leave home. The decision further clouds Nell's chances of happiness, for her need at home becomes doubly important. Nell, driven to distraction by Ricky's silence, decides to see him. "We have a right to our happiness," she says, and begs him to marry her. Ricky hesitates because of his financial status but he finally weakens and they plan to wed, secretly, the following Saturday. Nell takes her sister Emily into her confidence. "You'll never do it! You haven't the sand," Emily tells her.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"Mom's sick," Nell said, "I'm not going to leave her—except occasionally. I can't. But you're right. I mean to live. I'll be burned at the stake before I'll give Ricky up. Em, you've got to help us. You're to say I'm visiting you. Any time. Whenever I'm not at home, I'm visiting you.

In the midst of their conversation, Elizabeth Marsden swept into the room. Swept was the word. She was a plain, lanky woman with sandy hair, a long nose and oily skin.

But she had a royal languid manner. She gave Emily orders, then bowed graciously to Nell.

After a few moments she [illegible] her furs and sat down with [illegible] holder on the [illegible] painted kitchen stool.

She said, [illegible] "So you're little Nell and you're terribly in love? You needn't blush. Emily has told me. I think it's sweet and exciting. You're a fool if you wait.

"It's just as I told Emily when she said she couldn't go to California with us. Oh, hasn't Emily told you?

"I'll probably be transferred to the West Coast store. It's a big promotion. Mr. Marsden, being [illegible], can get by anywhere.

She Worries

"[illegible] want Emily to come along. She worries about her family just as you are worrying. There's no sense to it.

"You girls were brought up to think self-sacrifice a virtue. As a matter of truth, it's an ignominious and very futile weakness. You never rightly serve another when you rob yourself.

"We disturb the nice balance of life when we give away the things we need for our own self development.

"We become the accomplices of the cheater and the parasite.

"Did it ever occur to you that it is sinful waste for the worthwhile individual to cripple his own life by bearing on his back the incompetent and the helpless?

"If we had proper courage we'd let them starve!

"Then, at least, the better among us would have rich, clean, unhampered lives. This is a glorious world, but we've got to reach out to it freely and happily before its treasures will be piled in our arms.

"If you are carrying such burdens on your back that you look down always to the darkness how will you know the sun is shining, and for you?

"Emerson said it all—'Free must the scholar be, free and brave.' The same applies to every craft and calling. Those only help the world who first and most completely help themselves."

"That's putting it tartly," said Em when her employer was gone. "A sap [illegible] write it [illegible] heart and say it to yourself a hundred times a day."

"Pretty [illegible] if you're asking [illegible]," was all Nell [illegible] matter. She felt [illegible].

* * *

Friday at noon she had lunch with Ricky. [illegible] said Nell [illegible] want to marry [illegible] I fear [illegible] something [illegible] sweetheart [illegible] from me [illegible] across the table [illegible] pay you back [illegible] and the [illegible] down at her plate [illegible]

"You're Sweet"

He [illegible] a deep [illegible] her hand and said [illegible] You're sweet. You're the sweetest and the dearest [illegible]

She packed her suitcase that night. She scattered [illegible] It was all done up [illegible]

Saturday dawned [illegible] every [illegible] seen on [illegible] A [illegible] word [illegible] make pancakes [illegible] them. So did Henry M[illegible]. She wanted everyone to be [illegible] fill the house with laughter. This was to be her happy day.

At a quarter of eight her mother had not appeared.

"[illegible] not up," said her stepfather curtly.

"Don't you feel well, Mom?"

Mom looked at the pale girl [illegible] "Not very [illegible] in bed. I'll bring you [illegible]

Must She Wait

Nell went back to the kitchen [illegible] poached an egg, cut toast in [illegible] with dots of [illegible] around the edge.

While she was preparing the breakfast she wondered what was going to happen.

Would she have to put off the plans for her marriage?

She was almost weeping. She saw Ricky's face radiant with expectation [illegible] he would [illegible] her with [illegible]

[illegible] Mom, what IS [illegible] You [illegible] a doctor [illegible]

"[illegible] are you worse today?"

"The mornings are [illegible] I'll feel better later."

Candid Camera Hat Discoveries

By ANNICE BRINK

FABRIC HATS that sit lightly and prettily over the brow make their appearance just about as winter gets under way . . . they're distinctly about-towners . . . and some go on into the evening for the festive, though informal, date. Above, Miss Barbara Field of Chestnut Hill models a high favorite, the Tyrolean, of belting ribbon, with a young cuff brim and a fluffy fur fancy. It's under four dollars. See caption below for shopping information.

BLACK SATIN is completely feminine, from its unusual cuff crown to the Gallic bow knotted with a kolinsky tail, and the chenille-dotted veil. As well as being a nice complement to afternoon frocks, it can serve with your jacketed dinner outfit. Around five dollars.

CRISP LINES and a flaunting top-knot bow make this belting ribbon bonnet an all-day town hat, for it can alter its mood with the frock. Around five dollars. For shopping information on hats, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her.

Mrs. Culbertson

Drawing A Parallel

By MRS. CULBERTSON

Mr. Culbertson is much given to drawing parallels between the game of Contract Bridge, and life.

Borrowing from his style, I might point out that in Bridge, as in life, one must resist temptation.

The declarer in today's hand knew how to choose, and was fittingly rewarded.

South dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

One of these is the ubiquitous finesse. There they lie in waiting, these A Q, K J and other combinations, begging to be taken, and woe to him who cannot choose between the false and the true!

North:
♠ A J
♡ J 9 8 4 2
♢ 8 4
♣ K J 6 2

West:
♠ Q 4 3
♡ K Q 7 6
♢ K 6 5 2
♣ 9 4

East:
♠ 10 9 6 5 2
♡ A 5
♢ 10 9
♣ Q 10 8 7

South:
♠ K 8 7
♡ 10 3
♢ A Q J 7 3
♣ A 5 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♢	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 N T	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 N T	Pass	Pass	Pass

Since both his four-card suits had been bid, West chose the club nine for his opening lead.

Declarer gave considerable thought to his first play. Study of his resources disclosed that nine tricks were by no means sure. The opening lead under the Rule of Eleven was clearly not the fourth best, and strongly indicated that East held the queen and ten well guarded.

Therefore, not only would the club finesse lose, but an invaluable entry to his own hand, the club Ace, be removed.

On this reasoning, he played dummy's King to the first trick. A diamond finesse to the Jack was the next play, and when West properly held off with his King, the spade finesse was taken to dummy's A J.

This was correct play because declarer could not be sure of five diamond tricks. The spade Jack held, and the Ace was played. Another diamond finesse followed which West won.

But South still had his Ace of clubs for entry and the defenders could take only four tricks altogether, one diamond and three hearts.

Treatment of Stomach Ulcer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

ULCER of the stomach is also known as "gastric ulcer" and "peptic ulcer." It is an annoying disturbance. Though the actual cause is not known, we are familiar with the many factors which contribute to its formation.

Peptic ulcer is a common ailment of middle life. It is usually associated with faulty eating habits and a general lack of resistance to infection and disease. In many cases it can be traced to some center of infection, such as diseased teeth, tonsils or nasal sinuses.

A well-known stomach specialist once said that "gastric ulcer is not in reality a local disease of the stomach." He meant that the disturbance although located in the stomach, is really due to some constitutional weakness. The same physician pointed out that ulcer is influenced by diet, climate, race and the state of the nervous system.

DUODENUM ULCER

Peptic ulcer is the term used, not only for ulceration of the stomach, but also of the duodenum. The duodenum is the first part of the small intestine, connecting the gut with the stomach. Due to certain changes, a small portion of the mucous membrane lining of the stomach or duodenum loses its vitality. Pretty soon there is inflammation and ulceration follows that.

The victim of this affliction complains of pain in the pit of the stomach. These attacks come on after meals. Some foods are more likely to cause it than others. In the advanced form the symptoms are quite pronounced and sometimes alarming. The sufferer complains of severe pain and vomits material which may contain fresh blood. In some cases, too, blood may be seen in the stools.

During an attack, the patient may be so restless as to toss from side to side. The knees and thighs are drawn up to lessen the pressure on the inflamed stomach. The sufferer takes short, rapid breaths, almost panting in a severe case. He appears acutely ill, and, if it is regarded necessary, is quite willing to submit to an immediate operation.

FOLLOW SIMPLE RULES

Fortunately, not all cases of peptic ulcer have symptoms quite so severe. Nor does every case require operation. The observance of a few simple rules of conduct will bring cure in most instances.

Some patients obtain relief by eating at more frequent intervals and by the taking of alkalis. But such relief is usually only temporary.

There must be strict adherence to the diet outlined by your physician. The diet should be simple and free from fried and greasy foods, pepper, spices and other condiments, and excessive quantities of salt.

Italy's Best Friend Is Mother, After All

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

There are only five continents in this world and three of them are boiling over. Europe, Africa and Asia are all tangled up like sweethearts in a rumble seat.

Mussolini has asked for silence and respect. But all they will give him is silence.

Japan is doing the same thing to China that Italy is doing to Ethiopia. It is biting off more than it can chew. And refuses to go on a diet.

Japan is now ripping up the bamboo goal posts, while England wears its monocle on the blind side.

Fifty-two nations are lined against Italy, which can only sing, "Your mother is your best friend after all."

R. S. V. P. RULES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received a formal invitation to a wedding, as well as to the wedding breakfast. Since the wedding is to take place out of town, it will be impossible for me to attend.

However, I'm not certain of the correct form for the letter which I shall write to the bride's parents declining this invitation and would appreciate your advising me as to how it should be worded.

I believe that [illegible] for me to write a [illegible] even though I have already personally advised the groom that it will be impossible for me to be present. Am I correct in this?

B.

Your invitation to the wedding and to the wedding breakfast is formal, and so your acknowledgment must be formal. It is not necessary to acknowledge the formal invitation to the ceremony, but the wedding breakfast invitation must be acknowledged.

And the fact that you have informed the groom that you are not able to go to the wedding is not enough—your invitation is sent by the parents of the bride, and it is they who must receive the acknowledgment.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This Girl Knows Her Own Mind

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A long standing illness became very acute, and obliged me to go to a dry climate which is really a desert.

Perhaps I was unnaturally sensitive over being a victim of T. B. and I left without any goodbyes to my friends.

I cared a good deal about a certain girl, but had never made real love to her—at least we were never engaged. She is 25 years old.

In some way she discovered my address and began to write to me. I think it was her letters and the love she confessed which did more for me than the dry climate. She wants to come to me, and has suggested that we be married, and that she devote herself to taking care of me. I hesitate to accept this from her, though it would make life a Heaven on earth.

The financial part of the arrangement could be managed, as we both have a little.

WALTER VON L.

As the girl knows all about your illness, and is of an age where a woman is supposed to know her own mind, why should she not do the thing which she is sure will make her happy, especially since the financial part of the arrangement will be taken care of.

This girl will probably rely on her own judgment and make her own decisions in the matter. The best of luck to you

MADGE WORRIES ABOUT PHILIP'S REACTION

CHAPTER 504

MY SISTER-IN-LAW'S face immediately reflected my own uneasiness as I voiced my wonderment about Noel's correspondence with his father.

"It doesn't seem possible that Noel wouldn't write to his father," she said.

"After all" she continued, "even if Mr. Veritzen has been dictatorial about it, he's giving Noel and Mary a most gorgeous honeymoon. Even if Noel feels resentment over his father's objections to the marriage, I am sure Mary would have sense enough to urge a 'bread and butter' letter upon her new husband.

Yet she doesn't mention having written one, although she specifies all the cards she has sent here. Of course, I haven't opened your letter yet. Perhaps—do you feel strong enough to read it?"

CAUSE FOR OFFENSE

"I'm not strong enough to endure the baffled curiosity of not reading it," I told her with a smile that masked the real anxiety as to Noel's possible epistolary neglect of his father. I knew, no one better, the overweening sensitiveness and "touchiness" of Philip Veritzen, and that if his son and Mary had not written him, he would be deeply offended. He acquiesced in the arrangement with the attorney for the telegrams, but now that the epistolary ban had been lifted, it would be a serious matter indeed, if he should learn that Mary and Noel had written to us at the farmhouse, but had ignored him.

Shall I go down now and get your mail, Margaret?" my sister-in-law asked "I don't know that I'm going to permit you to read them all -"

"If they're the usual run, I can very well postpone them," I said caustically. "But I do want to see Mary's letter as soon as possible. And—Harriet—w'l you ask Lillian to watch over the telephone. If Philip Veritzen telephones and asks if we've heard from the honeymooners, he must be answered in the negative until we're sure that he has had a letter from them."

PHILIP SENDS FLOWERS

"We've already attended to that," she said with a smile "Mr Veritzen has telephoned every day about you, and there are flowers enough from him downstairs to stock a conservatory. Each time he has telephoned, he has asked if we have heard from Noel and Mary, and of course, at first our answers were negative—and truthful.

But there was something so insistent about his queries, that Mrs. Underwood and I decided we would continue to answer in the negative and make counter queries of him until he owned to having received a letter. Then, a day later we would coyly acknowledge the receipt of one. Aren't we Machiavelian, though?"

"You certainly deserve the diplomatic crown of laurel," I told her with mind much relieved. "I might have known you would think of everything."

"We have to," she said "When the general is wounded, lesser officials have to function as best they may."

She waved a saucy hand at me, gave me an affectionate smile and went swiftly out of the door, to appear again almost immediately with a heap of mail which she put in three orderly piles upon my bed.

"Unsealed—probably advertisements," she said, "business letters, by the envelope addresses - and personal. Mary's is on top."

MARY'S LETTER

I pushed the unsealed letters away, ran through the business envelopes and handed them to Harriet with a smiling "tomorrow" and tore open the personal letters, glancing at the signature of each.

"There's not one which I feel like reading today," I said, "except Mary's, of course."

I picked up the envelope with Mary's characteristic chirography sprawling over it, and felt a homesick pang at the sight of the familiar writing. My husband's winsome niece had made a very secure place for herself in my heart during her sojourn with us, and I knew that this feeling of something lacking in my days because of Mary's absence would not leave me for a long time to come.

With a conventional "excuse me," to Harriet, I slit the envelope, drew out and unfolded the letter and read the first words

CUDDLE TOYS PATTERN 836

WHAT a welcome these cunning pets will receive in any child's home.

They are three of the most popular members of Laura Wheeler's large toy family, and a favorite with the needlewoman who makes them as well as the youngster who plays with them.

There are only two pieces to each, with only the ears, jacket and blanket separate. That means you can easily make one in an evening. "You see, my baby had the croup"

A night operator in a little telephone exchange outside of Providence, R. I. recently received a letter from a grateful mother thanking her for sustained efforts in trying to reach a doctor late one night.

The letter closed: "You see, my baby had the croup, and, while we were doing all we could, it was a great comfort to know you were trying to get our message delivered. It turned out all right, and we are deeply grateful to you".

It is easy to picture the scene. A young couple with their first baby, and its first attack of croup. The sharp alarming cough, the labored breathing. The hurried call to the doctor. And then a great feeling of relief, knowing help was coming. To be sure, certain forms of croup may not be dangerous, and the little things which may be done while waiting for the doctor may bring ease and comfort.

When help is needed, it is needed fast and urgently. And if such times come, nothing can take the place of your own telephone, ready for your instant use.

A True Incident

The letter quoted is in the files of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, and there are hundreds more like it. Every day, people are facing emergencies, and are turning to the telephone as the fastest, surest way of meeting them.

For Telephone Information

You can order a telephone, or obtain information about telephone service, in any one of three ways: In person — By telephone — By mail.

If you wish to call your telephone business office from a public telephone, the call is free. Just ask the operator for "Telephone Business Office", and your nickel will be returned to you.

Walter Niedballa Reveals:

POOR PEASANTS GLAD TO DIE

Welcome Executioners After O. G. P. U. Cruelty

Walter Niedballa was one of a group of 48 mechanics who, in 1933, were induced to go to Russia and to take all their equipment and savings with them. All of them were especially trained at a Soviet-controlled school in Brooklyn, N. Y., for service in the Soviet.

Upon arrival in Russia, all were swindled out of their savings and equipment. One was murdered and another driven to suicide. Like most of the others, Niedballa was returned penniless to the United States.

Neidballa has prepared a series of articles showing precisely what happened to him and his 47 associates as victims of the "Soviet slave traffic." The fourth article appeared Wednesday in the Boston Evening American. The fifth article follows.

By WALTER NIEDBALLA

Our American Commune had an early opportunity to witness a demonstration of Soviet justice.

The Kremlin had promulgated its famous decree punishing by death the theft of grain from collective or state farms. One evening a big trial was staged in the dining room of the Alexandrovsk state farm.

Walter Niedballa

The presiding judge was an old woman. She was flanked by two Communists sitting with her on the bench. Waiting upon the court were several agents of the O. G. P. U.

Three peasants were put on trial. They were charged with stealing government grain. They listened stolidly to the indictment.

The three defendants admitted they had filled their pockets with rye. They claimed that they had nothing to eat and were tempted by the only chance to make a meal.

Then a Communist witness arose to testify against them. He declared that he had bought a sack of grain from the men. It was clear that this was a frame-up by the O. G. P. U.

The three men had no defender. But their fate had been sealed by the Communist party before the trial. They were condemned to be shot.

The prisoners who were to be shot stood up to hear the sentence. They took it with a smile and a sigh of relief. It made me shudder.

They apparently felt that execution was preferable to lingering death in a penal camp.

On the way back from the trial I casually asked Comrade Wilga what would happen to the prisoners. I knew that any display of sympathy for the victims would make me liable to suspicion of being a counter-revolutionist.

Comrade Wilga explained that the three men would be taken out for a walk by the O. G. P. U. guards, and unexpectedly be shot from behind.

This travesty of a trial taught us, Americans, an unforgettable lesson.

Many of our group had fulminated in the United States against "capitalist" justice.

They now bowed their heads in shame upon witnessing the kind of justice workers and peasants get from the Communist satraps.

The Stalin dictatorship could not last a day without the O. G. P. U organization, which is the secret police, the sheriffs, the judges, the jury, the executioners, and the undertakers, all in one.

So intimately were our Communist chiefs intertwined with the OGPU that the majority of our men lived in dread of being framed for an incautious remark or even some constructive criticism.

All the creative fire which we had brought to Russia, all the initiative which we were eager to develop, all the experience which we had accumulated in America, were extinguished and nullified in the atmosphere of terror.

It was the summer of 1933. There was expectation of American recognition of the Soviet government.

American newspapers which occasionally fell into our hands carried reports of Soviet progress, of Communist triumphs on the industrial front, of Stalin's reputed successes in the collectivization of agriculture.

What we saw with our own eyes belied these semi-official reports. Although we were not in the famine zone, the evidences of that catastroph reached us in growing volume.

Our own plight seemed slight indeed in comparison with the tragedy of the Russian people.

(The sixth in the series of Walter Niedballa's articles on the true conditions in Soviet Russia will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

PRISONER OF THE OGPU -:- BY GEORGE KITCHIN

CHAPTER 56

But I was again doomed to disappointment, for an electrician, a stool-pigeon, was recommended for the job by the secret intelligence department and left in my place the next day.

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Harvesting time in Soviet Russia finds these Russian peasants off to the wheat farms which are mostly controlled by the government. Author George Kitchin tells about them in his "Prisoner of OGPU" series.

Once more I was thwarted. My only compensation for the disappointment was the food which had been furnished me for my journey and which served as the piece de resistance for a supper with my room-mates.

One of them even brought vodka to console me.

With the advance of winter, watchfulness was increased to forestall escapes. Sentries patrolled the barbed-wire enclosure and there was a guard at the gates who let prisoners out only if they had a special permit.

I had such a permit and frequently went to town trying to re-establish my old connections.

But even during my short absence, most of my friends had been either arrested and exiled or transferred to work in remote provinces.

The peasant who had been willing to drive me to Viatka had been arrested for seditious propaganda.

A year ago when there was a chance for escape I lacked the necessary money; now, when I had the money, there was nobody to help me.

Escapes in the Uftug district were more frequent now that the swampy ground was frozen, but on the other hand we, members of the office staff, knew that most of the fugitives were caught and that only one in 50 of the attempted escapes succeeded.

About the middle of September, 1930, a telegram from Moscow advised our office that some equipment for the Ukhtinsky Geological Expedition was stuck at Archangel and that it was impossible to ship it up the Petchora River, as originally intended.

Our camp was instructed to arrange for the transportation of this material over the winter route.

Immediately a conference of engineers and transportation specialists was called. The shipment weighed about five hundred tons and consisted of steam boilers, well-drilling machinery, electric motors, etc.

It had to be delivered to the Ukhtinsky-Petchorsky Camp, as the geological expedition was called, at Ukhta, some 750 kilometers from Kotlas.

All the engineers at the conference agreed on the impossibility of transporting the material in the ordinary manner.

The peasants' sleds had a capacity not exceeding half a ton, while some of the machines weighed over five tons. The deep snow and bad roads made doubling up of horses impossible.

After a long conference the transportation specialists came to the conclusion that the shipment could be moved only with the help of tractors, pulling specially constructed sledges.

It would first be necessary to construct a roadway of packed snow and ice.

A long telegram was sent to Moscow in which it was pointed out that a special roadway over the ice would have to be constructed and that the job would require several thousand prisoners and would take several months.

The telegram remained unanswered for a long time and we began to think that the project had been abandoned.

Then Moscow suddenly informed us that the materials would be transported by means of tractors as we had suggested, that 25 tractors were being shipped to Kotlas, that the geological material had already left Archangel bound for Kotlas, and that "Comrade Sidorov," a special plenipotentiary, was leaving Moscow for Kotlas, to take charge of the transportation from that point on.

It was clear that the enterprise was doomed to failure if the icy roadway was not built.

Plans for the latter were urgently taken in hand and the main details worked out, comprising the installation of fuel stations and of repair shops en route, the establishment of communication relays by mounted messengers, etc.

The plan was presented to Sidorov on his arrival.

Sidorov was tall and slender, looked energetic, had a red nose and sunken gray eyes. He would have nothing of our plans.

"What is all this for?" he questioned. "An icy roadway, indeed! Not at all necessary, we shall move it over the river-bed, simply.

"Oh, don't worry, the ice will hold it all right. Where there's a will there's a way. Let's have less discussion and more action. We'll send a special snow-sweeper ahead of the tractors.

"You don't know a thing about it. These methods have been used in Canada, and if the bourgeois can do it, we shall surely succeed in doing it even better.

"What we need, citizens, is whole-hearted co-operation and less sabotage."

The last phrase accentuated the underlying realities. "Less sabotage!" So that's it. All the assembled "citizens" had had plenty of experience in these matters at the time of their cross-examinations by the OGPU.

Sidorov's equipment consisted of a large supply of energy, self-reliance, and ignorance. No obstacles existed for him.

"We must get the materials to Ukhta without fail," he announced in a tone allowing no contradiction. "It is a matter of paramount importance to the state.

"Preliminary investigations show the existence of tremendous supplies of oil in the Ukhta district. It will be a second Baku.

"More than that, it is destined to become the world's greatest oil-field. It is physically beyond the reach of foreign intervention. And in the face of all this, you make cumbersome plans. Enough!

"We'll take it over the ice. First over the Vychegda, then over the Vym River. Understand?"

The arguments and manner of talking were quite familiar to the engineers. But since the absurdity of the idea made ultimate failure inevitable, our transportation specialists composed a detailed report outlining their recommendations.

They predicted the failure of Sidorov's plan and stated that they were ready to obey orders, but refused to accept the responsibility.

Sidorov was incensed when he saw the report.

"Oh, you are ready to obey instructions, are you?" he cried. "You go to the devil, all of you. I shall manage without you."

Sidorov was one of those ignorant headstrong workmen who had made a career in the Communist system. He followed his own fixed idea blindly, in spite of all obstacles.

The engineers and transportation specialists whose help had been rejected, breathed a sigh of relief. Sidorov would have managed without them. Wonderful! They had not expected such good luck.

Sidorov started work the next morning. He found a tractor specialist at the Kotlas Transfer Station shops, Ralenko, a young Ukrainian engineer who had been sentenced for his open criticism of conditions at the Kharkov Tractor Works, after he had returned there from his educational trip to the Ford plant in the U. S. A.

Ralenko was about 35, an able worker and quite an expert on tractors. As a doctor makes his diagnosis after examining the patient, so he inspected tractors, listened to them working, and then made an unfailing analysis of their defects.

Sidorov entrusted Ralenko with the inspection and repair of the incoming tractors and himself began to select a large staff of workers. He organized and dispatched a detachment of surveyors, selected sites for the storage of fuel, appointed foremen.

The very first tests showed that the kerosene was of such bad quality that gasoline would have to be used. Gasoline and lubricating oils were urgently requisitioned from Moscow.

The arriving tractors were in very bad shape: they were poorly assembled, partly broken and had no spare parts. They were repaired and reassembled at Ralenko's shop, which kept working day and night.

Five of the tractors were sacrificed in order to replace defective parts of the others.

At the same time 50 tractor sledges were built, as well as a special snow-plow of Sidorov's own design. The sledges were large and heavy, reinforced with strips of iron.

N. E. BUSINESS FEARS TAX RISE

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

It is interesting to note that Harvard University does not propose to celebrate its Tercentenary, the observance of which has just begun, with more bricks and mortar. One reason, perhaps, is that there is comparatively little room left for building purposes. The other is that the new president, Dr. Conant, has different ideas.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The announcement has just been made how Harvard intends to celebrate. The first way is by the establishment of certain "University Professorships," to cost five hundred thousand dollars apiece, which shall further research in no one particular department but in the no-man's land on the frontiers of knowledge. Dr. Conant points out that it is by such pioneering in scholarship that there exist in various places in the world universities that have out-lived the governments under which they were established, and are still going strong after all the vicissitudes of time. But that does not at the moment interest me, particularly as the University frankly admits that building up such chairs will probably take several years.

Scholarships Planned For Boys From Every State

Of more immediate interest, particularly to all youths and their parents who look forward wistfully but with increasing dubiety to attending Harvard, is Dr. Conant's tercentennial scholarship plan. This plan proposes to give scholarships to boys from every state in the union. Already Harvard (like Technology) has made considerable progress in regional scholarships, with the purpose of avoiding parochialism in the student body. Furthermore, says Dr. Conant:

"There could be no more auspicious occasion for a demonstration of faith in the value of endowed universities for the future of the nation. During the years to come, it is possible that universities which have the maximum degree of independence from governmental support will fulfil a role of special significance in the maintenance of intellectual freedom."

The proposed scholarships will be considered as prizes to be competed for by the boys of the highest all-round ability from every economic and social level in each state. They will not be restricted to needy boys.

Stipends of $1000 Up To End Outside Work

The important point, however, is that the scholarship stipends will not be restricted to $150 or $200, such as were usually available when I was an undergraduate, 30 years ago. The stipends will run from $1000 the first year to $1200 for later years, every scholarship to be granted for the four-year term, depending on the first year record and subsequent scholastic good behavior. For each scholarship about $25,000 of capital will be needed.

The point is, says Dr. Conant, that under recent conditions it is increasingly difficult, almost impossible, for a student to earn a living wage by extra-curricular work and at the same time do his intellectual work properly.

He considers the traditional and proverbial gain in morale, independence, responsibility, and ability to take it on the chin, far less important than health, freedom from anxiety, security, leisure, and even a little comfort. For the ideal of the new Harvard, above all, is to turn out not moderately competent, good common-or-garden, run-of-the-mine Harvard men—such as we graduated in my day—but Intellectuals with a capital I.

Aim Is to Produce Aristocracy of Talent

In a word, I suppose, Brain Trusters, Aristocracy of Talent, the kind of men who go from the Oxford Union into the ante-room that eventually leads to Parliament and positions of high responsibility in the world of affairs, politics, and even science.

And so the 65,000 financially responsible alumni are being asked to remember the 300th anniversary of the oldest college in North America by giving money, not to build buildings but to build men. Probably Conant will get what he wants. Harvard presidents usually do.

The question is, whether, if he gets it, the results for Harvard and the nation will be any better than the old way of making Harvard graduates a kind of superior cross section of our American life, on a somewhat higher level of competence and training, perhaps, but emphatically NOT an intellectual aristocracy.

Grandson of T.R. Says Not Guilty

SNIPING IS CHARGED

Cornelius V. Roosevelt, 20, son of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Peter deFlores, 21, fellow M. I. T. sophomore, pleaded not guilty in East Cambridge court today to a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

The cases were continued until next Tuesday for a hearing, by Judge Robert Walcott.

The youths are alleged to have peppered Memorial drive auto traffic for an hour last night with shots from an air revolver from a window of Tech's exclusive Number 6 Club.

They were traced to the third-floor room by Metropolitan police officers after pellets struck the officers' cruising car.

The officers had gone to the scene on complaint of John Barry, of Claflin street, Belmont, who was struck by a pellet as he drove past the fraternity house.

3 HOURS IN STATION

The two youths spent three hours in the Central square police station in Cambridge before they were able to raise the bail of $500 each which was set in their case.

ADMIT SHOOTING

Police said both admitted frankly that they had been engaged in the shooting, but explained they did not believe the shots could do any harm at the distance from which they were fired.

Police confiscated the air revolver, which, they said, was high powered and fired a pellet about twice as large as ordinary BB shot.

Attempting to raise bail, the youths found checks would not be accepted and could raise only a few cents in cash. Friends also were unable to furnish cash.

Young Roosevelt was allowed to telephone his father at Long Island. He was advised to call a Boston attorney and the latter arrived at 10:30 p. m. with the necessary cash.

The deFlores youth is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis deFlores and prepared for college at Pomfret school. Young Roosevelt prepared at Groton school.

While Metropolitan police were reported as considering the affair more or less an undergraduate prank they said the boys would be arraigned in court today.

Perfect Y. W. C. A. Girl

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Studies must come before dances, says Miss Lorraine O'Hara, as she "buries her nose" in a book. Being chosen the typical "Y" girl of Cambridge means a high reputation to live up to. So Miss O'Hara is "boning" hard for those next examinations.

Job Too Late

The WPA job he was waiting came too late for William E. Bisnaw, 59, who had been living in a shack in Riverside drive, Dedham. As notification came that he was to report for work he was found dead.

Czech Legation Stoned

Warsaw, Nov. 21 (AP)—Eleven windows in the legation of Czechoslavia were smashed today in the course of an anti-Czech demonstration. Police dispersed the crowd.

U. S. Spending May Explode Hopes

By ALAN C. FRAZER

New England businessmen are confident of brighter days, but fear Raw Deal spending, taxing and interference will explode their hopes.

They are optimistic about their own ability to stay out of the red, but would like to drive those alphabetic spectres out of the background.

They have been pulling themselves up by their own bootstraps, developing new products, finding new markets, and they believe they could fight their way back to normal if they could look forward to less interference and lower taxes.

This they revealed today as they met, nearly 1000 strong, at the Hotel Statler in the tenth annual New England Conference sponsored by the New England Council.

President Winthrop L. Carter of the council, the only speaker at today's session except for the New England Governors, avoided reference to the administration's policies, stating that it was a policy of the council to steer clear of politics. He did, however, announce that pressure would be applied to reduce the tax burdens.

But in private talk the rank-and-file of the assembly freely bared their hopes and fears.

From Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut, and the industrial centers of Massachusetts, they brought the same attitude, with but few exceptions.

Hits Rail Control

Governor H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire told the gathering New Hampshire had not changed its mind about the New England railroads, in spite of the crisis in which the New Haven railroad finds itself, and will continue to demand that the New Haven and Boston & Maine be freed from domination by the Pennsylvania.

The New England Governors last December petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to cut the ties of stock ownership between these railroads and the Pennsylvania.

"There have been intimations of a change of opinion on the part of some states," said Gov. Bridges. "In New Hampshire and northern New England we intend to push this petition with the utmost vigor and with all the resources at our command."

This was Governors' Day and President Carter, who is president of the Nashua Gummed and Coated Paper Co. of Nashua, N. H., hailed with enthusiasm the co-operation of all six New England Governors in planning for the future of this section as a unit.

"Under their own signatures, in national advertising next month, these Governors will jointly declare that they are determined to maintain conditions favorable to the location and profitable operation of industry," he said.

Recreation will be a $[illegible] business next year, according to Colonel William A. Barron of Crawford Notch, N. H., and President Carter [illegible] that the states had jointly created a fund of $100,000 to be added to New England Council funds for advertising "the [illegible] summer playground."

Before the general session started the governors sat down with the New England Regional Planning Commission.

This includes through highways—scenic, uncongested and safe—careful preservation of all scenic historical and recreational spots, water purification, development of the Merrimack, Blackstone, Connecticut and other interstate river valleys, safe and well-patronized airlines and aids to marketing of farm products.

Share Improvement

"New England is sharing in the improved business reported generally in all parts of the country," said President Carter, in his address, opening the general session.

"In some industrial centers employment is at the highest level since 1929.

"Present conditions and the prospect immediately ahead are an invitation and a challenge to the managements of New England enterprises to be alert, progressive and aggressive.

"The program of the New England Council includes advertising New England as an industrial area, accompanied by a complete plan for more effective co-operation between our industries and the community in each New England city, continued pressure and local organization for reduction and control of public expenditures, so that our industries may not be handicapped by excessive tax burdens; and continued assistance to our agricultural interests for the better marketing of New England farm products."

Cruising Metropolit an Drive—a "Risky" Job — Officers Find

HUGH J. O'NEILL WILLIAM P. CROWE CORNELIUS ROOSEVELT PETER DE FLORES ATTORNEY GALVIN

Cruising along Metropolitan Drive these brisk fall evenings might be pleasurable to some folks, but these police officers, William P. Crowe and Hugh J. O'Neill, find it mighty 'risky.' They are 'victims' of pellets allegedly fired from an air revolver from the third floor window of Tech's exclusive number 6 Club by Cornelius V. Roosevelt, 20, son of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Peter de Flores, 21, both M. I. T. sophomores. The boys are shown with their attorney, Michael J. Galvin, in East Cambridge Court, where they pleaded not guilty to charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Ann Marsters

Discovery of the week: It is a book of songs, just brought to light from a dark, almost forgotten corner of the Handel and Haydn Society's library on Boylston street.

ANN MARSTERS

On the yellowed cover it reads: "The Young Ladies' Vocal Class Book for the Use of Female Seminaries and Music Classes. By George James Webb. 1853." And on the frontispiece is the explanation: "The selection of the Poetry has in every instance, been directed by a regard to its moral character."

There follows instance after instance of "selected" songs, but suddenly you come upon one that begins:

"I wish I was a butterfly
With nothing else to do
But taste of every pretty flower
And sip the honied dew."

Editor's Conscience Requires Reservations

Then, with what must have been a twitching conscience, the editor has added this footnote:

"If these words are found to be distasteful to any, the following is suggested for substitution:

"'I would not be a butterfly
And nothing do but rove,
I'd rather have a happy home
And all its inmates love'."

Tech Girls Gagged And Lose Last Word

At M. I. T. there are 50 girls studying engineering, and they spend a lot of time trying to invent gadgets that will lighten the housewives' work—even more. They believe that women, if trained, are more capable of inventing things for women than are men. They would all like to elaborate on the subject, but for some reason the girls, not the boys, are forbidden by the dean to make any comments for publication.

AUSTEN LAKE

Joe Louis Gives Record Interview: He Says 'Huh'

Austen Lake

THE SULKY LOOKING Negro boy, slender under his loose-fitting ulster, slouched through the South Station's sheepruns. There was nothing to stamp him as the world's most pitiless mauler, the fistic freak with reflexes of a jungle cat. His handshake was as limp as a fresh herring, his speech lazy, slurred and surly, his eyes heavy with boredom.

If Joe Louis possesses a spark of imagination, there is no outward sign, and when I said: "Joe, it is two years since you were in Boston last. There's been a great change in your world since then," he just grunted "Huh" and lapsed into wall staring.

He had come, two years ago, a nobody from nowhere, a tatterdemalion yellow boy with food problems and a background of tenement squalor. And yesterday he came in Oriental luxury, wealthy and the angel of dark deliverance. But he just said "Huh" and licked slack lips with a pink tongue.

Here is the perfect fighting animal, a man whose only gift is destruction, and one whom prankish nature has endowed with a perfect telegraph system between eye and muscle. Yet the greatest of his talents is the power to sleep standing up and store manhours of energy. He is, above anybody in the athletic business, immune to impressions, impervious to distraction and human static, so that once, before the Max Baer fight I asked him, "What do you think about when you are sitting on your fighting stool waiting for the bell?" And he had replied with a perplexed stare and the word, Nuthin' ".

I am convinced that such is the proper answer.

Where Louis Is Lucky

THIS IS NO SLUR on Louis. Because he has more of what it takes than any glove fighter in the ring. As instinctive as a leopard in action, he has the same slack lethargy in repose. And he is cut to the measure of only one thing—fist fighting.

In that sense he owes his good fortune to the circumstance of his mammy moving away from the gray-stubble fields of Mississippi, where he would have hoed his life away in the cotton rows, to Detroit, where there were settlement house gyms and a fighting chance.

Because, I believe there are other Joe Louises, Babe Ruths, Bill Tildens and athletic genii hidden away in the grassland regions of the country, with no inkling of their physical wealth. So that many a fine batting eye is wasting its sweetness on a factory binder or milling machine and many a potential fight champion is scraping gravy off lunchcart platters or tinkering with the gizzards of an auto.

Headlines of Futility

AMONG THE HEADLINES in today's news are three items on nonsense. One reads, "Police start drive on Boston bookies." A splendid moment for moral awakening—if such it is—when, after six months of meetings, the last New England race day ended at Narragansett, Tuesday.

Another says, "Ray Steele, wrestler, pins Levensky, boxer." Which is a futile attempt to compare the lethal qualities of the two sports in a mixed match. Levinsky, attempting to punch out Steele's daylights, lasted 30 seconds before the matman tied him up in a spider clutch. If Steele feels cocky about this—which I doubt—let him match his wrestling ability against any top grade waterpolo player in a regulation pool, and learn the sensation of coming up nine-tenths drowned. There's the ultra in all roughhouse sports.

Another reads "Strangler Lewis victor over Gus Sonnenberg." What detained you Ed?

Monument to Monopoly

A NEW YORK SPY INFORMS this pillar that the concrete sink-hole which is called the Long Island sports bowl, will be left to ruin by the elements. Thus passes another boom-time dream, when Madison Square financial angels were riding the skies and building a monopoly on boxing and wrestling production.

Located in a wilderness of traffic, remote from downtown centers, the Bowl was a flop from the start. A famine of boxers set in, the market collapsed, and then, most disastrous of all, Mike Jacobs, a smart promoter with an easy conscience for cutting ethical corners, came along to tie up the fight business and leave the dumb, docile Gardeneers holding the Bowl . . . or is it the bag.

It recalls that many architectural dreamers have suggested to Paul Bowser that he build himself a wrestling palace in South Boston, to which Paul's reply has been "Why should I build one, when I can buy one second-hand at hen house prices."

Irish Are Sweep's Weepers

NATIVE IRISHMEN PATRONIZE their Hospital Sweepstakes in proportion of 1 to 12, on the basis of prizes distributed according to geography. Of 2208 capital prizes, 1122 came to the U. S., 905 to Europeans outside of Ireland and only 181 to Free State residents . . . Word to the Rose Bowl committee: Don't do anything until you hear from Jack Heffernan of Lynn, ex-Brown athlete, who coached Green Mountain College at Poultney, Vt., through an undefeated season. Perfect match would be Spearfish Normal, also among the country's unbeaten and untied ten . . . One of the ironic sidelights on the minor league meeting at Dayton, O., is that Bob Quinn, future business head of the Braves, is there to buy or trade players for the Brooklyn Dodgers, of which he is still the office papa . . . John Roxborough, sleek and marcelled manager of Joe Louis, says his great worry is whether the crop of elegible heavyweights can keep up with Louis' appetite for mercenary brawling. Having already signed fights with Uscudon, Gastonago, Retzlaff and (momentarily) Schmeling, he is willing to give Sharkey a date in July. Roxborough adds, significantly, "After we get to be champions, we might not be so generous." Where does he get that "We" stuff

Kelly-Kelley Duel to Spice Saturday's H-Y Game

Both Ends, Both Good

YALE KELLEY NOTED FOR WIT

By Win Brooks

Theme of an ancient, slightly ribald ballad was an inquiry as to whether anybody present had seen Mister Kelly with his green necktie.

Nobody ever had any luck locating the guy, and, after the song had been sung around the world without success, the search finally died out, like the hunt for Charlie Ross.

It is extremely unlikely (although Harvard in its traditional, conservative fashion has not issued a formal statement) that any green neckties will be worn by Mr. Runyan's Harvards or Yales in Saturday's gridiron conflict.

Mr. Kelly of Harvard will stick to the conventional Crimson jersey.

Mr. Kelley of Yale will stick to the conventional blue.

RIGHT ENDS

And both will stick, literally, not only to their jerseys but in the minds of the 50,000 paying spectators of the ivy classic which remains the ivy classic, whether or not.

For the Kell(e)ys, my friends, with and without the second "e," are a very sweet pair of football players of the type for which Mr. Dick Harlow and Mr. Ducky Pond would swap their right arms to possess in duplicate throughout their squads.

Shaun Kelly of Harvard.

Lawrence M. Kelley of Yale.

Both play the right wing, both are among the East's outstanding ends.

A comparison brings to light only slight differences.

Mr. Kelly is captain of Harvard this year

Mr. Kelley won't be captain of Yale until next year (official forecast.)

And while Mr. Kelly of Harvard plays a grand game of football from every angle, Mr. Kelley of Yale not only plays a grand game but talks one as well.

GAMESTER

Shaun Kelly is the son of a Richmond gentleman farmer of the same name, and Richmond is in Massachusetts, not in Virginia.

He scales 180 pounds, according to latest statistics, is a good pass receiver, a speedster under punts and the hardest tackler on the team. When he tackles them, they stay tackled, and occasionally he stays tackled himself.

He knocked himself groggy in the Army game but was in there playing until Hedblom asked him where he was and learned to his dismay that he hadn't the vaguest idea

And once this season he was down so fast under a George Ford punt that he reached up and caught it.

Larry Kelley is a better pass receiver than Shaun Kelly, but his down-the-field work isn't quite as spectacular

They call him "The Great" Kelly, in part because of his sports and scholastic achievements; in part because of his cocky attitude on the field and his wise-crack baiting of opponents.

Most noted of his smart sayings came in the Yale-Princeton game last year when Yale tied the first knot in the Tiger's sensitive tail

Princeton still had hopes that the post-season agreement with Yale would be waived to allow a Rose Bowl trip, and the Tiger was fighting his heart out to win

He choked up and a pair of Princeton fumbles in quick succession resulted

It was following the second and a Yale recovery that Kelley the Great strolled nonchalantly across the scrimmage line to Tiger Captain Pepper Constable and remarked almost loudly enough to be heard in the stands

"I certainly hope they put a handle on that Rose Bowl for you fellows."

Maybe that won the ball game for Yale.

EVERYBODY

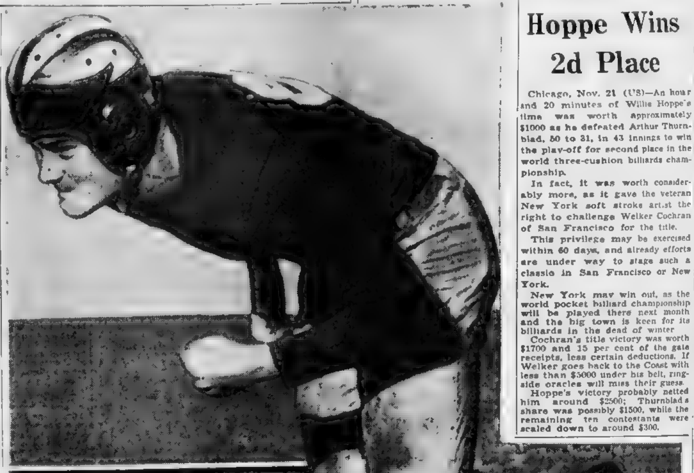
THESE KELL(E)YS



Shaun Kelly, veteran Harvard end, is far from a slouch himself as a wingman. He is primed for the historic Harvard-Yale battle at the Stadium Saturday.

Larry Kelley, Yale's loquacious and brilliant end, has sent word up to Boston, "Watch out Saturday, 'cause Yale and I are going to lick the Harvards."

Rally

The biggest and most complete football rally in Boston University's history will be held tomorrow evening, the night before the annual contest with Boston College, at the Boston Arena. Everything from speeches to dancing will be on the programme, with President Daniel L. Marsh of the university and E. Ray Speare, treasurer of the in-town institution, both giving addresses.

Coach Pat Hanley of the varsity grid team, and his staff, including Walt Holmer, Al Kawal and Ollie Olson, along with co-Captains Dick Van Iderstine and Warren McNamara, will represent the team. There will also alumni speakers, including several captains of past Terrier football teams. James M. Kelley of Pittsburgh, Pa., is chairman of the committee in charge.

Prince to Lead Exeter Eleven

Exeter, N. H., Nov. 21—George Prince of Rochester, N. Y., has been elected captain of next year's Exeter Academy football team. He is a big 197-pound tackle who earned his letter in the recent Andover game.

Prince came to Exeter for the first time this fall and it did not take him long to gain a place on the squad.

Games Wanted

The Shawmut Knights of Columbus football team of Dorchester desires games away from home Sunday, November 24, and Thanksgiving. Managers of semi-pro teams call Tom Scanlan, Geneva 3095.

MARTY DONOVAN STARS AT SALEM

By Will Connell

Salem's Witches are on the last leg of their 1935 grid journey. One test remains, with Beverly visiting Bertram Field on Thanksgiving.

Chances are that Salem can win that finale to polish off another successful campaign for Bill Broderick, and his Man Friday, Marty Donovan.

True, Salem lost to Everett and Peabody, by a point in each game, but the Witches made a good showing in both defeats and won over Lawrence, Newburyport, Marblehead, Bangor, Lynn English and Leominster.

Considering that this year's Salem team is the lightest there since Broderick moved in, the record is first class. Salem has been out-weighed in most of its games this year.

Not that Broderick complains. In fact, he says he'd rather have one of his good 150 pounders than any of the ace heavyweights of some schools.

The season has been one of personal triumph for Marty Donovan. His nephew, also named Marty, developed into one of the outstanding wings of the year.

Playing at right end, he was a top flight all around workman, and blocked at least one punt in every game. He weighs under 160, but stands an even six feet high and is scarcely 17 years old.

He'll fill out in another year or two to at least 180, for his frame is big. Carefully trained by Uncle Marty, the boy is a finished performer, and with a year in prep school will become a fine college end.

That year in prep school is necessary, you know, to give him a chance to mature. He's a senior and like other Salem youngsters is far from full development

Salem, perhaps the only city in the state to do this, allows any child over four years of age to enter grammar school. Thus they're graduating from high school at 15 and 16. Few Salem football players ever are as old as their average opponents.

Quarterback Art Litka, 155 pounder, is a good general, a fine left handed passer, good ball carrier and quick kicker, first rate defensive back and safety man, and perhaps the best blocker of the year

Halfbacks Alec Juralewicz, 165 and Stan Luska, 165, and fullback Norman Michaud, 155, complete the backfield. The halfbacks are juniors. Watch them go next year, Michaud at full back and Juralewicz continuing his brilliant running at left half.

TO REPLACE HOLY CROSS

Harlow Opening Wedge

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21—A Harvard-Georgetown football game for 1937 is under negotiation, it was reported here today.

Back to the peak group of the college grid world Georgetown is moving under the guidance of Coach Jack Hagerty.

The Hilltoppers, among the nation's best in the golden era when Lou Little coached there, skidded with the departure of the present Columbia teacher.

The loss of such a dynamic figure as Little naturally hurt grid spirit at Georgetown, and it's taken several years to build up.

The team this year has shown flashes, including an upset 13-0 over Chick Meehan's Manhattan eleven last Saturday as its best effort of the current schedule

'37 CARD

Next year the Georgetown card has University of Delaware, Shenandoah, Bucknell, N. Y. U., open date Oct. 31, University of West Virginia, Manhattan, Maryland and University of Miami

The schedule for 1937 tentatively has Harvard, Washington and Lee and Holy Cross meeting the Hilltoppers and would step the program up to major proportions. Georgetown also is said to be angling for a Big Ten foe for '37.

Harvard might be in receptive mood to Georgetown, with Holy Cross off its schedule.

Dick Harlow, present head coach of the Crimson, opened relations between Georgetown and Western Maryland back in the early days of his tenure with the Terrors when they were practically unknown.

A fine spirit of friendliness between Harlow and Georgetown grew from that point on. Georgetown, then at its football peak under Little, helped Harlow greatly in his efforts to give the Terrors a representative schedule

The Holy Cross-Georgetown date is definitely set, and Washington and Lee will give the Hilltoppers two Southern Conference foes, the other being Maryland.

Next fall Delaware, Shenandoah, Bucknell and West Virginia are added to the Georgetown slate, supplanting Richmond, Albright and Roanoke. And if present plans click, the 1937 card will be the most impressive for the Hilltoppers in many years.

Hoppe Wins 2d Place

Chicago, Nov. 21 (US)—An hour and 20 minutes of Willie Hoppe's time was worth approximately $1000 as he defeated Arthur Thurnblad, 50 to 31, in 43 innings to win the play-off for second place in the world three-cushion billiards championship.

In fact, it was worth considerably more, as it gave the veteran New York soft stroke artist the right to challenge Welker Cochran of San Francisco for the title.

This privilege may be exercised within 60 days, and already efforts are under way to stage such a classic in San Francisco or New York.

New York may win out, as the world pocket billiard championship will be played there next month and the big town is keen for its billiards in the dead of winter

Cochran's title victory was worth $1700 and 15 per cent of the gate receipts, less certain deductions. If Welker goes back to the Coast with less than $5000 under his belt, ringside oracles will miss their guess.

Hoppe's victory probably netted him around $2500; Thurnblad's share was possibly $1500, while the remaining ten contestants were scaled down to around $300.

12,750 Yale Game Tickets on Sale

With Harvard undergraduates grumbling over their allotments, 12,750 Harvard-Yale game tickets went on public sale at the H. A. A. today.

A full house of 57,750 persons in the Stadium Saturday appeared likely. Before the public sale began 45,000 tickets were sold.

Undergraduate grumbling, according to the Harvard Crimson, follows the placing of several hundred undergrads in the steel stands and the dooming of the freshmen to the colonnade.

All tickets placed on public sale are for seats behind the goal line, most of them in the steel stands. These are just as good as the majority of group allotments to graduates.

LOUIS BACKS WINSTON IN SHARKEY BOUT

BOMBER Trips to MAINE

'UNKNOWN' AT KELLEY'S

By Sam Cohen

Eddie "Unknown" Winston will have the moral, if not the personal, support of Joe Louis when he provides the test for Jack Sharkey in his first comeback bout at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Winston met Louis, who stopped off here before entraining for Maine to continue his exhibition tour, and believes that his meeting with the great Bomber would influence his chance of scoring a surprise triumph Friday when he faces the golden opportunity of his career.

Winston asked Louis to be present when he marched into action against Sharkey, but the latter's exhibition tour will probably make it impossible for him to be here for the bout.

SHARKEY O. K.

While his interview with Louis might have added confidence to Winston, Sharkey's comeback has taken on added enthusiasm following Jack Conway's exclusive interview with Louis in which the Bomber said he was anxious to face Sharkey in a bout in Boston.

Sharkey's comeback was influenced by the success of Louis and with prospects of cinching a match, Sharkey is more determined than ever to make an auspicious start.

Sharkey maintains he never felt better in his career and is weighing less than he did when he fought Primo Carnera in his last title bout.

"I'm not worried about any heavyweight in the world," Sharkey said after a last hot session at Buckley's gymnasium.

"If I was I would never have tried a comeback and challenged Joe Louis. I'll fire my opening gun by stopping Winston, and I only hope that Louis will be present to see it."

Speaking of knockouts, there should be plenty of heavyweights spilled on the Garden canvas tomorrow night.

THE PRELIMS

In the eight round semifinal Tiger Terry Warrenton, who got off the floor to knock out Clayton Settino, is out to prove it was no Sunday punch that dropped the Dorchester heavyweight.

In the six rounders Frankie Connelly, who has won all of his bouts by knockouts since joining Sharkey's stable, clashes with Joe Uzdavanis of Haverhill; Wade Lumpkin, a hard thumping heavyweight from Winston's camp, swaps punches with Al Minnehan of Brockton, and Matty Bloom, promising young Revere giant, meets Eddie Gates of Pittsfield.

The four rounders will see Dick Hogan of Charlestown, N. E. golden glove champion, in action for the first time as a professional heavyweight against Ralph Smith of Boston, while Sammy Fuller's budding young star Dante Yanetti, takes on Hunter Welch of Lowell.

Commerce to Hold Reunion

The annual reunion of the Boston High School of Commerce alumni will take place next Monday at the school on Avenue Louis Pasteur.

The reunion will take the form of a Civic Convention. The drill hall will be turned into an arena. It will be decorated with banners, streamers, and school colors to give the background that is usually associated with conventions. Delegates from classes from all parts of the city are expected, with or without credentials.

MANLY Up Against It AT TUFTS

The football situation at Tufts is definitely up in the air as far as starters for Saturday's closing game against Mass. State at Amherst go.

Of course the backfield will consist of Ollie Borden at quarter, Roger Keith and Tony Spath at wingback, and Lewis Abdu at fullback, because this quartet consists of the only outstanding backfield men on the squad.

Roger Keith

The line is causing the trouble, much of it because of the injury which has taken Captain Jack Rendall from the guard berth.

In shifting Ralph Smith from tackle to guard to even things up, several of the boys have shown unexpected talent at both guard and tackle, leaving Coach Lew Manly difficult decisions to make in picking starters in this final game.

Ben Collier, former Lynn all-scholastic quarterback, is certain to play at the pilot berth for some of the game, for Ollie Borden is playing his final grid game, and there is no one else capable of Dean Reports At N. U.

With only three lettermen on deck, Coach Nelson Raymond faces the difficult task of moulding a successful Northeastern ice sextet out of the 32 candidates who reported for first hockey practice at the Arena.

Over 20 of the candidates have never had any varsity experience.

A particularly bright spot in this gloomy situation is the unexpected reporting of George Dean, strapping tackle of the undefeated grid eleven.

The three veterans are Captain Charlie Bergamini, defense; Johnny Bisiek, right wing, and Dan Callahan, center. Andy Abbott and Walt Diamondstone, goalies, have both had varsity experience. Bob Fielding, John Metherall and Ray Cheney were regulars for the 1931 yearling sextet.

Louis to Meet Braddock Next Fall

Bomber to Get Only 10 Per Cent, Champion 45

By Jack Conway

"Bomber" Joe Louis will get a crack at Jimmy Braddock's world heavyweight championship in a 15-round bout in New York next September provided he remains undefeated.

Louis and Braddock have agreed to the terms for the title bout. Braddock will receive 45 per cent of the gate, while Louis will battle for a 10 per cent cut.

The New York Garden and the Twentieth Century Club will put the title bout on as a joint promotion. If Louis wins, he will have to defend his title once at a show in which the Garden will get a part of the profits.

SHARKEY BOUT

I gained this exclusive information during a two-hour interview with Louis and his management at Providence the other night.

The deal by which the Garden and the Twentieth Century Club will stage the Braddock-Louis bout next September was closed at the time the Garden gave the Mike Jacobs organization two indoor dates.

Braddock is under contract to defend his title for the Garden while Louis is tied to a contract with the Twentieth Century Club.

Unless the two clubs had come to an agreement on the title bout, it could not be held next year.

Before he will meet Braddock, the "Brown Bomber" will clash with Paulino, Isadore Gastanaga, Charley Retzlaff, Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling.

I asked Louis if he thought he could beat Braddock.

"I'll knock him out," Joe answered with the same nonchalance he would display in ordering a dish of ice cream.

"Braddock will give me more trouble than Schmeling," went on the Detroit heavyweight.

"He is a good boxer, and will be more difficult to hit than Schmeling, but I will catch up with him in five or six rounds and knock him out.

"I am glad Braddock has not drawn the color line. He expressed a desire to meet me in the ring after I stopped Max Baer.

"I have the greatest admiration for Jimmy personally, but think I am a better fighter than he is."

I asked Louis if he considered himself as good a boxer as the champion.

NOT HUNGRY

"I am a bit faster than Braddock and just as clever," said Louis without any note of boasting. "I shall match left hands with him, and I think my left will carry the greatest power."

Louis is already looking ahead to the time when he is champion.

"I would like to defend my title once a month as heavyweight champion," said Louis. "That would keep me in condition."

I suggested to Louis he would have to meet John Roxborough, Julian Black and maybe a few of the sports writers if he were to keep that busy.

Louis is quiet and retiring. He is acting natural and isn't trying to live up to a part.

He has caught on with boxing fans and with the general public. They want to see him get the championship bout with Braddock

PURPLE IS URGED AS ROSE BOWL FOE

TIGER SQUAD FAVORS TRIP

By Davis J. Walsh

New York, Nov. 21 (INS)—Although it seems wholly possible that, by 4 o'clock on Saturday, the matter may be one that couldn't possibly interest either party, President Hopkins of Dartmouth wishes to take proper precautions.

He has declined an invitation that hadn't yet been extended saying that he doesn't want the Rose Bowl bid for his football team.

What he may not know is that his football team and its staff of coaches are understood to want the Rose Bowl bid and so do a lot of Dartmouth men in New York and elsewhere.

The Princeton game on Saturday may alter that but, as it stands Dartmouth opinion pretty generally sees no valid objection to its football team singled out for honor and attention as the representative of the East. They, as a matter of fact, are inclined to approve of honor.

TIGERS SNEER

Princeton sentiment, too, is understood to run along the same lines, although officially it is giving the proposal a well bred sneer. It sees the Rose Bowl game as a commercial proposition which is a joke in view of certain facts in connection with Princeton football.

Being in the auburn or red, financially, it is so idealistic that it is taking the shortest cut toward the indigo or blue.

It has dropped, for purposes of 1936, two small colleges who do not draw any more than the substitutes on the sidelines and is adding the Army and Chicago.

Moreover the athletic association was $150,000 in the red when Fritz Crisler and the high-pressure set was brought to Princeton a few years ago—with consequent and immediate benefit to all concerned.

In the light of this fact, the Rose Bowl is no more commercial than a mass drill. Its pageant is still the main idea, with the football game affording some national dressing. In addition, it is really run by the Pacific Coast Conference, which observes an eligibility and moral code at least as strict as Princeton's.

PURPLE ELIGIBLE

However, if they want a football game out there, I advise them to go into the southwest and name either Southern Methodist or Texas Christian or go all the way to the northeast for Holy Cross.

The way things are, Minnesota is probably the best team in the country, with the two southwest entries second and maybe Princeton third. But Minnesota can't accept because of the Big Ten agreement, Princeton is unavailable because of the Big Three agreement, and Dartmouth has taken an out through its president.

In view of this, all I can say is that there are too many agreements and not enough football teams.

BROWN Heads Ice TEAM

New York, Nov. 21 (INS). Fifty nine players have been named to participate in the American Olympic hockey tryouts scheduled for Dec. 7, 8 and 9, it was announced today by the American Olympic Ice Hockey Committee.

Chosen from more than 1000 players nominated from every section of the country, the group will be whittled down to the final squad of 13 picked to represent the nation at the fourth Olympic winter games at Garmisch Partenkirgen, Germany, February 6-16.

There will be three games in the tryout series. On December 7 there will be a game with Yale at New Haven, on December 8 a contest with the St. Nicholas Club at Madison Square Garden, and on December 9 an encounter with Princeton sextet at Princeton, N. J.

Walter Brown of Boston has temporarily been named manager of the American team.

Evans May Head A. A. League

Dayton, O., Nov. 21 (AP)—Thomas J. Hickey, 74-year-old president of the American Association, will be retired on a pension and a new leader, probably Billy Evans, resigned general manager of the Cleveland Indians, will replace him.

At an informal meeting today, five of the eight club owners in the circuit voted to retire the man who has led it since its foundation except for a short interlude several years ago.

Evans was the man wanted as Hickey's successor, but the hitch was that he demanded a long-term contract at a reported salary of $12,500 a year.

Terry Swaps Parmalee for Whitehead

By Associated Press

Dayton, O., Nov. 21—Baseball's hot stove league was not so hot today. Deals were being made at the minor league meeting here. There was evidence of that in the whisperings of club managers in huddles, but the information was being kept under cover.

New York and St. Louis National League clubs completed a deal Wednesday. Bill Terry, Giant skipper, announced that, but he declined to say just what the trade consisted of. Branch Rickey, vice-president of the Cardinals, said he believed Terry "spoke out of turn" in even admitting that a deal had been completed.

Rickey, however, did not deny the deal. He said the principals would be announced at the Chicago meeting. Everyone else at the minor meeting, nevertheless, was willing to wager that Burgess Whitehead, second sacker for the Cards, had been traded to the Giants for Pitcher Bud Parmalee.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner, celebrated his 69th birthday last night. He came out of hiding for a few minutes and then retired early.

Webb Traded

One rumor said that the Louisville club of the American Association was on the auction block. Bill Knebelkamp, president, and William (Cap) Neal, vice-president of the Colonels, were reported looking for buyers for their stock.

Milwaukee sold Catcher Paul Florence to Galveston of the Texas League, and Outfielder Earl Webb to Knoxville of the Southern Association. St. Paul purchased Pitcher Art Herring, a right-hander, and Outfielder Henry Steinbacher from Sacramento of the Coast loop.

Joplin of the Western Association surrendered its franchise to the league, but the club will remain in the Missouri town. A group headed by W. Perry Sharpe, Jess Thompson and A. B. Reed will take over the reins formerly held by C. A. (Runt) Marr. President Tom Fairweather said the Western will operate with six clubs again next season, with no changes in the lineup.

President Dan W. Hill said the Piedmont loop was planning to expand from six to eight clubs next year, with Rockymount, N. C., as one of the newcomers. He also announced that the Richmond club had effected a working agreement with the New York Giants.

12 Bay State Boys Receive Letters

Lewiston, Me., Nov. 21—Twenty-three members of the Bates College varsity football squad, including 12 Massachusetts students, received letters, Coach David B. Morey announced today.

Players from Massachusetts who received letters were: Richard A. Preston, Beverly; Frederick J. Martin, Belmont; Dayton V. Taylor, East Milton; Wesley W. Stoddard, North Abington; Robert B. Aldrich, Belmont; Charles E. Locke, Jr., Lowell; Edward P. Curtin, Medford; Max A. Eaton, Dedham; George F. Morin, Lee; Harry Keller, Medford; Bernard R. Marcus, Milford; Joseph Pigonne, Medford, and Francis W. Manning, Milton. Joseph Biernacki, Naugatuck, Ct., also was awarded a letter.

SCOTCH BUN WILSON'S BEST BET

WILSON CAN PICK 'EM ANYWHERE

Different tracks mean little to Dave Wilson.

As long as he is anywhere in the vicinity, winning selections are certain to follow.

The Boston Evening American turf expert got away to his usual fine start by picking four winners at Bowie, where he is now stationed for a short meeting.

Dave Wilson

Dave hit the first three right on the "schnozzle," picking King Bee, Acautaw and My Kin right in a row. Then in the fifth, Dave's best bet, Apprentice, breezed home easily.

Wilson is the only local horse expert at Bowie. He will continue to send the readers of the Boston Evening American graded handicaps each day from the leading tracks in the country until he returs to Boston next spring.

Count Cotton Tops Opener

By Dave Wilson
(Selections made for fast track)
BEST BET—SCOTCH BUN

Bowie Race Track, Md., Nov. 21 — Scotch Bun, from the leading money winning establishment of Alfred Gywnne Vanderbilt, shapes up not only as the probable winner of the featured Alsop Purse, but as the oustanding wagering proposition on a difficult card of seven races here tomorrow afternoon.

FIRST—COUNT COTTON, AURA, GO NOW

COUNT COTTON comes highly recommended. He apparently needs only intelligent handling in order to score. AURA has been knocking on the door in recent starts. She is strictly the one to fear. GO NOW figures close up on best races.

SECOND—CAMINO REAL, ACAUTAW, MINTON

CAMINO REAL, a galloping winner on Tuesday, appears beautifully placed in this number. ACAUTAW figures to offer the contention. He won his last start. MINTON is capable of upsetting the dope.

THIRD—WORTHINGTON, AMERICAN BELLE, COMING BACK

WORTHINGTON, freshened up since Pimlico, will be coming up fit and ready. AMERICAN BELLE'E recent efforts go for the end book. She figures close up on best races. COMING BACK is a keen money possibility.

FOURTH—MAD MAHDI, BALCONY, UGIN

MAD MAHDI, up against it in recent endeavors, is well suited by all conditions here. BALCONY is from the popular Vanderbilt stable and figures close up on her best races. UGIN displayed high speed in his graduation.

FIFTH—SCOTCH BUN, FLAG OF WAR, GUIDING STAR

SCOTCH BUN needs only to duplicate any of his several good efforts in this sector in order to grace the winner's circle. Contention, if any, will likely be furnished by FLAG OF WAR. The latter trained brilliantly. GUIDING STAR has some excellent efforts to her credit, but she is very erratic.

SIXTH—BIG GAWK, BEHEMOTH, LADY FLINDERS

BIG GAWK turned in a smashing record to Master Lad last trip. A repetition of that most recent endeavor should result in brackets for the Bradley castoff. BEHEMOTH shapes as strictly the one to fear on general form. LADY FLINDERS is the class, but her last race was very poor.

SEVENTH—MARY'S MAY, BELLE FILLE, SUNDROPS

MARY'S MAY gets the top figures here. She is fond of the track and figures to make every pole a winning one. BELLE FILLE, freshened up since Canada, where she was a triple winner, figures to offer the contention. SUNDROPS for the remainder

CARDS Redskins' FOE

CONTRACTS AT STAKE

By Murray Kramer

There is one thing about professional football players, and that is they never stop trying.

Even though the Redskins are hopelessly in the cellar, they will enter Sunday's battle against the Chicago Cardinals determined to win.

There are two rasons for the Redskins' willingness. The first is that everybody likes to win, and the second and perhaps most important is that next year's contracts are involved.

George Preston Marshall, the boss, is not particularly keen about owning a losing ball club. In fact, he thought his collection of stars would walk through the Eastern Division this year.

MORE GOING

Instead they are at the wrong end, and he is chagrined plenty. In fact Mr. Marshall is more than that; he is really mad. He has already started swinging the axe and has lopped Steve Hokuf, George MacPhail and Teddy Wright off the payroll, besides trading Shepherd.

And there are more slated to go. The work of several doubtful individuals will be closly watched during the remaining three games and woe be unto any one person who decides to take things easy.

On form, the Cardinals are expected to win Sunday's game but in this league there is not too much difference between the top and bottom clubs with the result that a Redskin victory is not too far fetched an idea.

BATTLES BACK

Then of course it must be remembered that the Marshalmen will be much stronger Sunday as Clifford "Gyp" Battles is ready to play.

The return of Battles strengthens the Boston outfit greatly, as he is one of the greatest backs in professional football.

Cliff's booting, ball-carrying and defensive playhave been greatly missed in the past two games. His presence not only bolsters the team offensively and defensively but helps the team's spirit.

Battles is back, and as the boys are fighting for next year's contracts, the game at Fenway Sunday should be very evenly contested.

N. Carolina, Duke All Made Up

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 21—The flareup over Duke's scouting North Carolina with movie cameras prior to their game last Saturday apparently was regarded as a closed incident today.

There was some talk among alumni of a possible break in athletic relations, but college or athletic authorities of neither school gave any indication that such a step was contemplated.

Duke wrecked North Carolina's previously unbeaten eleven, 25 to 0, in an upset which shattered the latter's hope of a Southern Conference tilte and a Rose Bowl hit.

Reports of the clicking movie cameras were brought into the open yesterday by Phil Hammer, North Carolina student editor. In an editorial he denounced the use of movie cameras by Duke scouts as "ungentlemanly and universally regarded as illicit."

Coach Wallace Wade of Duke admitted his scouts used the cameras, adding:

"Aren't the others doing the same thing? What agreement is there against it?"

Said Carl Snavely, North Carolina coach:

"I have made no protest, and I have no comment to make except that I have never used moving pictures for scouting purposes."

RACING In DANGER

QUANTITY FOR QUALITY

By Bob Ahearn

Bowie, Md., Nov. 21—Overproduction is ruining racing, according to Guy Bedwell, the man who trained the famed Sir Barton and other famous thoroughbreds.

"There are too many racetracks," stated Bedwell, who saddled more than 500 winners from 1912 to 1917. "The breeding farms are turning out horses like sausages and how can you expect champions?"

Bedwell is here at Bowie with a small string, the property of A. C. Compton. At the close of the current season, Bedwell takes his charges to Santa Anita.

Not a race horse now in competition is worth the trouble of training if you take Bedwell's word. "A good trainer is a man who can develop horses," Bedwell explained to his listeners in the press box. "Nowadays trainers pick up ready-made stock and they don't deserve any credit."

And what about making a comeback? Bedwell laughs at the least mention of it. Right now the well-known trainer is satisfied with a modest stable of handy platers. But as far as looking forward to saddling another Sir Barton that's out of the question.

If you think they breed real thoroughbreds any more, just take a glance at the record of the season's two-year-olds.

Wayne D. Wright, America's leading race rider will be in the irons when W. S. Kilmer's Ned Reigh parades postward in the Endurance Handicap, mile and a sixteenth feature of Saturday's card . . . Pinky Kandell an arrival from Narragansett. Kandell is here with his two useful campaigners, Hut and Mario . . . Frankie Grennfelder wants to be remembered to his New England friends. Greenfelder is one of Mortimer Mahoney's key mutuel men.

Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American handicapper, greeting friends in the Bowie clubhouse. Wilson is well known here, his family residing in Baltimore. Dave reports that Elmer Trueman, Maryland breeder is planning to name one of his present crop of yearlings, Mr. Boston in honor of Jack Conway's column . . . Johnny Milburn, Starmount Stable's trainer has six good looking yearlings at Pimlico. Three are colts by High Cloud. Sun Briar and Sun Beau.

Interest in the coming Charles Town, W. Va., meeting is high. The 12-day session gets under way December 2 . . . Walter O'Hara, managing director of Narragansett Park, expected here today for the remainder of the Bowie fall meeting . . . Marshall Field's Tintagel, winner of the Belmont Futurity, is a certain starter in the Florida Derby.

Sharkey Surprises Sharkey

By JACK CONWAY

SPEAKING of news: Jack Sharkey will be under 200 pounds for his ten-round bout with Unknown Winston at the Garden tomorrow night. This will be five pounds lighter than he was when he lost his title to Primo Carnera.

• • •

Sharkey's splendid physical condition will surprise the fans. Even Sharkey didn't think he could get so fit for a bout after two years away from the ring wars.

Mr. Boston

• • •

Joe Louis statement he is ready to sign to meet Sharkey next year has given the former champion new interest in the boxing game. Sharkey feels he can defeat Louis, and he will receive the opportunity to test his belief if he can stage a successful comeback.

• • •

Unkown Winston can upset Sharkey's plans with a haymaker. Winston has always been rated as a first class right hand puncher.

• • •

Jimmy Dawson of the New York Times, Murray Lewin of the New York Mirror, Paul Gallico and Jack Miley of the New York Daily News have secured ringside reservations with Western Union wires for the Sharkey Winston bout.

• • •

Dave Arata has also made ringside reservation with wires for Hartford, Waterbury, Springfield and New Haven newspapers. Winston has done considerable boxing in those four cities.

• • •

Joe Louis got $880 for his exhibition bouts in Providence. This represented a 40 per cent cut of a $2200 gate.

• • •

Paul Cavalier, who is boxing with Louis, used to work with Jack Sharkey. He thinks Sharkey could beat Max Schmeling, but refused to go on record as to the probable outcome of a meeting between Jack and Joe.

• • •

WILSON AGAIN

DAVE WILSON, ace handicapper for the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, picked four winners at Bowie yesterday. Just to show the way to other handicappers, Dave is the only staff handicapper of a Boston newspaper at Bowie. Follow his selections each day.

• • •

New York is talking about another bout between Danno O'Mahoney and Ed Don George. The latter wasn't satisfied with the result of his last meeting with the champion when he was punched to the canvas in five minutes.

• • •

Joe Louis asked me a great many questions about O'Mahoney. He was particularly interested in the Irishman's feats of strength.

• • •

Ray Steele's easy victory over King Levinsky at St. Louis proved once more that a boxer cannot lick a mat star in a mixed contest. The boxer has to win with the first punch or he is gone. Once off his feet a boxer hasn't got a chance of defeating a wrestler.

• • •

HARVARD-YALE

THE Harvard-Yale game lacks some of its oldtime fire; as a result of the fact both teams have had poor seasons, but you still cannot get good seats for this annual classic. The game has social and sentimental standing apart from being a football offering.

• • •

Dick Harlow is discouraged with the football outlook at Harvard, but will continue to carry on and do the best possible with the material that is available. Even a great football coach must have material if he is to get anywhere on the gridiron.

• • •

Dartmouth will carry the hopes and prayers of New England fans with it into the Palmer Stadium at Princeton on Saturday. This is the most important football game of the season from a New England standpoint.

MUST Prove He's TOUGH

DARTMOUTH TIGER FEUD

By Bill Grimes

When is an asset a liability?

I'll tell you. When a visiting player enters the Palmer Stadium reputed to be an outstanding football star.

Carl "Pop-Eye" Ray, Dartmouth's potential All America center, will be a marked man during Saturday's game at Princeton.

For two years, "Pop-Eye" has been the most important cog in the Dartmouth defense.

The Princeton scouts have stressed heavily on Ray's remarkable all around ability.

If "Pop-Eye" weathers the storm directed at him in the Palmer Stadium, he will be fully deserving of all the iron man honors which can be conferred upon him.

During the years he played against Princeton, Eddie Mahan, who was on three of Walter Camp's All-America elevens, took a terrific beating from the Tigers.

In his senior year, Mahan led a great Harvard team against Princeton. During the game, the Crimson star came nearer to taking the long count than any time in his football career.

MAHAN GOT IT

Although the Tigers were gunning for him from the opening kick off, Mahan managed to avoid trouble until late in the second half.

While he was returning a Frank Glick punt, "Packy" was cornered on the Princeton side of the field by a couple of husky linemen, one of whom made a dive for his head.

While pulling his lantern jaw out of the grasp of his Tiger adversary, Mahan lost his head guard. Just as he straightened away Glick hit him with a bone-crushing tackle.

Eddie shot through the air and landed on his head right in front of the Princeton bench, dead as a mackerel.

Later, Mahan told me that when he was coming to, he concluded he had had enough, but just as he was getting ready to be carried across the field, he heard some one on the Tiger bench exclaim

"Well, at last we've got the so and so," and he decided to stay in the game.

Mat Bullock, Dartmouth's great Negro end of the 1903 team, lasted through just one play of the Princeton game. Mat knew he was going to get the "business" but he did not expect it on the second play.

BULLOCK OUT

After DeWitt of Princeton had run back "Bull" Turner's opening kick off, Davis, the Tiger left wing, swung across to the opposite flank.

When the next play started Henry, the right end, and Davis, dived at Bullock, tossed him high in the air and managed to land on the Dartmouth flankman, breaking about every bone in his shoulder and winding up his football career.

A couple of years later, Princeton went after Ralph Glaze, but the "pitcher" was too smart for them. However "Knuck" Kennedy, who went to Glaze's assistance, with a beautiful right cross to the jaw of the Tiger who was trying to do a job on his teammate, retired with a twisted ankle on the next play.

DRIGGS KICK

Although they have managed to come up with three wins over the Tigers, the Indians of the north have seldom been on the right end of the breaks at Princeton.

In 1905, Norman Bankart broke through and after blocking a Princeton punt recovered the ball for a touchdown and the Big Green managed to protect its six point advantage, and won.

Bankart's feat was the only favorable break Dartmouth ever received at Princeton, but of all the tough breaks that have befallen the Big Green in Tiger games the Eddie Driggs drop kick in 1911 which after just clearing the Dartmouth line bobbled along the ground and finally took off and went over the cross bar for what was ruled a goal from the field, giving the Tigers a 3 to 0 victory, was the hardest to take.

The Big Green believes Lady Luck will be decked out in Dartmouth colors on Saturday, but the critics feel the Indians of the north will require three or four Lady Lucks to stop the powerful 1935 veteran Princeton juggernaut.

"PURES" BOX

The Irish-American A. A. will stage the second in a series of four preliminary tryouts for the Diamond Belt Championships of the 1935-36 season at the Arena next Monday.

Jungle Fears Green Ray

Dartmouth's Carl Ray, better known as Pop-Eye or Mutt and an outstanding candidate for All-American center honors, will be a marked man when the undefeated Indians of the North battle the unbeaten Princeton Tigers in the latter's lair tomorrow. The Bengals believe they have only to hold Mr. Ray in check to win the mythical Eastern championship. But if they halt the Hanover pivotman, they'll be the first eleven to do so in two years. The Ray is deadly.

H. C. SQUAD TO SEE B. C. PLAY

By Walter Riley

Most interested of all the spectators at Saturday's football game between Boston College and Boston University at University Heights will be the Holy Cross coaches and squad.

Dr. Eddie Anderson believes in taking advantage of the break in his schedule which finds the Purple purposely minus an attraction the week before the finale with the Eagles.

It will be his first chance this year to see his future opponents in action. The same goes for the Worcester players.

Knowing that their rivals are watching every detail of the game and storing them away for future reference, the Eagles will naturally attempt to keep all of their flossier plays, as newly conceived, under cover.

Only if the necessity arises will Harry Downes order his players to depart from stereotyped offensive.

Yet it isn't so much the plays themselves which Anderson will instruct his charges to watch but positions and mannerisms, little peculiarities of individuals which often prove tip-offs to what type play is to be forthcoming.

B. U. SHAKEUP

The open date on the Purple schedule will undoubtedly work out well for Holy Cross and adversely for Boston College.

The status of the Boston team is definitely settled. The only change in the starting eleven will be Jim Kissel at center, replacing Vin Keough, who took a battering against Springfield.

The case at Boston University is far different.

Pat Hanley is tearing his line to pieces and mending it with an odd assortment of parts. He is gambling that it will hold together and improve on the play of the predecessors, who slumped badly against Rutgers and Brown.

Hanley's distress is seemingly dire. And evidently sincere, even though the Heights' coaching staff is ignoring the Terrier storm signals and refusing to be fooled by what it terms a "smoke screen."

Paul Fairfield, a sophomore with just 30 seconds of varsity experience in his favor, constitutes Hanley's major change. Fairfield, 205 pounds, played the last 30 seconds against Vermont. He was a tackle then, and before that a third string tackle on the freshman team.

The youthful giant has, however, shown a world of fight and is to be given his chance. He takes over where Adlis and Dolan left off.

Syd Borofsky, a veteran guard, is another whose chances to play are problematical. Walter Garner is in for him.

Felix Dixon and Glen Lugenbeel regular tackles, have had knees. Hanley doesn't look for them to play. Ralph Hudson and George McPherson are their alternates.

The B. U. picture looks gloomy, if the reports are only half true.

FLORIDA BOUND

"Sounds like a lot of this psychology business to me," stated Wallyum Ormsby, end coach at the Heights, today.

"It looks as though the Terriers are deliberately trying to build up Boston College overconfidence. I saw them play against Brown, and while they didn't look like the greatest team in the world, I know they are capable of playing far better.

"We will just forget all about the pre-game reports and go out there with the idea of winning a hard ball game."

Which sounds reasonable. Because Boston University takes a little journey to Miami, Fla., next week, and Saturday's game against Boston College will definitely determine the Terrier list which is to make the trip.

It isn't every day that a football team gets a like chance. With so much at stake plus the natural desire the Terriers have to conquer Boston College for the first time in history it takes no far stretch of the imagination to visualize them going in there and giving their utmost all for dear ole Alma Mammy and warm, sunny Florida.

NATS Coming TO SOX

CRONIN LIKES OLD MATES

By Joe Cashman

There may be more truth than fiction to the story from the minor leagues' meeting at Dayton that Handsome Harry Manush, veteran Washington outfielder, is coming to the Red Sox along with our old pal, Jack Russell, in a three-cornered swap that will send Roy Johnson from the Fens to the Yankees and Ben Chapman from New York to the Senators.

At least, Manager Joe Cronin thinks very highly of these aforementioned old Senatorial charges and has often been heard to express the wish that he could bring them here.

It also seems safe to assume that Roger "Flit" Cramer, Athletics' ace fly chaser, will be a member of the Fenway flock next year.

All of which, if you're interested merely causes us to remark, "What of it?"

ALL LEFTIES

There's no reason, as this corner looks at it, to become elated or excited over any reported Red Sox outfield acquisition until the name of a right-handed slugger is mentioned.

Cramer is perhaps the finest young outfielder in the business for all-around ability and Manush is a mighty hitter, even though he's growing old and has slowed up afield.

Undoubtedly the pair would strengthen the Red Sox.

But the fact remains that each is a left-handed sticker. So are Mel Almada and "Dusty" Cooke, who would fight it out for the remaining garden berth in the event Cramer and Manush are acquired.

And what the Red Sox not only need but must have to win a pennant, the angles of Fenway Park being what they are, is at least two long-distance right-handed swingers among the fly-chasing brigade.

The power left-handers' target is the rightfield barrier. Said barrier at the Fens is among the most distant in the circuit. Rightfield drives that would be easy home runs in most orchards are routine fly outs up on Jersey street.

The leftfield wall, on the other hand, is one of the shortest in the loop.

Heavy right-handed hitters can bunt home runs over it while 200 hitting right-handers are as likely as not to smash doubles off it every time they connect squarely.

LISTEN, JOE

It would take an adding machine to count the games the Fenway flock lost this past season mainly because Cronin was forced to use three left-handed hitting outfielders who couldn't take advantage of the proximity of the left field fence.

Both Cramer and Manush figure to hit harder at the Fens than ever have Roy Johnson, Cooke or Almada. But if it's the pennant bug that's biting the Sox executives they'd better be getting about putting in bids for right handed hitting outfielders of the type of Ben Chapman, Al Simmons, Bob Johnson and Ray Powell.

BROWN READY For Lions Game

Providence, Nov. 21—Brown will move on Columbia Saturday with every man in good condition, and the Lion encounter will be the second game of the season where the Bruin could consider himself at top strength.

"Tuss" McLaughry and his aides consider the victory over Boston University a good omen, and now for the first time this season the Bruin has shown indications that he is equipped to go.

Brown still intends to win at least one major game this season and the word in the Bear camp now is "Beat Columbia."

The Brown squad, numbering about 40 and including players, managers, coaches and trainers, will leave Providence after an early afternoon workout tomorrow at 5.02, eating dinner on the train.

Langford's

Name Remains on Danger List

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Sam Langford's name was on the "serious" list at Harlem Hospital today, although the former crack Negro heavyweight's condition was reported to be fair. Langford, ailing and blind, suffered internal injuries when struck by a taxicab Monday.

Dizzy Dean

Headed For Movie Berth

Chicago, Nov. 21 (INS)—Jerome "Dizzy" Dean and his pretty wife arrived in Chicago today from Miami to be greeted by a miniature blizzard.

They were en route to California on a mysterious mission, a mystery even to the St. Louis Cardinal pitching star.

Before taking a plane West, Dizzy explained that his manager had called him to California and told him to rush. Why, he didn't know; couldn't guess. Maybe the movies, he hazarded.

Los Angeles, Nov. 21 (U.S.)—Preliminary steps toward establishment of national and sectional open tennis championships, in which amateur and professional players would compete on an identical basis were revealed here today by William T. Tilden 2d, former world amateur net champion and now ace of the "wage-earning" element.

HAVES AND HAVE NOTS:

Bunk, Demagogue

TAINT LAID BY HANEY

To U.S. Raw Dealer

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Nov. 21—If you really want to know whether our present increase in "prosperity" is real or inflationary, just look into the "relief" situation. Ask yourself why all this squabbling and dealing out of billions of dollars, if real prosperity is here?

If we are getting more and more prosperous, why is the Roosevelt administration in such a jam in giving relief to millions of needy persons?

I can see only one answer. Our prosperity is on paper. So Mr. Roosevelt is putting down figures on paper and is dealing out paper to millions of dependent persons.

This is inflation.

Some time ago, Roosevelt said the "federal government must and shall quit this business of relief." Day before yesterday, Roosevelt told the mayors of numerous cities "we do not propose to let people starve." He said that the question as to discontinuing federal relief is a "silly question."

The plain fact is that the New Dealers now face a relief crisis. Instead of CWA, this winter they have set up a WPA, and the new set-up is a bigger mess than the old one. It is slow and far behind schedule. It is more wasteful and boondoggly than ever. It is trying to employ only people "on relief," so people go on relief in order to get on the WPA rolls.

The plain fact is that relief smells as bad under the name of WPA as it did under the name of CWA—and costs more.

• • •

Hopkins, who is closer to Roosevelt than anybody, explains the thing with his usual violence. He says:

"Call it boondoggling. Call it anything you like. But I'm here to tell you that that type of work is going to be done . . . The man at the bottom of the heap is always going to be helped . . . Relief will continue—it will not stop in July, 1936."

He recently stated that the fight is between the haves and the have nots, and that the New Dealers are on the side of the have nots.

• • •

But all thoughtful people are in favor of helping the "have nots." The sad thing is the bunk and demagoguery of the New Deal politicians, who insist on attacking the "haves" instead of really helping the "have nots."

The only way really to help the unemployed is to help employers to employ them. It hurts them, and everybody else, to waste money and pile up debt.

For example, we are told that it is "useful" to kill mosquitoes. It may be. But whoever heard of anyone getting a living that way? It doesn't increase the supply of bread and butter. It brings in no money.

Our first job should be to restore business so that the needy unemployed can earn a living by producing goods.

The time to kill mosquitoes will come when the more important things have been attended to. Why should a starving man in New York State worry about malaria?

Nobody would do these boondoggling stunts now if left to his own common sense. He would say, it doesn't pay! And it doesn't.

So, you see, the whole thing is just relief, and the relief is made vastly more costly by trying to disguise it as "works progress."

More than that, it builds up a bureaucracy at Washington and fattens the New Deal politicians. Tugwell's department has a "staff" of 12,000 New Dealers at Washington, and gives work to 5000—and such work!

All this means continued federal government spending and no hope of balancing the budget. There can be no currency stabilization.

BUSINESS Asks New POLICIES

WASTE IS DEPLORED

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service

Chicago, November 21—Business, with new courage, is beginning to formulate its conception of a constructive governmental policy.

First, there is a growing conviction that the time has come for the Federal Government rapidly to taper off its spending program through drastic elimination of waste in all directions. The viewpoint is spreading that the spectacle of a reasonably near-term balancing of the budget would go far toward building up business confidence and trade volume.

Secondly, there is growing demand to relieve business of the uncertainties which come from a [illegible] political leadership. Business can adjust itself to certainty, even if unpleasant; but it tends to hesitate and tremble in the face of uncertainty.

Thirdly, it is argued that as a result of the two foregoing policies restraints will be lifted from business that a marked further expansion will take place of such proportions that the Federal revenues from existing tax rates will be enormously increased.

Business attention is gradually shifting from the burdens of the recent deflation to the potentialities of a subsequent inflation. An eminent monetary pathologist is telling key groups that the minimum effect of inflationary steps already taken will be to double commodity prices.

Economic Machine

Recognizing that the economic machine cannot be steered uninterruptedly in one direction, business leaders are already beginning to think in terms of applying the brakes.

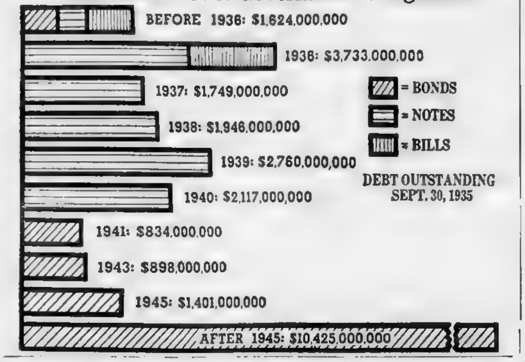
It is widely thought that the most effective policy will be to move toward a balanced budget through drastic public economies.

In the field of controversial issues, orthodox money doctors are carrying on an agitation to make the current de facto stabilization of the dollar a matter of definite law.

It is argued also that an effective way to put on the brakes would be to use the next prosperous period as an opportunity to reduce public indebtedness fairly rapidly. Former Secretary Mellon before the depression was reducing the federal debt by nearly a thousand million dollars a year while tax rates were being lowered. Obviously, if the objective should become to hold down a runaway situation, tax raising would have slowing up effects, though it is tingency while business is still subnormal, with millions unemployed.

RECORD U. S. DEBT

Maturities of U. S. Government Obligations



BILLIONS

Posterity Must Pay Bills

"Debts of the fathers shall be paid by their children." This paraphrase is unquestionably true as it pertains to our mounting federal bill. The bill must sooner or later be paid—and paying it later is the policy of our government.

The outstanding interest-bearing debt of the United States Government, as of September 30, 1935, was $28,432,000,000. This borrowed sum of more than twenty-eight billion dollars is the largest in our history—larger even than the debt in existence shortly after the World War.

When is our national debt payable? This chart shows the final maturity years of federal obligations outstanding. Of course, if economic conditions are favorable most of the debt could be cancelled before the final maturity date.

Obligations are divided into three classifications. Those having the shortest duration, a matter of a few months at most, are known as Bills. Then follow Notes, which exist for as long as five years. Longer term obligations are called Bonds.

Before the end of this year a sum of $1,624,000 is due to be paid off. Perhaps we should say "was due," because the last of the Liberty bonds were cancelled in October.

From now through 1940 the obligations that mature will be chiefly notes. From then on bonds will become due. A total of $946,000,000 of miscellaneous issues with no specific maturity dates is not included in the chart.

In times of "cheap" money rates, such as exist now, the government seeks to convert its short term (notes) debt into long term (bonds) obligations.

It is natural, then, to expect that during the next few years, if low money rates still prevail, the notes that fall due may be substituted by issuing bonds.

Recapitalization

Stockholders of McLellan Stores Co. have voted in favor of a plan of recapitalization authorizing 75,000 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, par $100, and 1,000,000 shares of common stock, par $1, it was announced today.

PLAN TO Promote N. E. BUSINESS

The need for business management of public business and methods of promoting industrial growth of New England communities will be the joint subjects of a special session of the Tenth Anniversary New England Conference here this week.

The conference will get under way this afternoon and the group session on community development problems will come on Friday afternoon.

John F. Tinsley, vice president and general manager of the Crompton and Knowles Loom Works of Worcester, chairman of the community development committee of the New England Council, will preside and discuss the program of the committee for the coming year.

A subject of increasing interest under depression conditions, the problem of greater economy and efficiency in local government, will be discussed by Judge Howard L. Bevis, formerly of the superior bench in Ohio, now professor of government in the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University.

Judge Bevis, besides serving among the Ohio judiciary, was formerly state director of finance in Ohio, and former chairman of the charter commission of Cincinnati. His subject at Friday's conference will be "Putting Efficiency Into Government."

Boston Elevated

A quarterly dividend rental of $1.25 per share on stock of the Boston Elevated Railway will be paid Jan. 2, 1936, to stockholders of record Dec. 10, 1935.

Curb Market Prices Higher

By International News Service

New York, Nov. 21—The Curb market was fractionally higher with trading fairly active. Improved business as reflected in earnings statements and declarations of increased and extra dividends is generally responsible for the continuation of the rise.

Distillers Seagrams resumed its forward movement, based on the reduction in the American tariff on Canadian liquors. Miscellaneous industrials were in demand at rising levels.

Among the specialties which were well bought was McCord Radiator. A group of low-priced ones, like Tastyeast and United Wall Paper, also marked gains.

Electric Bond & Share was fractionally higher in the utility group, as was Northern States Power A and St. Regis Paper.

Niagara Hudson, however, was unchanged, while Puget Sound Power & Light declined nearly a point.

SECONDARY Bonds Improve

New York, Nov. 21 (AP)—Secondary issues continued to provide most of the action in the bond market today. The general tone of these classes was improved, suggesting that yesterday's decline had prompted a new buying interest.

Buyers paid a point or so above previous final levels for New York Central 5s and Nickel Plate 4½s, and half a point more for Alleghany Corp. 5s, American & Foreign Power 5s, Postal Telegraph 5s and Frisco 4½s.

U. G. I. SUES To Halt UTILITY ACT

Philadelphia, Nov. 21 (US)—The United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia, an $800,000,000 corporation, has filed a suit in the United States district court here seeking to have the utility holding company bill declared unconstitutional.

At the same time, the company announced it will not register with the securities and exchange commission as required by the act. The deadline for registering is December 1.

In its petition to the Federal court, the company held that the utility act violates the fifth, eighth and tenth amendments of the United States Constitution and that Congress exceeded its powers by trying to regulate matters not in interstate commerce.

The petition declared registration with the SEC would restrict it in the ownership of property, issuance of stock, borrowing from or extending credit to its subsidiaries; the acquisition of securities or utility assets, the selling of its security holdings, selection of officers and directors, and the declaration of dividends.

Significance was added to the suit because Phillip H. Gadsen, a vice-president of the U. G. I., is chairman of the utility executives committee which fought the utility bill bitterly when it was before Congress.

Laclede Gas

Laclede Gas Light Co. reports for 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1935, net income of $121,485. Gross revenues amounted to $6,871,453.

STOCK Price Dip STUDIED

OPPORTUNITY TO BUY SEEN

By State Streeter

The temper of State Street financial circles is so finely adjusted to recovery, and ultimate higher share prices, that reactionary tendencies, instead of being dreaded, are actually wanted.

Louis J. O'Malley, president of the New England Financial Service, summed up the situation by saying, "Reactions are to be welcomed rather than feared. Accounts should be flexible enough to withstand occasional setbacks of moderate severity."

Then he continued, "New buying, or averaging, of the most attractive securities will be possible."

Market setbacks also may be utilized by the shrewd trader to supply reliable vanes as to the direction of well informed buying.

For, as Mr. O'Malley points out, "Only the stocks that are most attractive are relatively strong in a general reaction."

Thus stubborn price recessions often reveal the existence of important absorption.

Cautious

In commenting on the present selling prices of securities Mr. O'Malley stressed the need of being alive to cautionary implications which could herald a temporary downturn.

He says, "When volume of sales reaches nearly 4,000,000,000 shares daily it behooves the conservative trader to watch price movements of the averages for a sign of top heaviness or major distribution under cover of increased public and speculative interest."

These periods of excessive trading are natural enough, in his opinion, and lead to the recessions astute traders will welcome for their new opportunities for accumulation.

Mr. O'Malley feels that the market is reflecting widespread confidence in the immediate future and satisfaction that business is coming along as scheduled.

In his opinion the market, "is willing to accept the President's word that a breathing spell is to exist until, at least, the first of the year."

And perhaps even after that. For, he concludes, "The administration and Congress, with their thoughts on the fall elections, will hew more to the conservative line, and will harass business but little, if at all."

Coal Output Rises

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended November 16 as approximately 7,550,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week of 1934 was 7,349,000 tons.

N. E. TRADE

Well AHEAD OF 1934

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Despite the handicap of unseasonable weather, business activity in New England continues well ahead of last year. And indications point to an increase in holiday trade, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

Building and engineering contracts awarded during the last week made a better showing, woolen and worsted mills are doing a first rate business, cotton manufacturers report gray goods demand has broadened considerably and shoemakers while between seasons, are cheered by firmness of prices and placement of some orders for next season by quantity buyers.

• • •

Commerce in New England is showing sharp gains over last year. Loadings of revenue freight are about 10 per cent ahead of 1934 and maritime activity shows gratifying increases. A change to more seasonable weather conditions would undoubtedly accelerate coal shipments and supply further gains for commerce. And then there is always the imponderable factor of truck traffic. Many observers feel there has been a marked increase in highway transportation of late, which naturally contributes to the uprush of business.

• • •

Notebook — Northern States Power "A" is a fast moving utility that will discover many new friends on any setback . . . Currently estimated to be earning about $2.50 per share a year . . . Some people believe this may be stepped up to $3.50 to $4 next year . . . Northern Pacific and Great Northern enthusiasts are still arguing the relative merits of their favorite rails . . . With the edge going to the Northern Pacificites . . . Southern Railway is staging quite a comeback . . . It is currently covering fixed charges.

• • •

Stock prices show a tendency to crack up that has not been in evidence for some time. Leader stocks of the investment type are hanging back and constructive forces must scurry around to find a suitable issue to supply character to a rise which of late has featured too many low grade stocks for our personal comfort. American Can still impresses us as the best bet. And through all these boiling markets we suggest keeping in mind that the final convulsion of an intermediate upswing is greatly accelerated trade in low quality shares.

• • •

Shorts: Bethlehem and United States are still fighting it out in the steel steeplechase of 1935 . . . We will take United States . . . And go so far as to hazard a guess Bethlehem is not more than 2 or 3 points off its top . . . The rails are making their own market task more difficult . . . And that of the whole list, too . . . For safety's sake we find it necessary to lift the objective level for the group . . . Only then will we feel the rails are confirming the rise of the industrials.

COTTON FUTURES

Move Upward

New York, Nov. 21 (INS)—Influenced by better Liverpool cables, a bullish ginning report, and unfavorable weather conditions in the northwest, cotton futures opened about 70 cents a bale higher and in late dealings were up about 65 cents.

December was quoted at 12.04, up 12; January 11.93, up 11; March 11.84, up 13; May 11.66, up 10; July 11.49, up 5, and October 11.20, up 8.

Boston Edison

For the 12 months ended October 31, 1935, The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston reports gross income available for interest and dividends of $8,200,452, a decrease of $907,395 from the comparable figure at October 31, 1934.

Bank Clearings Up

New York, Nov. 21 (AP). Bank clearings for the third week of November exceeded by more than 20 per cent the volume of the corresponding week in 1934, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

NEW YORK CITY

Relief NEEDS Doubled

By B. C. Forbes

Alarming: New York's deputy commissioner of welfare, Edward Corsi, announces that demands for relief are almost double what they were a year ago. No fewer than 2,000,000 persons are receiving a dole or work relief or other aid. He puts the figure for the nation at 20,000,000.

"We are actually building up a society with one-fifth of the population as a submerged class, living more and more apart as though unrelated at all with the others," he warns.

[illegible] was forced too far upwards preceding the 1929 collapse and that an equally violent downswing was inevitable. But this rich, resourceful, virile, young nation has oftener than once, during the last two or three years, exhibited its readiness to resume an upward trend.

What obstacle has obtruded?

Political uncertainty.

We constantly read how Britain has outdistanced America in economic recovery. There the government has worked hand-in-hand with men of affairs to revive healthy activity.

Here, Washington has been the most serious brake on revival. Capital has gone into sub-cellars. Enterprise has been cowed. Whereas Britain has balanced her budget and reduced taxes, our extravagant administration has plunged the nation deeper and deeper into debt.

Our vastly costly artificial relief and so-called recovery measures have been lamentably bungled.

• • •

The net result is that, despite America's inherent recuperative powers, our national breadline, instead of diminishing, has shockingly lengthened.

What business and industry need is not a "breathing spell" but definite official assurance that the administration will henceforth co-operate wholeheartedly in bringing about greater business confidence, greater enterprise greater stability, greater employment.

Surely even the most fanatical brain trusters now realize that permanent prosperity cannot be achieved solely by multiplying and multiplying bureaucratic armies and levying heavier and heavier burdens upon the people and inciting apprehension over what the new dealers may attempt next.

Public sentiment, happily, is moving in the right direction. It may be that the new dealers will shortly sense that, unless they modify their tactics, they are in danger of being squashed by the steam roller of public opinion which is now moving toward a return to Americanism.

Transactions in Wall Street continue to reflect the nation's eagerness to relegate depression to the background.

Yesterday quotations on the New York Stock Exchange again touched a new four-year peak.

Better earnings, better dividends, better orders, as well as European investments all are partly responsible.

But expectation of inflation is a potent factor. I find that fear of unhealthy inflation, as a consequence of govenmental over-spending and the unprecedented piling up of idle money, is steadily spreading in responsible circles.

• • •

What was said recently in this column about Secretary Wallace's defense of wholesale destruction of pigs and in condemnation of restriction of pig iron output, has drawn many communications. One reader (Max A. Berns) comments:

"Considerable might be made of the fact that though the pig-iron production might be held in abeyance when there is lack of demand, this is quite different from killing off little pigs. When 6,000,000 little pigs are slaughtered, society not only loses their food value, but also their breeding capacity.

"It is impossible to make up this loss short of several years. There is no such loss in a temporary curtailment of pig-iron production."

A vote among housewives, now penalized by the scarcity and dizzy prices of pork, ham, bacon, etc., would be interesting.

With 20,000,000 mouths to be fed out of taxpayers' pockets the virtue of artificially-engineered scarcity of food becomes questionable. Nor does it make it easier for consumers to save enough to meet mounting taxes.

BOSTON MARKET

Rails Strong

A feature of trading was the strength in New England leased line shares. A 5-share trade of Boston & Providence was sufficient to lift the price 6½ points at 140. Boston-Albany was 2½ higher at 116.

Old Colony was steady at 60.

Metal shares were well taken, especially issues with a New York market. U. S. Smelting lifted over $3 to 97½.

American Telephone equaled its high for the year of 151⅞ reached Wednesday following declaration of the regular quarterly dividend.

New England Telephone was steady at 111. Boston Edison snapped back 1⅛ to 168.

Boston Elevated lost a point to 66, but there was little doing in the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway shares.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

'Human Spider' Caught In Web of Fire

Swings Like Roasting Turkey Over Burning Coals

By FLOYD GIBBONS

FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

And all together, let's sing:

"Oh, he flies through the air with the greatest of ease,
"The daring young man on the flying trapeze."

Nice song. But, for the love of mike, don't sing it around Charles Weickman of 74 First street, Harrison, N. Y. Charley flew through the air once but NOT with the greatest of ease and he's a little bit touchy about that popular ditty.

Charley is a sign-hanger—one of those daredevils we all stop to look at any day on the streets of New York. Talk about a goldfish in a bowl not having any privacy! How about a sign-hanger? He does his work under or above the eyes of hundreds of thousands of busy citizens, high above the street, hanging from a slender rope like a spider on a silken thread

I've often wondered, as I stood fascinated on the sidewalk, craning my neck skyward at some sign-hanger at work, just how it would feel if one of those ropes gave way And that's just what Charley tells us today.

Back in 1907 Charley was a young whipper-snapper of a reckless sign-hanger who daily laughed at death. He would have taken a job hanging a sign on the nose of the Man in the Moon if you paid him enough. They didn't have as many skyscrapers in those days as they do today, but you can get killed just as dead hitting the pavement from six stories as you can from 36. In fact, you get killed quicker from the shorter fall—you don't take so much time falling.

• • •

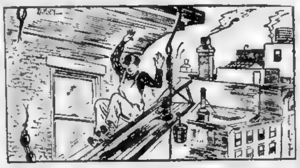
Charley's job was to hang a sign on the edge of a cornice that stuck three feet out from the roof of a six-story building on 121st street. Underneath that cornice was a straight drop to the nice, soft cement sidewalk below

However, if Charley did fall, he had the satisfaction of knowing that a nice six foot iron picket fence by the sidewalk with spearheaded points might break his fall, or something.

Charley never thought of those upright pickets as he and his helper hung their scaffold from the cornice. But he did think of it later when he thought he was going to get spitted on them like a turkey roasting before a fire. Here's what happened.

While Charley's helper held the rope attached to the pulleys on one side of the scaffold, Charley lowered himself by the other and stood on the narrow boards of the scaffold beneath the cornice. He had a little fire of charcoal in a tinsmith's pot, to heat his soldering irons, with him. This he hooked on to his perch and then tied his rope.

Suddenly, with a warning shriek of racing ropes, the other end of the scaffold swung straight for Mother Earth and Charley followed it. With the presence of mind that distinguishes all workers used to great heights, Charley grabbed with both hands as he fell.



Wham! He stopped with a terrific jerk as his strong hands caught an iron bar at the lower end of the swinging scaffold. And there Charley swung high in the air like the man on the flying trapeze.

Down in the street below and in the windows on all sides of him anxious faces peered up at him, but Charley didn't look down at them. That's the worst thing you can do, any man who works at heights will tell you. Never look down!

Charley didn't look down, but then he didn't have to. He knew already what was there—the picket fence waiting to catch his hurtling body on the fly! He hung on like grim death for the help that he felt sure would soon come. He figured he could hang on long enough for that, but he had other trials in store for him.

• • •

The tinsmith's bucket, swinging freely from its pail handle, began to act up. It spilled a few red-hot coals. Charley saw the fire coming and closed his eyes. An excruciating pain shot through his arms

The coals had fallen right on his poor arms that had already more work than they could do. He almost let go as the coals sizzled and bounced off his bare skin. He felt dizzy and sick. Again, as the swinging scaffold reached the end of its arc, the fire pail spewed more fire on him. It seemed, Charley says, that everything was against him. Sign-hangers are great believers in luck, and Charley felt as though the cards were stacked against him.

The burns on his hands and arms were torturing him. Should he let go? A yell of encouragement from the street below cheered him. "Hold on," they yelled.

Charley held on. He was glad he did, for in a few moments he got the greatest thrill in his lifetime. The scaffold he clung to began to descend. Rescuers were on the roof and lowering him slowly but surely to the ground.

Willing hands below steered his tired body away from the menacing pickets, and Charley was safe.

Did he quit sign-hanging? Not on your life! As soon as his arms were healed he was back on the job again, and if you want to put an advertising sign on the planet Mars—why, just get in touch with Charley.

RADIO FEATURE TONIGHT BY 4 PIANOS

By N. F. T.

Even one piano, well played, makes for good radio listening. Two-piano teamwork is generally regarded as easy on the ears also.

Tonight brings four keyboard personalities into the loudspeaker spotlight (WEEI) when Paul Whiteman and his "Music Hall" setting holds forth between 10 and 11 o'clock.

Four favorite ivory ticklers have thus been assigned to fashion something very special with their 40 fingers, the piece being an arrangement of the classic "Espani Cani" composition. Vera Brodsky, Harold Triggs, Roy Bargy and Ramona are the artists due to turn in what very much takes on the aspect of a musical treat. Bob Burns, the drawling dry-wit, returns to contribute his conversational comedy, with Everett Marshall listed as the baritone soloing guest star.

"N. F. T."

VALLEE VARIETIES

Burgess Meredith and Margo will bring a scene from Maxwell Anderson's drama "Winterset," in which they are currently starred on Broadway, to Rudy Vallee's well known hour (WEEI) this evening at 8:00 p. m.

Both actors rank high among the younger stage stars. Meredith is well known to the radio public for his performances in "Red Davis" and other broadcast shows.

Maud Morgan, the "dean of American harpists," who celebrates her seventy-fifth birthday tomorrow; Torch Singer Ella Logan, accompanied by a swing band under the direction of Mike Reilly, Ed Farley, and Buick and Bubbles, Negro comedy team borrowed from "Porgy and Bess," will complete the "mike" cast for Rudy.

MILK DRIVERS WIN PRAISE

High praise was heaped on H. P. Hood & Sons' employes by H. P. Hood, 2d, vice-president and treasurer of the company in a speech before 1500 guests at the annual dinner of the concern's mutuel benefit association, held in the Imperial ballroom of Hotel Statler.

He cited numerous instances in which the quick-thinking of a milkman had saved the lives of a whole family from dread gas poisoning.

Prior to the dinner George E. Ryan was elected president of the association for the coming year.

Other officers elected included Herbert J. Baker, vice-president; H. A. Carrick, secretary; John A. Foley, treasurer, and W. B. Rand, auditor.

Among the honor guests present were James J. Byrnes, president of the New England division of the A. & P. Tea Company, and G. H. Hood, president of H. P. Hood & Sons, incorporated.

Fall River Chief Victim of Error

Fall River, Nov. 21—Charged with receiving stolen goods, Fire Commissioner Andrew J. Farrissey is under indictment, it was correctly reported in the Boston Evening American of November 8.

A headline on the article, however, stated, "Fall River Fire Chief Indicted," which was intended to refer to Farrissey.

The chief of the Fall River fire department is J. F. Sullivan, a veteran of 47 year's service, during 14 years of which he has been chief.

Chief Sullivan has no connection with the case in which Commissioner Farrissey was indicted, and throughout Chief Sullivan's long service he has built up an enviable record.

KANE'S TO OPEN IN LAWRENCE

Another new store, the 15th in the chain, is to be opened tomorrow in Lawrence at Methuen and Lawrence streets by the Kane Furniture Company.

Harry Kane, founder and president of the organization, in commenting on the opening of the newest store, said:

"I feel that in adding this new link to our chain we will not only be able to serve the Lawrence public better but will increase our buying power, which means greater savings to the public, employ more people and furnish a needed stimulant to public confidence in the future of New England business."

Announcement of the Lawrence store opening came soon after that of a new Kane store in Lynn and marked the eighth store opening by the company since 1930.

In contrast to his previous trip, Santason has discarded his reindeers entirely, and is making the trip entirely by plane, circling the globe to be present in Boston Thanksgiving morning.

One of the hazards facing him is the daring east-west transatlantic flight.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Communism

MRS. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has graciously come to the rescue of those puzzled over the difference between "teaching" and "advocating" Communism.

She cites the following example as the way teachers will be "tongue-tied" under the ruling of Controller General McCarl banning the teaching of Communism in the Washington public schools:

"A child asking, 'What form of government do they (the Russians) live under?' The teacher having to say, 'My dear child, I can't tell you.'"

Any public school teacher who would answer in that manner would be guilty of an untruth.

Her answer would be as follows, and it is the WHOLE TRUTH:

"CHILDREN, THE RUSSIANS LIVE UNDER A COMMUNISTIC FORM OF GOVERNMENT. IT HAS DESTROYED THE RIGHT TO OWN ANYTHING. EVEN THE CLOTHES ON THE BACKS OF RUSSIAN CHILDREN BELONG TO THE GOVERNMENT. IT HAS DESTROYED ALL FREEDOM TO EXPRESS OPINION OR WRITE WHAT IS TRULY BELIEVED UNDER PENALTY OF DEATH. THE RUSSIANS ARE RULED, CHILDREN, UNDER A DICTATORSHIP, WHICH IS WHAT WE DENOUNCED IN THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE AND WHICH IS CONTRARY TO THE AMERICAN CONSTITUTION."

That is what any honest teacher in an American school can say to a child who wants to know what kind of a government the Russians live under.

If she should answer, "I can't tell you," she is probably PRO-COMMUNIST.

Boston Remembers

Fifty-six hundred Boston newsboys are being mobilized into service for a Will Rogers Tag Day December 7.

It is fitting that any tribute to the beloved sage-humorist be in large measure one of youth, for Will was ever clean and wholesome. In him there was never any of the cynical spirit that too often characterizes maturity.

Boston's contribution to the nation-wide Rogers Memorial will be a generous one. Though our affection for Will can never be measured in terms of money, rich and poor will open their purses to his memory just as he opened his heart to them in life.

Will Rogers is gone, but, somehow, his smile lives on—comforting us, cheering us.

'Mercy Killings'

Once more the question of whether "mercy killings" can be justified brings forth frenzied partisan arguments.

The churches, many well-known physicians, much of the public and the law itself condemn this practice.

Some defend it.

But most people, we think, will feel that "while there is life there is hope," and will be grateful that THEY do not have to answer the most baffling riddle ever asked.

Miss Robinson Crusoe

This is a picture of Miss Alice Roxine St. Helens of Pasadena, Cal., a girl who had an idea which undoubtedly would have caused consternation among America's males had she succeeded in carrying it out.

Miss St. Helens, deciding that mere man and his civilization were useless and unnecessary, took a box of matches and two bars of soap and hied herself to a deserted point on Santa Catalina Island, in the Pacific, determined to live alone for five years on broiled fish, goats' meat and berries.

Fortunately for the mere males, she failed, being picked up ravenously hungry after three days of "Robinson Crusoe" life.

But what if her manless paradise had been a success?

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

Morals Squad,
U. S. Govt.
Dear Squad:

For Heaven Sake, can you help me with my uncle's Morals? His Morals have went to pieces since he was took over by the AAA, and last night he came home Soused as a Deacon about 2 a. m.

He was yelling & singing, and he says: "Hooray for the AAA! Hooray for good old Franklin D!" he says. "They are giving us Farmers 4 more years of Pig Control, and we won't have to raise no Corn, we can raise h—— and Wild Oats Instead!"

Right then is where my Uncle hiccuped a couple of times & fell over a chair.

I helped him back on his feet, and I asked him if he had got drunk at a Farm Co-operative Meeting. But it turned out he hadn't went to a meeting, he had went to a Burlesk Show & picked up one of them Blondes.

I was horrafied, I says, "Shame on you, Uncle, you havn't got no right to spend the Govt's Money on Chorus Girls, it is Non-American," I says.

"Fiddlesticks!" says my Uncle, "I am full of 100-Proof Americanizm. Us farmers has the old American Spirit of give-and-take, we will take anything the Govt give us, Hooray!"

I undone his Necktie so he wouldn't choke, and I told him that just because he was going to loaf another 4 years he diden't need to act like a College Boy.

"Fiddlesticks," says my Uncle, "I am a College Boy, this is my Sophomore Year with good old AAA, do you want to hear our yell?"

All of a sudden he begun to waive his arms like a Cheer Leader, & he give the Farmers Yell, as follows:

Sprickety-ax! Ho-ax! Ho-ax!
Sprickety-ax! Ho-ax! Ho-ax!
Plow 'em under! Give 'em the ax!
Kill your Pigs for a Benefit Tax!
Wallace! Tugwell! AAA!
The less we raise the more they pay!
HOORAY!

When the Police come, they helped me put Uncle to bed, and one of them says that if all the U. S. Farmers was yelling like him, us City Folks wouldn't get very much sleep from now on.

Your, worried,
W. NORMAN

Nature's Mystery

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

It has appeared to this writer that, sooner or later, when we are stumped for an explanation of an event, we charge it up to sun-spots.

Edwin C. Hill

The weather is so disposed of; pulsations of vegetation on the earth, the advance and retreat of the ice wall—even the stock market, laboriously traced to the sun spots by long and erudite research by the financial and astronomical faculties of Harvard University.

And now, at last, even such an errant and unpredictable business as squirrel behavior — the squirrel being our pet symbol of "goofy" conduct—is linked to those random excrescences on the face of old Sol.

There seems to be nothing left but the eccentricities of the Raw Deal to be so explained.

AGAIN ON THE MOVE

It is the latest of the big squirrel migrations, from New England westward into New York, that again makes pertinent the varying and sometimes conflicting explanations of this sudden squirrel wanderlust.

H. E. Anthony, curator of the American Museum of Natural History, has noticed the "troublesome coincidence" in squirrel restlessness or contentment with the maxima and minima of sun-spots.

A scientist, is "troubled" when he observes a relationship which he can't explain—and certainly there is nothing more puzzling in the infinite nexus of causation than the connection between the flick of a sun-spot and the itch in a squirrel's hind foot.

The greatest New England squirrel migration occurred 176 years ago. In 1919, virtually all the squirrels in Ohio started moving all at once.

In 1886, there were tremendous migrations in different parts of the country.

In 1883, they were suddenly swimming the Allegheny river in Pennsylvania, with an estimate of 30,000 squirrels to the square mile.

STOPPED AT NOTHING

All the stories of the great squirrel migrations of the past say they swam rivers, swarmed through houses and fields, destroying crops, allowing nothing to divert them. But in 1933, they were turned back by rivers, and even by traffic cops.

There is a well-authenticated story that 12 of them whisked onto the Yonkers ferry boat, dodging hands, and debarked at Alpine, on the Jersey side, but on the whole, they were in no such do-or-die mood as their ancestors.

Men has greatly affected the comings and goings of the animals, and there are scientists who say that the life force, the "elan vital" is beginning to ebb.

The little lemmings of Scandinavia seem to have lost none of their pep and they keep up with a traditional piece of foolishness comparable only to man's penchant for war, by which he demonstrates his red-bloodedness.

Every few years these little mouse-like creatures, living up in the sub-Artica, start swarming by the millions down across the Scandinavian countries. They are rapacious and devastating hordes, stayed by nothing, blighting and ruining crops.

ALL DROWN IN SEA

They travel right into the sea, swimming like Gertrude Ederle swimming the channel, and keep right on going until they sink.

The big-wigs of science get their heads together and ponder animal migration, but they can't make much out of it—at least, within the zone of reason or explainable causes.

The simple explanation of food-shortage and a move to a better supply doesn't hold in squirrelology, or whatever it is the scientists call their studies of these merry and mischievous little creatures. Sometimes they will leave nice pickings and swarm to others not nearly so good.

THEIR THRIFT DEBUNKED

Dr. W. Reid Blair of the Bronx Zoological Park, explodes some ancient myths about squirrels. For instance, their thrift is greatly exaggerated.

When you give a park squirrel a nut, and he buries it, he doesn't come back and get it, says Dr. Blair. They just obey an instinct and then forget all about the buried nut.

So there seems to be a lot of waste and overhead in squirrel economics as well as in our own.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Each year, before the snow falls, we come back to the mountain ranch to put things in order. We work hard—pruning, digging, burning brush. Once again we unroll the old red rug that is faded and ragged but still warm. I air the thick wool blankets—patch the torn places. Get out woolen socks.

The men stack piles of fuel beside the cabin door—oak logs, pine splinters knobbed with gum, gnarled knots of tough, red manzanita root, baskets of pine cones.

Elsie Robinson

We gather the pumpkins—big, golden fellows—and the green bronze Hubbard squash. The kitchen smells of stewing quinces and apples, corn meal fried with bacon, home-made bread.

It is a good time. Yet all the while something seems wrong. Something seems missing.

EARTH SEEMS TO SLOW

It is so quiet. The quietness is more than a mere lack of sound. There is a deeper stilling in it—as though something far down in the very heart of the earth were slowing.

A pale light settles over everything—a silvery light that somehow seems a part of the wide silence. It spreads, like a wet web, across the dark and resting earth. It clings and glimmers on the massed, dark trees.

The poplars burn like candles in that pale, still light. The birds drift through it on soft, noiseless wings. A leaf breaks loose—floats slowly to the ground.

As quietly, we humans move about our work. Good work—yet what is missing?

Why do we feel so lonely, almost terrified?

Gradually we know. We are missing the city. We are missing the city closeness and confusion. We do not like the city. We say that we are glad to be away from it—and we mean it. Yet we miss it—why?

PART OF THE CROWD

We miss it because it gave us a false sense of power and purpose.

We did not have to be individuals in the city. We did not have to depend on ourselves. We were part of the crowd.

But now, here in this quiet place . . . this immense, simple, honest place . . . we have to live by ourselves, think for ourselves, be ourselves. We have to make our own power and purpose. And it is too much for us.

It is too much for us. We feel shown up, small, weak, unimportant. We wish we could run away. But we cannot run away.

And, presently, something else begins to happen.

We forget ourselves and our little itchings and rebellions. Presently the noise and the fret and the restlessness go out of us. Slowly we grow still inside. Then, slowly, things come back to us.

HAPPY AND GRATEFUL

We stop hurrying and worrying. We remember how much we love each other. How good it is to have a warm, red rug and woolen socks and piles of fuel and heartening, healthy food.

We sit in the cabin working while the rain thunders outside. We sit in the quiet room sewing, mending harness, oiling boots, while the children play on the floor—and we are happy and grateful.

And I remember a verse I learned long ago, but forgot in the city noise.

"BE STILL . . . AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD!"

Is this God . . . this gentle, fire-lit room . . . this friendliness I feel for those who work with me and the little child . . . this soft, still thankfulness that fills my heart?

Is THIS God? Why—I SUPPOSE IT IS!

'Constitutionism': A Great Book

By Benjamin DeCasseres

The masses of the people of this country for the first time in our history are becoming CONSTITUTION-CONSCIOUS.

This has been brought about by the overt and covert attacks of the present administration on that document, the passage by Congress of laws that the Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional, and the now-famous recommendation of the President of the United States that Congress should pass a law even if Congress was reasonably convinced that it was unconstitutional.

All this has aroused the man-in-the-street to inquire into his own political and historical background. Events in Europe, wherein in a few years we have seen the destruction of constitutions and the enslavement of millions of people under Communism, Fascism and Nazism, have also accelerated the popular curiosity about our basic law.

AMERICA AROUSED

The American who always took his liberties for granted is now discovering that HE LIVES AND MOVES AND HAS HIS BEING in not only the greatest charter of liberties ever given to man, but that this charter was the quintessenial result of an epical struggle against tyranny and oppression that is as vital and breath-taking a drama as any ever written.

The hero of this mighty Anglo-Saxon epic is LIBERTY—and the parchment on which it is written is woven of the blood, brain and backbone of the men who stood at Runnymede against King John in 1215 and their descendants, DOWN TO THE MEN WHO MET IN PHILADELPHIA IN 1787.

For clarity, condensation and epical appeal, no finer exposition of the Constitution and its historic background has come to my notice than "Constitutionism: The Origin of Liberty Under the Constitution," by James Mussatti, former instructor in history in the University of Southern California (published by the Richard Blank Publishing Co., 527 West Seventh street, Los Angeles, Cal., $1).

BEGAN WITH MAGNA CARTA

Our Constitution such as we know it was begun in the signing of the MAGNA CARTA in 1215. It was here that those three fundamental principles of the Constitution, the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," were first formulated.

The Magna Carta restrained a king by WRITTEN LAW. It made trial by jury mandatory, provided THAT EXTRAORDINARY TAXES COULD NOT BE LAID WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF THE PEOPLE and that no one COULD BE DISPOSSESSED OF HIS PROPERTY WITHOUT DUE PROCESS OF LAW. (This horse-and-buggy document ought to be in the hands of every member of the administration.)

Mr. Mussatti sweeps on in his vibrant prose to the year 1629, when another English king, Charles I, forgot the contents of Magna Carta, in the same manner that our would-be dictators are TRYING TO FORGET THE CONSTITUTION.

So Charles was compelled to sign the PETITION OF RIGHT, in which once again the FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL were re-embodied into English law. Later, Charles repudiated his signature. In 1649 Charles paid for his tyranny with his life.

The main features of this petition of right are also parts of our Constitution.

The drama of our ancestors' heroic struggle to maintain their personal liberties against royal Raw Dealers has a third great act in 1688, when James II was disposed and the great BILL OF RIGHTS was signed by William and Mary.

"THE DRAFTERS OF OUR CONSTITUTION," says Mr. Mussatti, "UNDERSTOOD THE LESSON OF ENGLISH HISTORY, WHICH TAUGHT IN DRAMATIC EPISODES THE POSSIBILITY OF OPPRESSION THROUGH MISRULE."

THREE GREAT LEADERS

The three great figures that stand in back of our Constitution are John Locke, famous English philosopher; Montesquieu, a French magistrate, author of the "Spirit of Laws," and Sir William Blackstone.

These three men all enunciated the primacy of the INDIVIDUAL'S RIGHTS over the extra-legal activities of the state.

Mr. Mussatti quotes a paragraph from Montesquieu that should be memorized by every American today:

"WHEN THE LEGISLATIVE AND EXECUTIVE POWERS ARE UNITED IN THE SAME PERSON, OR IN THE SAME BODY OF MAGISTRATES, THERE CAN BE NO LIBERTY."

Today in this country executive power completely overshadows our law-making bodies and the charter of our liberties is openly sneered at in spite of the fact that the years 1215, 1688 and 1787 should be PERPETUAL WARNINGS.

After leaving the English background of the Constitution, Mr. Mussatti gives a vivid picture of the struggle for individual liberties against tyrannical governors and proprietary companies in the colonies; the development of the idea of "union" among the colonists, and the rising tide against the English government, which under George III, was relapsing again into absolutist ways.

MEMORABLE DAYS REBORN

Then follow several superb chapters on the Constitutional Convention and the mighty clairvoyance, the highly civilized instincts and the passions for INDIVIDUAL LIBERTIES that animated the men of the convention, the greatest men who ever founded a government if greatness is to be menaced by COURAGE, SUBLIME IDEALS, HONESTY OF INTENTION AND A HATRED OF ABSOLUTIST GOVERNMENTS.

There are fascinating charters on our "Bill of Rights" and subsequent amendments and a valuable appendix on the rights guaranteed to each individual by the Constitution, a list of all the chief and associate justices of the Supreme court, a summary of the decisions of the court that declared acts of Congress unconstitutional, and, finally, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution themselves.

MORE SACRED THAN LIFE

I read this book with the same breathless interest that I would a great biography or a master-work of fiction.

In it we Americans may look as in a magic glass at their heroic background and see WHY it is now necessary to defend as something more sacred than our lives —OUR LIBERTIES.

Isn't It So?

There are many places where what we see depends upon where we stand.

Praise should be deeper than the lips.

Every man thinks his own reason is the best.

The measure of our duty is the measure of our ability.

The greater the fool the louder the laugh.

Many of the reverses we dread never appear.

Ideas won't work unless you help them.

The wonder is not that we make mistakes, but that we make so few.

We have always a litle more power than we think we have.

Curiosity is waiting around for every secret.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Nov. 21—The autograph hounds have broken loose again. And an even larger pack is in full cry. So much so that at auspicious movie and stage openings a special reserve of police, including a squad of mounted, are necessary to keep a path open from curb to entrance.

O. O. McIntyre

For a time the nuisance seemed to be abating. But something—probably the recent arrival of Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone — caused fresh activity. At such premieres as "Jubilee" and "Dead End" clothes of innocents were actually torn in the rush to sign celebrities.

The numerical magnitude of the menace—it borders on real danger—grew from 6 in the evening to curtain time in a massed block of pushing, shoving hoodlums.

Cars were unable to get within a half-block of the marquee and the highly laquered had to run a gauntlet.

Such polished importants as Ina Claire, Helen Hayes and Florence Walton, among many others, reached the lobby in varying stages of dishevelment.

Afterwards, in the same riotous fashion, limousines were unable to reach the doors and the same pandemonium reigned.

The bachelor apartment house has almost passed from the architectural scene. The wealthy bachelor now prefers a penthouse, a modern hotel apartment or quarters at a club.

In its day the best known bachelor shrine was The Alpine, on the present site of the Hotel McAlpin.

Among famous guests were Marshall P. Wilder, Charles Dana Gibson and Hy Mayer. John W. Kellar, first to use the pseudonym "Cholly Knickerbocker," was also a tenant.

Mary Garden is carrying on bravely in a concert tour to rebuild the world that crashed about her with the market collapse. She was an Insull creditor to the tune of $500,000 and there was also a million she entrusted to others which evaporated almost over night.

But her head is still high. Those who know say that not once has she ever whimpered. Not even to her closest friend, Mme. Francis Alda. And she is singing with thrilling abandon.

The stage seems no longer to have a place for those sweeping and voluptuous types once beglamouring every musical comedy. Such as the statuesque Kitty Gordon, with her alabaster display of back revealed in shockingly V'd gowns.

Also the breath-taking Valeska Suratt, sheathed in riotous velvets with long trains. And Grace La Rue with her enormously brimmed hats and bejeweled gadgets.

Incidentally I passed Miss Gordon on a street yesterday, still commanding looking and quite beautiful.

No stage setting in the memory of the present crop of playgoers proved such a show stopper as the Norman Bel Geddes single scene in "Dead End." It stirred first nighters to arresting bravos. The vista shows the pier of a slum street jutting to the water. Glistening bodies squirm up the dock posts from their swim and all the figures in the cluck and sag of river edge squalor—toughs who slug rats, harried mothers of hoodlums, wharf bums and blowzy Magdalens of the jumping off places—are vividly etched.

A scene that swept a play to a hit.

On a Bryant Park corner an orator was tub-thumping about "the rights of the people." His audience, chiefly a few messenger boys, probably with, as George Ade used to say, death messages marked "Rush," and a group of giggling girls.

"Not a tender emotion is left in the human heart," he moaned. "Capitalism has squeezed them out."

Thingumabobs: Manuel Quezon, Philippine president, has a phobia. fear of common colds . . . Faith Baldwin has a house boat named "The Dog House" . . . Ed Sullivan reports the bar at Reuben's old Madison avenue stand employs 60 bartenders in three shifts . . . Which is the town's biggest crew . . . Syndney Horler, England's ace mystery writer, plots the finale of his novels first . . . Louella Parsons averaged three teas a day in her honor on her recent New York visit.
